CIVIL DEFENSE volunteers have always worked closely with police in Bensenville, but have been serving in a new capacity during the last month. Due to a shortage of men on the police force, CD workers have aided by riding in patrol cars, helping direct traffic and helping man the switchboard. Here CD worker Herb Tuffel calls into the station from the patrol car of Cpl. Robert Schneider.

Their Job Is Defense

by JUDY MORRIS

A group of 18 men in Bensenville are quietly serving their town every day.

They are on call at all hours to aid in emergencies and serve at special functions, yet many people do not even know their organization exists.

Civil Defense workers come from all walks of life. They work at a variety of jobs, raise their families and still find time to volunteer more than 15 hours of their time every month.

Their purpose, as defined by Dick Sabatino, assistant director, is "to serve the community." They do that in a number of ways.

AT PRESENT, CD workers have volunteered their time to the Bensenville police force, which is missing three of its men through illness and a return to school. The volunteers ride in squad cars, direct traffic and serve as "extra eyes and ears for our patrolmen," according to Walter Tett, police chief.

This often means a 12-hour day for these men who are assisting the police during their off-work hours. And if you can't find the CD workers in patrol cars, you might be able to find them at the village garage where they are completely overhauling a truck donated to them by the Addison Civil Defense Department.

The truck, a 1964 Ford, will make its first public appearance in Bensenville at tomorrow's Gold Rush parade. Those men who will drive it are just part of the crew who have worked to put the vehicle in running order.

The Bensenville Civil Defense Department was chartered in May, 1968. It now has 18 members, but needs more manpower, according to Sabatino.

THE MEN receive training in first aid, traffic and riot control and will soon undertake a course in airplane emergencies. They come out during electrical storms which have pulled wires and trees down and they direct traffic at carnivals and festivals.

In the case of an extreme emergency, tornadoes or nuclear attacks, they would guide people toward one of the five approved civil defense shelters in Bensenville. These are located at the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., Geils Funeral Home, Foremost Liquors, Tioga School and Green Street School.

One of the biggest problems facing the CD at the present is a lack of funds. They must work through the village, which appropriate a sum of $3,000 annually. With this money, they must maintain present equipment and plan for the future purchase of additional equipment.

There is no salary paid these men. "They do it because they like it. They're a bunch of real, dedicated guys," said Trustee Frank Pocht, chairman of the Civil Defense Committee.

THE CD workers elected new officers at their Wednesday night meeting. Named as director and assistant director were Ralph Crawford and Dick Sabatino. Also elected were Norman Anderson, shelter director;

Frank Bollinger, fire and rescue director; Pete Bloode, law and order director, and James Bock, communications director.

Other CD members are Paul Matuszak, Ed Froehlich, Herb Tuffel, Robert Glassford, Steve Heike, Kenneth Majeski, John Froelich, Richard Franzen, George Schmidt, Terry Ostfelder and Robert McCown.

These are the men who are on hand to protect their community at any hour of the night or day whenever an emergency might arise.

That Game Back in '69...

by PHIL KURTH

The old man staggered out of the past, from where nobody knew.

It was obvious, though, he had wonderful stories to tell and that he wanted to die with one on his lips as was the tradition in his day.

"Gather 'round," he said feebly, coughing once or twice for effect, "and I'll tell you of that incredible day at Kitty Hawk when..."

"WE'VE READ IT in the history books often enough," responded a rather impudent youngster.

"Well, I'll tell you of the great blizzard of '67..."

"We've heard it from our parents," said a man in his 40's.

"Hmmm. What about the Lake Park-Fenton football game back in '69? Now there was an unforgettable day..."

Talk of tension, of drama of excitement, of all the things that used to make up a Hollywood plot, this was it. Yes, it was all there — two undefeated teams, the Milwaukee Bell, a bitter rivalry, a classic showdown...

"Well, what happened?" came a voice from the rear of the crowd as they edged around the old man.

A far-away look in his eyes, the stranger

A Look at Recreation

"When the recreation plan goes into effect..." was the main theme of Wednesday's park district meeting in Bensenville. The commissioners were referring to a recreational budget of nearly $50,000 they will receive next spring as a result of state legislation which provides for the fund.

The commissioners indicated several times that they have two jobs ahead: maintaining the present programs and facilities, and planning for the future when the park district will grow to include a recreational plan.

Included in this general "looking ahead" was the reorganization Wednesday of standing committees. The board has acted upon a recommendation by Park Director Alan Randall that five standing committees be appointed. These are the planning, finance, personnel, special facilities, and program committees.

OTHER ACTION by the board included permission for an easement through Margie Park in Brentwood for the wiring of additional lighting. Board Pres. Donald Carroll pointed out that added lighting in the area would benefit the park.

In other business, the board instructed its attorney to review and recommend changes for an ordinance which prohibits liquor on park district property. The law is no longer valid since the district will now be serving liquor at the White Pines Golf Course under the conditions of House Bill 927.

The park commissioners see the new law as a boon to the district's financial positions.

$425,000 Loan OK Expected Soon

Approval by the Illinois School Building Commission is expected this month to loan $425,000 to Wood Dale School Dist. 7 to be repaid interest-free over a period of nearly 17 years.

Warren B. Carson, district superintendent, made that evaluation Wednesday following passage of two referendum issues by district voters on Tuesday.

After approving a $250,000 bond issue by a 754 to 397 vote, residents also endorsed the loan by a 609 to 529 margin.

DELIGHTED WITH passage of both issues, which will be used to expand and improve elementary schools in the 1,625-student district, Carson said that canvass of returns will probably take place at an adjourned school board meeting Monday night.

"I talked to the commission after we knew it passed," Carson said of the loan. He said it was that group's opinion that formal approval would come sometime this month.

In the meantime, the superintendent said, "We're going to push for bids by November, and start work in December. We want the improvements ready when school opens next year."

Improvements at Highland School, a 14-classroom and library addition at Westview School and site improvement at Oakbrook and the junior high are planned. Site acquisition west of Wood Dale Road and north of Irving Park Road is also planned.

IT WAS THE FIRST area school election to be held on a Tuesday, now required by state law. Polls were kept open until 9 p.m. to encourage residents to vote at Highland, Oakbrook and Westview schools. The latter was a new precinct for district elections.

Endorsement of the bond issue was heavy in all three precincts, with Highland area voters turning in a margin of 407 to 223. Oakbrook area residents approved 205 to 119, while Westview gave the highest percentage of approval, 142 to 55.

The loan was not as well received. It lost in the Highland area, 315 to 310, but won in Oakbrook, 179 to 141, and in Westview, 120 to 73.

Loans are only possible under conditions when the district has exhausted its bonding power.

Fiscal responsibility was one of the key factors in the referendum's success, observers felt. The district maintains cash basis operation, and with the exception of bonding is not in debt.

Final plans have been completed for tomorrow's Gold Rush Days in Bensenville. The day's activities will begin with a Children's Treasure Hunt at 11:30 a.m. at Bensenville Memorial Park.

Later, more than 50 floats and four marching bands will participate in a parade beginning at 12:15 p.m. at Tioga School, S. Addison and Memorial Streets. The parade, which will wind its way through town to the Bensenville Swimming Pool area, is being supported by local businesses, churches and civic groups.

"Bust the Bank" is the name of the game for local merchants who will hand out more than $1,000 worth of prizes as their contribution to the festivities.

BENSENVILLE'S FIRE Department will reverse its role on Saturday and build fires for a steak fry to be held at the Fireman's Hall, 15 N. York Road. They will be serving dinner from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at a cost of $2 per person.

For those who prefer chicken to steak, the Bensenville Community Church will sponsor their annual chicken feast on the church grounds at 101 S. Church Road from noon to 6 p.m. at a cost of $2 for adults, $1.35 for children.

Final event of the day will be a dance at Flick-Reedy Corporation's Auditorium beginning at 8 p.m. Tickets at $2 each will be available at the door to hear the King Jaro Orchestra.

FUNDS RAISED during this 20th annual Gold Rush Days will be used by the Lions Club to aid projects for the blind and visually handicapped, as well as other community activities.

Village Pres. John Varble has endorsed the event saying, "It's not only a way to raise money for a worthy cause but also a chance for people from all over the area to get together for a day of fun."

Chamber Exhibits

Bensenville's Chamber of Commerce will hold its 7th annual exhibit night Wednesday at the VFW Hall, 25 N. York Road.

More than 40 exhibitors, including the Register, will participate in the 3 to 10 p.m. event. Stores, manufacturers, businesses, civic and governmental groups will contribute.

Hank Stone, co-chairman of the project with chamber president Rodney Phillips, said the purpose of the event is to "Let people see Bensenville and acquaint themselves with the commerce, industry and services in the area."

EACH EXHIBITOR will set up a booth displaying his wares or some facet of his business. The Bensenville Police Department will show films and displays of various drugs that are recognizable to the trained eye.

The park district will have a booth manned by commissioners and new park director Alan Randall. The commissioners have invited visitors to stop by the booth to meet the new director.

Another booth will be manned by representatives and trustees of the Village.

Stone reported that ample parking will be available for visitors. More than 1,500 persons are expected for this year's exhibit.

PART OF THE FUN of the exhibit night is the giving away of numerous little prizes and gifts by participating merchants. Last year, more than 400 different kinds of prizes were distributed.

For those who came hungry, a chicken dinner will be sponsored by the VFW in the basement of the hall. Free coffee and hot chocolate will also be given away by Vending Machines, Inc.

Nottke Named to Cities Unit

Wilbert Nottke, mayor of Itasca, was appointed as a member of the committee on international municipal cooperation of the National League of Cities.

In making the appointment, league president Beverly Briley, mayor of Nashville, Tenn., noted that "you will be a member of a three member delegation from your state to represent its municipal interests in this important committee."

Committee chairman is Mayor Victor Shiro of New Orleans, La., and vice chairman is Mayor Milton Graham of Phoenix, Ariz.

The league president said, "To keep city leadership in the forefront of national urban policy development, the committees have three major tasks.

First, a constant search for new concepts which will aid in providing a good life for all urban Americans; second, carefully weighing the national and urban program priorities; and third, more clearly determining the strategies necessary to achieve our goals.

"National Municipal Policy activity is a year-round effort," the Nashville mayor wrote. "I sincerely hope that you will accept this assignment and that you will provide the chairman and the NLC staff with suggestions for either policy or procedural improvements."

Nottke, in accepting the appointment, said "naturally, I'm quite pleased, and I'll do my best to work for the advantage of municipalities and the betterment and encouragement of the league."

HE SAID he got the appointment

Paddock Offers Insurance Plan

An accident insurance program is being developed and will be offered to readers of Paddock Publications' Herald and Register newspapers.

Wayne Tite, director of promotions for the newspaper, said the insurance program is the first in a series of announcements involving an extensive program of community services that will be made available to readers. He said an analysis of existing programs throughout the country is being conducted prior to development of a local community services program.

The Readers Accident Insurance Program is being developed in consultation with Washington National Insurance Co. of Evanston.

through the Illinois Municipal League.

Nottke, in addition to duties as mayor of Itasca, is also the president of the DuPage County Mayors and Managers Conference.

WILL NOTTKE, mayor of Itasca, on a new appointment: "I'm pleased, and I'll do my best to work for the advantage of municipalities."

School Consolidation Committee Begins Work

by RICHARD BARTON

David Buser of Koeneyville was chosen Wednesday as chairman of the consolidation study committee of citizens and school board members from Lake Park High School and its five underlying grade school districts.

The group met for the first time armed with some facts and figures to begin work in studying the feasibility of consolidating grade school districts from Roselle, Itasca, Bloomingdale, Koeneyville and Medinah with Lake Park High School into a unit district. Any combination of consolidations like between just Roselle and Koeneyville, for example, will also be considered.

Committee membership is supposed to be three citizens or school board members from each district. The roster came up short Wednesday.

FROM ROSELLE, board members Donald Bessey and Edwin Peck and citizen Dr. C. F. Nagro were present.

Mrs. Greta Long, Bloomingdale school board member, Mrs. Jean Bonavolenta, PTA member, and Carl Merchat represent Bloomingdale to the committee.

Koeneyville members are Mrs. Joan Wacker, Kay Loftus and Bucker.

Itasca is represented by F. Edward Peacock, Dist. 10 board president, Mrs. Mary Hodgins, board secretary, and Raymond

Benson.

The sole representative of Medinah Dist. 11 is Supt. Richard C. Davis.

Lake Park was represented by Stanley Wheeler, administrative assistant.

E. W. J. BAGG, Roselle superintendent of schools, began committee discussion with a short review of a state education task force study completed two years ago. The study said quality education can only be obtained by paying for it, he said.

A school district is only as good as its educational leadership, which includes the school board and parents who choose the direction and development, he said. Superintendents should be guides for development, he added, because no one knows all the answers.

Area development, which was predicted as being more dense in 10 years in population due to more high-rise buildings, rapid transportation and other reasons were kicked around as justification for considering the feasibility of consolidation.

PEACOCK CITED three main factors which should be studied by the committee. They were:

—What educational benefits can be obtained which are not now available in individual districts.

—How will financing be affected by consolidation because each district has a different status at present.

—Can practical matters such as building enough "bridges" between the communities be done to make an area-wide acceptance.

He said the achievement of education benefits for district students should be the main concern of why to consolidate, if at all. Financing would be easy to study, he added, and of secondary importance.

HIS THIRD POINT was clarified with an example question.

"Will residents in Bloomingdale, for example, vote to pass a bond issue for a school to be built in the Itasca area?"

The committee must find out if the communities are psychologically ready to be joined into a unit district, he said, which is an extremely difficult thing to evaluate.

Other possible problems may exist, for example, because Roselle is nearly 90 per cent developed and doesn't predict much more need for school. On the other hand, Bloomingdale will soon experience extremely rapid growth.

In a favorable light for consolidation, according to Bessey, is that there is a trend in state aid upward. The state once paid about 25 per cent of the district cost, he said, but now pays nearly 50 per cent. He predicted the day when the state may pay over 50 per cent.

"AS THE STATE pays more of the load cost of education, the individual tax base of each district becomes less important,"

Bessey said. "It also looks like possible state aid formulas resulting from expected constitutional changes will further encourage consolidation for financial benefits."

The committee agreed there would be cost savings with increased use of administrative staff and one superintendent.

Peacock said no superintendent presently working in any of the district would be out of a job as a result of consolidation.

There would be other much needed positions such as curriculum director which could be filled by highly qualified men like Arnold Rusche, Itasca school superintendent, he added.

BUCKER PREDICTED teacher salaries may be increased overall because some districts are lower than others at present.

A standardization of all financial information and district statistics will be made before the next committee meeting Nov. 20 at the Lake Park High School board room. The information sheet will act as a basis and reference chart for further actions from which subcommittees can act.

Committee formation was done Aug. 6 by an informal meeting of representatives from Roselle, Bloomingdale and Koeneyville and Lake Park. Consolidation efforts have been underway for over a year.

Train Riders Plan Car Pools

Cautious commuters in the Northwest suburbs are planning their car pools now in face of a nationwide railroad strike threatened for midnight tonight.

Spokesmen from both the Chicago North Western and the Milwaukee Road railroads said they will be out of operation if the strike occurs.

"But that's a big if," said Ashley Wilhite of the Milwaukee Road. "We seldom know anything definite until it occurs," he added of railroad strikes in general.

"It's hard to believe the strike will actually take place," Wilhite said. The strike would paralyze all rail service.

"YOUR GUESS is as good as mine," Frank Koval of Chicago North Western said Thursday when asked if the strike will take place.

"One thing in the offering is if President Nixon appoints a presidential act finding board. That will stop the strike for 60 days," he added.

President Nixon has until midnight tonight to appoint the board and head off the strike temporarily, Koval added.

The situation is in the President's hands, Wilhite agreed. He could offer no consolation to commuters should the strike occur. "We have to be prepared if transportation simply does not run. That is very hard to face," Wilhite added.

A primary concern of the railroads is that perishable goods get to a point where they can be protected while a strike is on, he said.

WILHITE COMPARED the situation yesterday to water rising during a flood. "You can't stop it so you just watch it rise," he said.

The strike threat is being initiated by four shopcraft unions in pursuit of a 10 per cent pay increase.

Since regional, rather than nationwide, service would be halted, according to initial reports, there was doubt that President Nixon would intervene.

Later developments indicate that rail service would be hampered on a national level and a fine line now exists on which the president must make a decision.

The railroads threatened with the strike Saturday were the Santa Fe, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Erie Lackawanna, Southern, Baltimore and Ohio and Chesapeake and Ohio.

The unions include the International Association of Machinists, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, International Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Blacksmiths and the Sheet Metal Workers.

Vote on Garbage Contract

A formal agreement between Teamsters Local 782, the union which includes garbage collectors in 25 communities in DuPage and Cook counties, and the Chicago and Suburban Scavengers Association was to be voted on by union members late yesterday.

Clair Wilbreth, regional director of the Federal Mediation Service, said a tentative agreement has been reached and "we have every reason to believe it will be accepted."

A mediator from the federal service was in on the negotiations between the union and the scavenger companies.

MANY NORTHWEST suburban garbage

collectors refused to go to work Wednesday and Thursday despite a temporary agreement which was supposed to forestall any walkout.

Garbage collection companies that serve Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect were affected by wildcat strikes.

Officials of the union agreed Monday to delay the Oct. 1 strike voted by union members last week. The agreement to hold off the strike was made with the understanding that any final settlement would be made retroactive to Wednesday, the expiration date of the contract between the union and the scavengers' association.

Wilbreth said he was surprised to hear of the wildcat strikes in the area. "It's possible that some of the people got antsy," he said.

Unofficial sources reported the strikers were unhappy with the negotiations and "they wanted to force the issue and force it fast." The sources said the members were not happy with the slowness of union officials to get a settlement.

TELEGRAMS WERE sent to members of the local union Tuesday night to tell them the strike had temporarily been called off and to show up for work Wednesday morning. However, some workers struck anyway.

John Baggot, spokesman for the teamsters, said the main demand is a salary increase of $1 per hour across the board for men. The current rate is $3.86 per hour. Other demands such as holiday and vacation pay were also discussed.

Details of the tentative agreement will not be released unless the union membership votes approval of the settlement to day.

Village Beat

Geoffrey Mehl

Lake Park High School is going to make Bison Peanut Butter out of Fenton tomorrow. Fenton is going to be so mangled by the guys from Roselle they will wake up Sunday morning wondering why they are in the same conference.

Now, the TriCounty group is a fairly good one, and I'll concede that Fenton has a better than average squad. But Lake Park is beautiful, and they are going to kill Fenton tomorrow and win the conference title and there won't be a chance for Bisons at all.

We hear Fenton has got a pretty good quarterback, but like the rest of the Bisons, he'll be eating grass in his own backfield when Lake Park's defense punctures the Fenton offensive line, sort of like shooting bullets through glass.

FENTON IS going to get murdered. The Lancers, of course, play a waiting game. They wisely study opposition defense for the first quarter or so, probing the weak points, finding the keys to victory.

In the meantime, offensive and defensive lines work over the opponent with ease, and when the crucial moment arrives, the hapless team that would dare challenge the Lancers goes down for the count with a single punch.

And then it's all over. Glenn Domato unlimbers his magnificent throwing arm, and the ball is all over the field with defensemen scattered about like so many fallen tin soldiers.

Fenton? Hah. When you're playing someone easy like Elmwood Park, you can do nothing but look threatening. The casual observer will note that they try to score early, apparently because they haven't got the staying power for that second round.

FENTON ONLY scored 14 points in the second half last weekend, but Lake Park got 26. It's a different sort of style, but we've seen enough high school football to know that the team that goes nutty on the scoreboard in the second half has got it all over the team that must roll up the points early in the game.

Elmwood Park, for example, didn't do a thing in the first two periods but promptly came up with 16 points after the halftime break.

Domato's throwing arm is something else. He was eight for 12 last weekend, good for 113 yards. Carlos Villarroel was good for four out of nine and 67 yards. Domato is good on the ground, too — last time out he rolled up 189 yards. The lad from Fenton was good for only 70 yards.

Fenton must rely on the rest of its backfield, while Lake Park's defense wipes out backfield. Ridgewood could muster only 99 yards on the ground from four backs other than the quarterback.

FENTON HAS A reasonable attack, and we'll give them three touchdowns. But the Lancers are worth five scores this weekend, and the bet is that Lake Park will defeat Fenton by a score of 35-20.

Fenton is going to get murdered. It's not that they are a lousy team; it's just that Lake Park is better.

See you there.

Election Judges To Get $30 A Day

Election judges in DuPage County will receive $30 a day for all elections they work.

The $30 amount is the maximum allowable by the recently passed state bill.

The DuPage County Board of Supervisors passed the resolution raising the election judges' salaries from $25 to $30 after Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie signed the amendment to the state election code.

As stipulated in the amendment, any county with a population of less than 500,000 can fix the compensation of the judges of elections at not less than $20 nor more than $30 per day.

That formula can mean a lot if you're a designer-draftsman... it can mean a lifetime career in a job you'll like.

Procon has just added 36,000 square feet to its international headquarters in Des Plaines, Illinois. This space contains a new design-drafting section where we're adding facilities and men because our business, already well over $100,000,000 a year, is growing fast. Our growth means good openings for designers and draftsmen, especially those with electrical and mechanical experience. These are permanent jobs... not feast-or-famine slots in a drafting room.

Before we build a refinery like the one underway in Thailand, or the ones just finished in Spain and South Korea, we have to produce about 4,000 linear feet of blueprints. BEVERLY PETERSON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Peterson, 310 N. Willow St., Itasca, is one of seven nominees for Commonwealth Edison Company's "Miss Metro of 1969." The contest promotes the Crusade of Mercy within the company's general office. Miss Peterson works in the comptroller's office and is a 1968 graduate of Lake Park High School.

BOY SCOUT TROOPS 155, 194, 408 and 412 in Roselle will participate in a paper drive Oct. 11, beginning at 9 a.m. The drive provides for funds used for scouting equipment and camp fees. In previous drives, more than 25 tons of paper have been collected in each drive. Papers should be securely tied and placed at street curbs for pickup. Special pickups can be arranged by calling 529-7819 or 529-7579.

ADDISON TRAIL BOOSTER CLUB is planning a homecoming tail-gate picnic before Oct. 11 games at the high school. The club will meet at 11 a.m. at the north end of the school parking lot, and all community adults are invited to bring lunches and participate.

ADDISON'S FIRE department will observe Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 5 through 11, with daily open houses at both fire stations, and a "chief for a day" program involving second through sixth grade elementary school children. The latter will work on the basis of essay contests in the schools, with winners from each school spending an evening with the fire department.

Fire stations are at 133 E. Lake St. and 668 S. Vista, Addison. Firemen plan to donate a flag to the school submitting the essay.

FOUR GLENBARD NORTH high school students received letters of commendation for their performance in the 1969 National Merit Scholarship qualifying test. They include Benjamin F. Gardner, Valerie A. Hudson, Lawrence Ingrassia and Kim D. Reeve.

VANDALISM VICTIM James Fuller, 405 N. Willow, Itasca, reported to Police early Monday that while he was working at 409 W. Irving Park Road, Itasca, a beer bottle was thrown against his car windshield. Earlier, he had asked a customer to leave the cocktail lounge where he was working as a bartender. He discovered the vandalism shortly after the customer left.

ROSELLE OPEN HOUSE for firemen will be held Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. at the north fire station, Roselle and Irving Park Roads. Firemen will be there to answer questions. Equipment will be displayed, including the new rescue car. Fire Prevention Week is Oct. 5 through 11 and Roselle firemen will visit schools and conduct fire drills. They will also address local Scout organizations.

Off the Register Record

by "HEC"

The annual budget and appropriation ordinance of the DuPage Forest Preserve Commission (county board members) has approved spending for the operation and development of the county's growing recreation acreage in the amount of $1,433,450 for the fiscal year 1970-71 which begins next July 1.

Compared with the current 1969-70 budget, which appropriated $1,842,000, there is a substantial reduction.

BUT WHEREAS the commission authorized a figure of $4,435,550 for land purchase, over the past two years, known as Phase I, a new program, known as Phase II, calls for $7,784,000 for land purchases.

To be acquired are 1,600 more acres throughout the county. The total owned acreage now is 6,500. A total of 2,800 acres were acquired under the Phase I program.

The bulk of this purchase came under the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) open space 50-50 matching fund grant which has been a healthy assist for DuPage County.

But according to Pat Savaiano, chairman of the land acquisition operation, a presidential order for drastic curtailment of federal spending to take effect at once has suspended any such matching aid in the foreseeable future.

COUNTY FUNDING for these land purchases is accomplished by the sale of bonds. The bond tax levy has been at the rate of one-half of 1 per cent on county assessed valuation. It was announced at the session Tuesday that Gov. Richard Ogilvie had signed a bill which brings the limit to exactly 1 per cent.

On the basis of county assessed valuations, this would place the bonding limit at $10 million for land purchase.

Land purchase bonding power for the forest preserve commission is set by statute and is much lower than that provided for school districts. But with referendum approval, it is said, the preserves like the schools could get up to a 5 per cent limit.

But with present high tax valuations there is no need for such action. Ample funds appear to be available for all contemplated land acquisitions with the one per cent limit.

AS OF JAN. 1, 1969, a land acquisition report says there were $8 million in bonds outstanding and an estimated $10 million in unobligated bond money.

Of the $5,800,000 bonds sold the last year or two, the report shows $2,280,000 still on hand and a sum of $1,250,000 earmarked for contractual land purchase obligations.

"DuPage County does not have a master plan," the land acquisition chairman says, "and this loomed big in HUD's reluctance to continue the 50-50 deal." He thinks with the adoption of a county plan commission to spell out directions for future development the land acquisition picture will improve.

"We are hopeful" he said, "that when our new plan commission (voted last week) begins to function and shows evidence of its work, HUD will take another look and okay our requests so we can complete our programs." Application for 2 1/2 million in federal grants was rejected last month. But Savaiano, in what appeared to be an effort to reassure taxpayers, said that the anticipated increase in actual tax on a $10,000 valuation would be no more than 20 cents.

HIE SAID FURTHER that the spending program adopted Tuesday on the basis of "value to be received" was the "bargain of the century."

As chairman of both the finance committee and the land acquisition committee, he presented and explained the budget in detail with some help from H.C. Johnson, forest preserve superintendent.

Questions were invited from commission members but only a few responded. Under capital expenditures there was a reduction from $172,500 for 1969-70 to the low figure of $12,502 for 1970-71.

"How come such gigantic economy?" several inquired. It was explained that the purchase of trucks and radios this fiscal year accounts for the exaggerated difference.

ANOTHER AREA THAT was challenged and received some quizzing was "construction projects." These called for an outlay of $263,000 but nothing was spelled out.

The superintendent explained this sum was for estimated planned expenditures for a new fiscal year that did not begin until July 1, 1970.

The new lands being acquired, he said, had to be developed for forest preserve use. Roads and earthworks of various kinds which require the movement of soil and the shaping of terrain are necessary before the new acreage is acceptable for public use and enjoyment.

THERE ARE NOW 27 forest preserve park areas in DuPage County. New land acquisitions consist of neighboring and adjoining properties which enlarge them and complete their value for public use.

The big challenge to the forest preserve commission is to preserve the natural beauties of the DuPage landscape while making the park areas inviting for all kinds of recreation to thousands who will use them in the future.

Hint Bank Robbery Link

Police may have found a possible link between Tuesday's robbery of the Time Savings and Loan Association in Bensenville and a Sept. 15 robbery of the Second Federal and Loan Association of Morton Grove.

The robber of the Sept. 15 occurrence was described as "between 38 and 42, with dark horn-rimmed glasses, about 5'11" tall and 175 lbs. with black hair worn long in back."

The man who committed the Bensenville robbery was described as "between 20 and 30, with dark hair, about 6'2" tall, 225 lbs. with black glasses."

These descriptions may not sound like the same man, but Police Chief Walter Tett explained the discrepancy to the Register. He said that in an emergency, people are often erroneous in their initial descriptions. Actually, these two descriptions come much closer to each other than one would expect.

An even stronger hint that these two robberies may have been committed by the same man is the method used in both instances. Each time, the man was very calm, used a .45 automatic revolver, and tied up his victims with nylon cord.

Still another factor is a sketch of the man taken from a description by a victim of the Sept. 15 robbery. Both Sgt. Larry Beineman and Patrolman Leonard Mendoza have identified the man as the one they encountered in Tuesday's theft.

The Bensenville robbery occurred at 10 a.m. Tuesday. Both officers were responding to an alarm which had been set off by officials at the Savings and Loan.

Mendoza arrived first. As he entered the building, the thief approached him from behind and ordered him to drop his gun. The robber then told Mendoza to move towards the two bank personnel, whom he had standing against a wall.

The robber then waited behind the door.

When Beineman entered the building, the robber pointed two guns at him and ordered him up against the wall with the other three.

Both police officers commented that the man must have been a professional from his calm attitude and well-thought out plan. From a policeman's point of view, it is fortunate that the man was a pro.

Too often, an amateur will panic at the sight of a police uniform and open fire.

Beineman said the man was very smart, keeping the two officers apart so they couldn't gang up on him. He didn't get close to the two of them together at any one time, Beineman added.

Bensenville police have turned the case over to the FBI who will continue their hunt for a man who is well-versed in the art of thievery.

Clerk's Office Turns Over Funds

The DuPage County clerk's office will turn over $110,764.13 in earnings for the first half of the 1969 fiscal year to the county's general fund.

Earnings for the second half of the year will be computed and turned over with these funds on Nov. 30.

A recent audit of County Clerk Ray W. MacDonald's office by a private public accounting firm covering the period from Dec. 1, 1968, through May 31, 1969, indicated the surplus. MacDonald's office had total receipts amounting to $201,493.01 and disbursements of $90,730.88.

THE COUNTY CLERK'S office is a fee office, performing administrative duties and charging a certain amount for each function performed.

Disbursements include $30,003.10 for salaries, $38,019.39 for advanced funds which were returned by the DuPage County Board of Supervisors and $2,708.39 for miscellaneous expenses such as postage.

Receipts not only stem from MacDonald's duties as a processor of vital statistics and revenue officer, but also as a clerk of the county board and as a record-keeper for other county offices.

$425,000 Loan OK Expected Soon

Approval by the Illinois School Building Commission is expected this month to loan $425,000 to Wood Dale School Dist. 7 to be repaid interest-free over a period of nearly 17 years.

Warren B. Carson, district superintendent, made that evaluation Wednesday following passage of two referendum issues by district voters on Tuesday.

After approving a $250,000 bond issue by a 754 to 397 vote, residents also endorsed the loan by a 609 to 529 margin.

DELIGHTED WITH passage of both issues, which will be used to expand and improve elementary schools in the 1,625-student district, Carson said that canvass of returns will probably take place at an adjourned school board meeting Monday night.

"I talked to the commission after we knew it passed," Carson said of the loan. He said it was that group's opinion that formal approval would come sometime this month.

In the meantime, the superintendent said, "We're going to push for bids by November, and start work in December. We want the improvements ready when school opens next year."

Improvements at Highland School, a 14-classroom and library addition at Westview School and site improvement at Oakbrook and the junior high are planned. Site acquisition west of Wood Dale Road and north of Irving Park Road is also planned.

IT WAS THE FIRST area school election to be held on a Tuesday, now required by state law. Polls were kept open until 9 p.m. to encourage residents to vote at Highland, Oakbrook and Westview schools. The latter was a new precinct for district elections.

Endorsement of the bond issue was heavy in all three precincts, with Highland area voters turning in a margin of 407 to 223, Oakbrook area residents approved 265 to 119, while Westview gave the highest percentage of approval, 142 to 55.

The loan was not as well received. It lost in the Highland area, 315 to 310, but won in Oakbrook, 179 to 141, and in Westview, 120 to 73.

Loans are only possible under conditions when the district has exhausted its bonding power.

Fiscal responsibility was one of the key factors in the referendum's success, observers felt. The district maintains cash basis operation, and with the exception of bonding is not in debt.

Tomorrow: Gold Rush Days Fun

Final plans have been completed for tomorrow's Gold Rush Days in Bensenville. The day's activities will begin with a Children's Treasure Hunt at 11:30 a.m. at Bensenville Memorial Park.

Later, more than 50 floats and four marching bands will participate in a parade beginning at 12:15 p.m. at Tioga School, S. Addison and Memorial Streets. The parade, which will wind its way through town to the Bensenville Swimming Pool area, is being supported by local businesses, churches and civic groups.

"Bust the Bank" is the name of the game for local merchants who will hand out more than $1,000 worth of prizes as their contribution to the festivities.

BENSENVILLE'S FIRE Department will reverse its role on Saturday and build fires for a steak fry to be held at the Fireman's Hall, 15 N. York Road. They will be serving dinner from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at a cost of $2 per person.

For those who prefer chicken to steak, the Bensenville Community Church will sponsor their annual chicken feast on the church grounds at 101 S. Church Road from noon to 6 p.m. at a cost of $2 for adults, $1.35 for children.

Final event of the day will be a dance at Flick-Reedy Corporation's Auditorium beginning at 8 p.m. Tickets at $2 each will be available at the door to hear the King Jaros Orchestra.

FUNDS RAISED during this 20th annual Gold Rush Days will be used by the Lions Club to aid projects for the blind and visually handicapped, as well as other community activities.

Village Pres. John Varble has endorsed the event saying, "It's not only a way to raise money for a worthy cause but also a chance for people from all over the area to get together for a day of fun."

Chamber Exhibits

Bensenville's Chamber of Commerce will hold its 7th annual exhibit night Wednesday at the VFW Hall, 25 N. York Road.

More than 40 exhibitors, including the Register, will participate in the 3 to 10 p.m. event. Stores, manufacturers, businesses, civic and governmental groups will contribute.

Hank Stone, co-chairman of the project with chamber president Rodney Phillips, said the purpose of the event is to "Let people see Bensenville and acquaint themselves with the commerce, industry and services in the area."

EACH EXHIBITOR will set up a booth displaying his wares or some facet of his business. The Bensenville Police Department will show films and displays of various drugs that are recognizable to the trained eye.

The park district will have a booth manned by commissioners and new park director Alan Randall. The commissioners have invited visitors to stop by the booth to meet the new director.

Another booth will be manned by representatives and trustees of the Village.

Stone reported that ample parking will be available for visitors. More than 1,500 persons are expected for this year's exhibit.

PART OF THE FUN of the exhibit night is the giving away of numerous little prizes and gifts by participating merchants. Last year, more than 400 different kinds of prizes were distributed.

For those who came hungry, a chicken dinner will be sponsored by the VFW in the basement of the hall. Free coffee and hot chocolate will also be given away by Vending Machines, Inc.

That Game Back in '69...

by PHIL KURTZ

The old man staggered out of the past, from where nobody knew.

It was obvious, though, he had wonderful stories to tell and that he wanted to die with one on his lips as was the tradition in his day.

"Gather 'round," he said feebly, coughing once or twice for effect, "and I'll tell you of that incredible day at Kitty Hawk when..."

"WE'VE READ IT in the history books often enough," responded a rather impudent youngster.

"Well, I'll tell you of the great blizzard of '67..."

"We've heard it from our parents," said a man in his 40's.

"Hmmm. What about the Lake Park-Fenton football game back in '69? Now there was an unforgettable day..."

"Talk of tension, of drama of excitement, of all the things that used to make up a Hollywood plot, this was it. Yep, it was all there — two undefeated teams, the Milwaukee Bell, a bitter rivalry, a classic showdown..."

"Well, what happened?" came a voice from the rear of the crowd as they edged around the old man.

A far-away look in his eyes, the stranger

went on: "Lake Park, they were one of the pre-season favorites that year. Started out kinda slow with a 6-6 tie and then steam-rolled defending champion Mundelein and outscored Ridgewood in a rouser to come into Bensenville that Oct. 4 with a 2-0 conference record."

A Look at Recreation

"When the recreation plan goes into effect..." was the main theme of Wednesday's park district meeting in Bensenville. The commissioners were referring to a recreational budget of nearly $30,000 they will receive next spring as a result of state legislation which provides for the fund.

The commissioners indicated several times that they have two jobs ahead, maintaining the present programs and facilities, and planning for the future when the park district will grow to include a recreational plan.

Included in this general "looking ahead" was the reorganization Wednesday of standing committees. The board has acted upon a recommendation by Park Director Alan Randall that five standing committees be appointed. These are the planning, finance, personnel, special facilities, and program committees.

OTHER ACTION by the board included permission for an easement through Margie Park in Brentwood for the wiring of additional lighting. Board Pres. Donald Carroll pointed out that added lighting in the area would benefit the park.

In other business, the board instructed its attorney to review and recommend changes for an ordinance which prohibits liquor on park district property. The law is no longer valid since the district will now be serving liquor at the White Pines Golf Course under the conditions of House Bill 927.

The park commissioners see the new law as a boon to the district's financial positions.

School Consolidation Committee Begins Work

by RICHARD BARTON

David Buser of Keeneyville was chosen Wednesday as chairman of the consolidation study committee of citizens and school board members from Lake Park High School and its five underlying grade school districts.

The group met for the first time armed with some facts and figures to begin work in studying the feasibility of consolidating grade school districts from Roselle, Itasca, Bloomingdale, Keeneyville and Medinah with Lake Park High School into a unit district. Any combination of consolidations like between just Roselle and Keeneyville, for example, will also be considered.

Committee membership is supposed to be three citizens or school board members from each district. The roster came up short Wednesday.

FROM ROSELLE, board members Donald Bessey and Edwin Peck and citizen Dr. C. F. Nagro were present.

Mrs. Greta Long, Bloomingdale school board member, Mrs. Jean Bonavolonta, PTA member, and Carl Merchut represent Bloomingdale to the committee.

Keeneyville members are Mrs. Joan Wacker, Kay Lottus and Bucker.

Itasca is represented by F. Edward Peacock, Dist. 10 board president, Mrs. Mary Hodgins, board secretary, and Raymond

Benson.

The sole representative of Medinah Dist. 11 is Supt. Richard C. Davis.

Lake Park was represented by Stanley Wheeler, administrative assistant.

E. W. J. BAGG, Roselle superintendent of schools, began committee discussion with a short review of a state education task force study completed two years ago. The study said quality education can only be obtained by paying for it, he said.

A school district is only as good as its educational leadership, which includes the school board and parents who choose the direction and development, he said. Superintendents should be guides for development, he added, because no one knows all the answers.

Area development, which was predicted as being more done in 10 years in population due to more high-rise buildings, rapid transportation and other reasons were kicked around as justification for considering the feasibility of consolidation.

PEACOCK CITED three main factors which should be studied by the committee. They were:

—What educational benefits can be obtained which are not now available in individual districts.

—How will financing be affected by consolidation because each district has a different status at present.

—Can practical matters such as building enough "bridges" between the communities be done to make an area-wide acceptance.

He said the achievement of education benefits for district students should be the main concern of why to consolidate, if at all. Financing would be easy to study, he added, and of secondary importance.

HIS THIRD POINT was clarified with an example question.

"Will residents in Bloomingdale, for example, vote to pass a bond issue for a school to be built in the Itasca area?"

The committee must find out if the communities are psychologically ready to be joined into a unit district, he said, which is an extremely difficult thing to evaluate.

Other possible problems may exist, for example, because Roselle is nearly 90 per cent developed and doesn't predict much more need for school. On the other hand, Bloomingdale will soon experience extremely rapid growth.

In a favorable light for consolidation, according to Bessey, is that there is a trend in state aid upward. The state once paid about 25 per cent of the district cost, he said, but now pays nearly 50 per cent. He predicted the day when the state may pay over 50 per cent.

"AS THE STATE pays more of the load cost of education, the individual tax base of each district becomes less important,"

Bessey said. "It also looks like possible state aid formulas resulting from expected constitutional changes will further encourage consolidation for financial benefits."

The committee agreed there would be cost savings with increased use of administrative staff and one superintendent.

Peacock said no superintendent presently working in any of the district would be out of a job as a result of consolidation.

There would be other much needed positions such as curriculum director which could be filled by highly qualified men like Arnold Rusche, Itasca school superintendent, he added.

BUCKER PREDICTED teacher salaries may be increased overall because some districts are lower than others at present.

A standardization of all financial information and district statistics will be made before the next committee meeting Nov. 20 at the Lake Park High School board room. The information sheet will act as a basis and reference chart for further actions from which subcommittees can act.

Committee formation was done Aug. 6 by an informal meeting of representatives from Roselle, Bloomingdale and Keeneyville and Lake Park. Consolidation efforts have been underway for over a year.

Train Riders Plan Car Pools

Cautious commuters in the Northwest suburbs are planning their car pools now in face of a nationwide railroad strike threatened for midnight tonight.

Spokesmen from both the Chicago North Western and the Milwaukee Road railroads said they will be out of operation if the strike occurs.

"But that's a big if," said Ashley Wilhite of the Milwaukee Road. "We seldom know anything definite until it occurs," he added of railroad strikes in general.

"It's hard to believe the strike will actually take place," Wilhite said. The strike would paralyze all rail service.

"YOUR GUESS is as good as mine," Frank Koval of Chicago North Western said Thursday when asked if the strike will take place.

"One thing in the offering is if President Nixon appoints a presidential aid finding board. That will stop the strike for 60 days," he added.

President Nixon has until midnight tonight to appoint the board and head off the strike temporarily, Koval added.

The situation is in the President's hands, Wilhite agreed. He could offer no consolation to commuters should the strike occur. "We have to be prepared if transportation simply does not run. That is very hard to face," Wilhite added.

A primary concern of the railroads is that perishable goods get to a point where they can be protected while a strike is on, he said.

WILHITE COMPARED the situation yesterday to water rising during a flood. "You can't stop it so you just watch it rise," he said.

The strike threat is being initiated by four shopcraft unions in pursuit of a 10 per cent pay increase.

Since regional, rather than nationwide, service would be halted, according to initial reports, there was doubt that President Nixon would intervene.

Later developments indicate that rail service would be hampered on a national level and a fine line now exists on which the president must make a decision.

The railroads threatened with the strike Saturday were the Santa Fe, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Erie Lackawanna, Southern, Baltimore and Ohio and Chesapeake and Ohio.

The unions include the International Association of Machinists, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, International Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Blacksmiths, and the Sheet Metal Workers.

Vote on Garbage Contract

A formal agreement between Teamsters Local 782, the union which includes garbage collectors in 25 communities in DuPage and Cook counties, and the Chicago and Suburban Scavengers Association was to be voted on by union members late yesterday.

Clair Wilbreth, regional director of the Federal Mediation Service, said a tentative agreement has been reached and "we have every reason to believe it will be accepted."

A mediator from the federal service was in on the negotiations between the union and the scavenger companies.

MANY NORTHWEST suburban garbage

collectors refused to go to work Wednesday and Thursday despite a temporary agreement which was supposed to forestall any walkout.

Garbage collection companies that serve Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect were affected by wildcat strikes.

Officials of the union agreed Monday to delay the Oct. 1 strike voted by union members last week. The agreement to hold off the strike was made with the understanding that any final settlement would be made retroactive to Wednesday, the expiration date of the contract between the union and the scavengers' association.

Wilbreth said he was surprised to hear of the wildcat strikes in the area. "It's possible that some of the people got antsy," he said.

Unofficial sources reported the strikers were unhappy with the negotiations and "they wanted to force the issue and force it fast." The sources said the members were not happy with the slowness of union officials to get a settlement.

TELEGRAMS WERE sent to members of the local union Tuesday night to tell them the strike had temporarily been called off and to show up for work Wednesday morning. However, some workers struck anyway.

John Baggot, spokesman for the teamsters, said the main demand is a salary increase of $1 per hour across the board for men. The current rate is $3.86 per hour. Other demands such as holiday and vacation pay were also discussed.

Details of the tentative agreement will not be released unless the union membership votes approval of the settlement today.

Lake Park High School is going to make Bison Peanut Butter out of Fenton tomorrow. Fenton is going to be so mangled by the guys from Roselle they will wake up Sunday morning wondering why they are in the same conference.

Now, the TriCounty group is a fairly good one, and I'll concede that Fenton has a better than average squad. But Lake Park is beautiful, and they are going to kill Fenton tomorrow and win the conference title and there won't be a chance for Bisons at all.

We hear Fenton has got a pretty good quarterback, but like the rest of the Bisons, he'll be eating grass in his own backfield when Lake Park's defense punctures the Fenton offensive line, sort of like shooting bullets through glass.

FENTON IS going to get murdered.

The Lancers, of course, play a waiting game. They wisely study opposition defense for the first quarter or so, probing the weak points, finding the keys to victory.

In the meantime, offensive and defensive lines work over the opponent with ease, and when the crucial moment arrives, the hapless team that would dare challenge the Lancers goes down for the count with a single punch.

And then it's all over. Glenn Domato unlimbers his magnificent throwing arm, and the ball is all over the field with defensible scattered about like so many fallen tin soldiers.

Fenton? Hah. When you're playing someone easy like Elmwood Park, you can do nothing but look threatening. The casual observer will note that they try to score early, apparently because they haven't got the staying power for that second round.

FENTON ONLY scored 14 points in the second half last weekend, but Lake Park got 26. It's a different sort of style, but we've seen enough high school football to know that the team that goes nutty on the scoreboard in the second half has got it all over the team that must roll up the points early in the game.

Elmwood Park, for example, didn't do a thing in the first two periods but promptly came up with 16 points after the halftime break.

Domato's throwing arm is something else. He was eight for 12 last weekend, good for 113 yards. Carlos Villarreal was good for four out of nine and 67 yards. Domato is good on the ground, too — last time out he rolled up 189 yards. The lad from Fenton was good for only 70 yards.

Fenton must rely on the rest of its backfield, while Lake Park's defense wipes out backfield. Ridgewood could muster only 99 yards on the ground from four backs other than the quarterback.

FENTON HAS A reasonable attack, and we'll give them three touchdowns. But the Lancers are worth five scores this weekend, and the bet is that Lake Park will defeat Fenton by a score of 33-20.

Fenton is going to get murdered. It's not that they are a lousy team; it's just that Lake Park is better.

See you there.

Election Judges To Get $30 A Day

Election judges in DuPage County will receive $30 a day for all elections they work.

The $30 amount is the maximum allowable by the recently passed state bill.

The DuPage County Board of Supervisors passed the resolution raising the election judges' salaries from $25 to $30 after Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie signed the amendment to the state election code.

As stipulated in the amendment, any county with a population of less than 500,000 can fix the compensation of the judges of elections at not less than $20 nor more than $30 per day.

A = 36,000 ft.²

That formula can mean a lot if you're a designer-draftsman... it can mean a lifetime career in a job you'll like.

Procon has just added 36,000 square feet to its international headquarters in Des Plaines, Illinois. This space contains a new design-drafting section where we're adding facilities and men because our business, already well over $100,000,000 a year, is growing fast. Our growth means good openings for designers and draftsmen, especially those with electrical and mechanical experience. These are permanent jobs... not feast-or-famine slots in a drafting room.

Before we build a refinery like the one underway in Thailand, or the ones just finished in Spain and South Korea, we have to produce about 4,000 linear feet of blueprints. It takes good people to do this... if you want to be one of them, check with us. Phone or write to get set up on an interview. Contact:

The annual budget and appropriation ordinance of the DuPage Forest Preserve Commission (county board members) has approved spending for the operation and development of the county's growing recreation acreage in the amount of $1,433,450 for the fiscal year 1970-71 which begins next July 1.

Compared with the current 1969-70 budget, which appropriated $1,942,000, there is a substantial reduction.

BUT WHEREAS the commission authorized a figure of $4,435,550 for land purchase, over the past two years, known as Phase I, a new program, known as Phase II, calls for $7,784,000 for land purchases.

To be acquired are 1,690 more acres throughout the county. The total owned acreage now is 6,500. A total of 2,830 acres were acquired under the Phase I program.

The bulk of this purchase came under the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) open space 50-50 matching fund grant which has been a healthy assist for DuPage County.

But according to Pat Savaiano, chairman of the land acquisition operation, a presidential order for drastic curtailment of federal spending to take effect at once has suspended any such matching aid in the foreseeable future.

COUNTY FUNDING for these land purchases is accomplished by the sale of bonds. The bond tax levy has been at the rate of one-half of 1 per cent on county assessed valuation. It was announced at the session Tuesday that Gov. Richard Ogilvie had signed a bill which brings the limit to exactly 1 per cent.

On the basis of county assessed valuations, this would place the bonding limit at $19 million for land purchase.

Land purchase bonding power for the forest preserve commission is set by statute and is much lower than that provided for school districts. But with referendum approval, it is said, the preserves like the schools could get up to a 5 per cent limit.

But with present high tax valuations there is no need for such action. Ample funds appear to be available for all contemplated land acquisitions with the one per cent limit.

AS OF JAN. 1, 1969, a land acquisition report says there were $3 million in bonds outstanding and an estimated $10 million in unobligated bond money.

Of the $5,800,000 bonds sold the last year or two, the report shows $2,280,000 still on hand and a sum of $1,260,000 earmarked for contractual land purchase obligations.

"DuPage County does not have a master plan," the land acquisition chairman says, "and this loomed big in HUD's reluctance to continue the 50-50 deal." He thinks with the adoption of a county plan commission to spell out directions for future development the land acquisition picture will improve.

"We are hopeful," he said, "that when our new plan commission (voted last week) begins to function and shows evidence of its work, HUD will take another look and okay our requests so we can complete our programs." Application for 2 1/2 million in federal grants was rejected last month. But Savaiano, in what appeared to be an effort to reassure taxpayers, said that the anticipated increase in actual tax on a $10,000 valuation would be no more than 20 cents.

HE SAID FURTHER that the spending program adopted Tuesday on the basis of "value to be received" was the "bargain of the century."

As chairman of both the finance committee and the land acquisition committee, he presented and explained the budget in detail with some help from H.C. Johnson, forest preserve superintendent.

Questions were invited from commission members but only a few responded. Under capital expenditures there was a reduction from $172,500 for 1969-70 to the low figure of $12,502 for 1970-71.

"How come such gigantic economy?" several inquired. It was explained that the purchase of trucks and radios this fiscal year accounts for the exaggerated difference.

ANOTHER AREA THAT was challenged and received some quizzing was "construction projects." These called for an outlay of $263,000 but nothing was spelled out.

The superintendent explained this sum was for estimated planned expenditures for a new fiscal year that did not begin until July 1, 1970.

The new lands being acquired, he said, had to be developed for forest preserve use. Roads and earthworks of various kinds which require the movement of soil and the shaping of terrain are necessary before the new acreage is acceptable for public use and enjoyment.

THERE ARE NOW 27 forest preserve park areas in DuPage County. New land acquisitions consist of neighboring and adjoining properties which enlarge them and complete their value for public use.

The big challenge to the forest preserve commission is to preserve the natural beauties of the DuPage landscape while making the park areas inviting for all kinds of recreation to thousands who will use them in the future.

Hint Bank Robbery Link

Police may have found a possible link between Tuesday's robbery of the Time Savings and Loan Association in Bensenville and a Sept. 15 robbery of the Second Federal and Loan Association of Morton Grove.

The robber of the Sept. 15 occurrence was described as "between 38 and 42, with dark horn-rimmed glasses, about 5'11" tall and 175 lbs. with black hair worn long in back."

The man who committed the Bensenville robbery was described as "between 20 and 30, with dark hair, about 6'2" tall, 225 lbs. with black glasses."

These descriptions may not sound like the same man, but Police Chief Walter Tett explained the discrepancy to the Register. He said that in an emergency, people are often erroneous in their initial descriptions. Actually, these two descriptions come much closer to each other than one would expect.

An even stronger hint that these two robberies may have been committed by the same man is the method used in both instances. Each time, the man was very calm, used a .45 automatic revolver, and tied up his victims with nylon cord.

Still another factor is a sketch of the man taken from a description by a victim of the Sept. 15 robbery. Both Sgt. Larry Bieneman and Patrolman Leonard Mendoza have identified the man as the one they encountered in Tuesday's theft.

The Bensenville robbery occurred at 10 a.m. Tuesday. Both officers were responding to an alarm which had been set off by officials at the Savings and Loan.

Mendoza arrived first. As he entered the building, the thief approached him from behind and ordered him to drop his gun. The robber then told Mendoza to move towards the two bank personnel, whom he had standing against a wall.

The robber then waited behind the door.

When Beineman entered the building, the robber pointed two guns at him and ordered him up against the wall with the other three.

Both police officers commented that the man must have been a professional from his calm attitude and well-thought out plan. From a policeman's point of view, it is fortunate that the man was a pro.

Too often, an amateur will panic at the sight of a police uniform and open fire.

Bieneman said the man was very smart, keeping the two officers apart so they couldn't gang up on him. He didn't get close to the two of them together at any one time, Beineman added.

Bensenville police have turned the case over to the FBI who will continue their hunt for a man who is well-versed in the art of thievery.

Clerk's Office Turns Over Funds

The DuPage County clerk's office will turn over $110,761.13 in earnings for the first half of the 1969 fiscal year to the county's general fund.

Earnings for the second half of the year will be computed and turned over with these funds on Nov. 30.

A recent audit of County Clerk Ray W. MacDonald's office by a private public accounting firm covering the period from Dec. 1, 1968, through May 31, 1969, indicated the surplus. MacDonald's office had total receipts amounting to $201,495.01 and disbursements of $89,730.88.

THE COUNTY CLERK'S office is a fee office, performing administrative duties and charging a certain amount for each function performed.

Disbursements include $30,003.10 for salaries, $38,019.39 for advanced funds which were returned by the DuPage County Board of Supervisors and $2,708.39 for miscellaneous expenses such as postage.

Receipts not only stem from MacDonald's duties as a processor of vital statistics and revenue officer, but also as a clerk of the county board and as a record-keeper for other county offices.

ADDISON'S FIRE department will observe Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 5 through 11, with daily open houses at both fire stations, and a "chief for a day" program involving second through sixth grade elementary school children. The latter will work on the basis of essay contests in the schools, with winners from each school spending an evening with the fire department.

Fire stations are at 133 E. Lake St. and 666 S. Vista, Addison. Firemen plan to donate a flag to the school submitting the essay.

FOUR GLENBARD NORTH high school students received letters of commendation for their performance in the 1969 National Merit Scholarship qualifying test. They include Benjamin F. Gardner, Valerie A. Hudson Lawrence Ingrassia and Kim D. Reeve.

VANDALISM VICTIM James Fuller, 405 N. Willow, Itasca, reported to Police early Monday that while he was working at 409 W. Irving Park Road, Itasca, a beer bottle was thrown against his car windshield. Earlier, he had asked a customer to leave the cocktail lounge where he was working as a bartender. He discovered the vandalism shortly after the customer left.

ROSELLE OPEN HOUSE for firemen will be held Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. at the north fire station, Roselle and Irving Park Roads. Firemen will be there to answer questions. Equipment will be displayed, including the new rescue car. Fire Prevention Week is Oct. 5 through 11 and Roselle firemen will visit schools and conduct fire drills. They will also address local Scout organizations.

THE NEW RELIGION columnist for the Paddock newspapers, Episcopal priest Rev. Lester A. Kinsolving, looks over one of the papers with Paddock Publications Pres. Stuart Paddock Jr. and Assistant Managing Editor Ken Knox. Rev. Kinsolving's column will begin appearing in all the chain's papers on a weekly basis Monday.

Religion Column To Begin

A new dimension will be added to the Paddock Publications newspapers beginning Monday.

One of the nation's most widely-read and widely-discussed religion columns will begin appearing on a regular weekly basis.

Authored by the Rev. Lester Kinsolving, an Episcopal priest from California, the column already appears in more than 200 newspapers with a combined readership of 10.5 million persons in 46 states and two Canadian provinces.

"Rev. Kinsolving's column should fill a need we've long recognized in our papers, and move us even closer to our goal of the complete newspaper package," said Charles E. Hayes, editor-in-chief of the Paddock newspapers.

THE COLUMN IS NO ordinary religion column, as Rev. Kinsolving is no ordinary clergyman.

Rev. Kinsolving, son of the late Bishop of Arizona Arthur B. Kinsolving II, is a man deeply and personally involved in the social and moral issues of the day. His columns reflect that, and range on subjects as diverse as capital punishment, draft exemption, communication with the dead and churches in politics.

Rev. Kinsolving knows of what he writes. Now 41, he has spent 14 years in the parish ministry with assignments including diocesan staff member, prison chaplain and personal chaplain to the late Bishop James A. Pike.

HE KNOWS THE inside of religion as no layman could, and comments on it with the skill and instinct of a fine and aggressive reporter. He works now full-time for the San Francisco Chronicle, which syndicates the column and spends most of his time traveling the country investigating first-hand the issues that are swirling in the church and society today.

Besides his column, he has made frequent appearances on radio and television, and has contributed articles to magazines as far apart on the spectrum as the "Journal of the American Bar Association" and "Playboy."

Rev. Kinsolving is married, has three children, and lives in Berkeley, Calif.

More Awards Are Won By Paddock

High School Hang Ups, the multicolored posters created by Paddock Publications, and the cover pages of the Paddock Real Estate sections both won prizes at this week's regional meeting of the International Newspaper Promotion Association in Wichita, Kans.

High School Hang Ups, with school mascots portrayed in color, appeared in Paddock Publications early this year. The series was intended for use as wall posters or in souvenir collections of area high school students and fans. Information published with each Hang Up promoted school spirit by telling the school's traditions. Inspiration for the Hang Ups series came from Ted W. Small, director of display advertising for Paddock Publications. Art work was prepared by staff artist John Flaster.

The Paddock Real Estate section has gained importance as one of the outstanding sections of its kind, according to Wayne Tite, Paddock promotion director and supervisor of the makeup of the section's cover pages. Overseas photographs for the cover pages were taken by Frank Pierson, free-lance photographer; the remainder were taken by Paddock staff photographers.

Both entries won second place in the contest for daily newspapers with a circulation under 100,000. Hang Ups were entered in the "In-paper, circulation" classification. Real Estate section cover pages were entered in the "In-paper, advertising" category.

Tite accepted the awards at the Tuesday banquet from Bernard Salvatore, assistant advertising director of the Pontiac, Mich., Press.

The Way We See It

Act Forward Looking

The DuPage County Board of Supervisors has approved creation of a county planning commission. The action is forward looking and will help DuPage in its monumental effort to insure wise development of the county.

The commission will have 11 members. Three will be county board members, three will be from municipal authorities and five will be citizens at large appointed by Board Chm. Paul Ronske. The plan group is authorized to make investigations, gather facts and draft a county development plan for submission to the county board, encourage cooperation of political subdivisions within the county toward coordination of municipal, county, metropolitan, state and other special district government plans. The county plan will help guide the "coordinated, adjusted and harmonious development of the county and of public improvements and utilities."

The commission will serve some of the essential functions of municipal planning boards, providing research, advice and informed recommendations to elected officials, permitting them to reach into the community for expertise while concentrating more of their own efforts on questions of policy.

Selection of the membership is of critical importance to the effectiveness of the planning agency. We hope now that the board has given its approval to the concept of a planning commission it and its chairman will follow through to insure the commission can function effectively with a knowledgeable membership, full support and rapid implementation of the board's intent.

Withdraw Haynsworth Nomination

President Nixon has strongly reaffirmed his backing of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. for the vacancy on the U.S. Supreme Court.

The President said he had taken note of "the various items" raised during the lengthy Haynsworth confirmation hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee, and still stands by his nomination of the South Carolina jurist.

We think the President is making a mistake.

Haynsworth was nominated to replace Justice Abe Fortas, whose resignation under fire became a cause celebre that focused national concern on the issue of judicial propriety.

At this time particularly, the nominee to a bench — especially the Supreme Court — must be a man above questions of propriety and sensitivity toward judicial integrity. There is a matter of public confidence at stake.

Unfortunately, in Judge Haynsworth's case, the questions are there.

There is no suggestion that Haynsworth has done anything dishonest, or that his case parallels that of Fortas.

But Haynsworth, a man of immense personal financial holdings, failed to disqualify himself from at least two cases in which he had a financial interest, and one of these cases is described as a direct violation of the canon of judicial ethics. He has also been charged with ruling on cases involving a dozen former law clients, and ruling in favor of 10 of the 12.

We think the questions raised are important enough that before the Judiciary Committee or the full Senate acts on the nomination, President Nixon should withdraw Haynsworth's name.

Ravings

That's An Endorsement?

by RICK FRIEDMAN

Back on Friday, Sept. 5, I wrote a column in which I said that Phil Crane was the gutsiest of all the candidates running for the 13th District congressional seat.

Little did I suspect at the time that Phil Crane had even more guts than I could have possibly imagined. He's now taking out ads in the newspapers and putting out brochures quoting a half-a-line or two out of that particular column of mine.

I NOW FIND myself in such illustrious company as William F. Buckley, Jon and Abra of the Chicago Daily News and Walter Trohan of the Chicago Tribune as part of the Phil Crane Fan Club.

I'm flattered. No greater guts hath any politician.

The half line Phil Crane took from my column for his ads and brochures is: "He would make a helluva 13th congressional congressman."

The full line he took from my column is: "Phil Crane said it all with style, with class, and he left us with the feeling he would make a helluva 13th Congressional congressman representing us in Washington, D.C."

This was all great, of course, and did wonders for my ego, but I don't think Phil Crane went far enough in publishing my endorsement of him. By some oversight, he forgot to include the next two lines which ended the column: "Phil Crane is the gutsiest candidate running for the 13th Congressional seat. And it will take a lot of guts for any voter to pull Phil Crane's lever in the 13th Congressional District Republican primary Oct. 7."

AFTER ALL, if he wants to show my support, he should go all the way.

And by some oversight, lack of time probably, Phil Crane missed a few other lines which would have shown how much in his camp I really am. For instance: "It takes a whole of a lot of guts to tell people publicly there is no such thing as hunger in the United States . . . Just plain old malnutrition from not knowing what the right foods are to eat to keep from going hungry."

As one of his staunch supporters, I can't understand why my candidate didn't want more of the public to know about this.

Or: "Phil Crane said some other gutsy things during the interview. Like telling the suburbanite that if he can't afford to live in the suburbs he should move back to the city."

Heck, as a big Crane backer, I think all suburban voters should know how he feels on this particular issue.

THERE ISN'T much time left but maybe Phil Crane could get an ad or a brochure out before Tuesday's election so I can get even more publicity as one of his backers.

Here's a new endorsement from me he can use part of: "Phil Crane scares hell out of me. Vote for Philip M. Crane at your own risk."

Phil Crane has my permission to borrow part of the above and attribute to me: "... vote for Philip M. Crane."

Now that it's out publicly I'm a Crane supporter, what more do I have to lose?

The Political Beat

GOP Casting Two Images

by CHARLES HUFNAGEL

One is persuaded to ask whether the demise of Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen brought to an end an era of Republican politics practiced in the New Deal 1930's and carried over into the post-war period. And more, one is impelled to inquire if President Nixon did not in fact practice and endorse this politics as his own and therefore being any honorable man is under obligation to continue and carry forward Republicanism in the Dirksen image.

There is much to substantiate this contention as there is a great deal to challenge its efficacy. For if anything appears certain it is that Dirksen's death marked the end of an era already fading along with the power politics he represented.

BUT DESPITE THIS decline he remained the pivotal figure in Illinois and even the nation round which the Nixon people rallied to win the Illinois 26 electoral votes.

It is not too much to say that without the Dirksen image it is doubtful whether the GOP could have managed to carry the state for Nixon and others in the midwest as well.

So it can be and ought to be said that this Republican image still prevails in the counsels of this GOP administration at Washington.

For the truth is the President by association is close to the Dirksen image and somewhat removed from the kind of politics practiced by new GOP leaders in Illinois — Ogilvie, Percy, Smith and Bauer.

THE DIFFERENCE is the distance between what happened between 1960 and 1970, which is turning out to be considerable.

On the one hand this shows up in what has been called the Nixon "southern strategy" and all it connotes. On the other it discloses a new liberal-moderate Republican leadership in the Senate which is an open challenge to the Dirksen image.

Can it be justly said of President Nixon as it was related of LBJ that he was overtaken by problems of a new era which the old politics he had mastered so well could not provide solutions?

Is the President's hesitancy and his circuitous manner in handling issues and problems of the day due to his being "hounded in" by a political ideology developed in the contentious post-war period but which today is hardly relevant?

ACTUALLY there has been no post-war settlement after the defeat of Italy, Germany and Japan. Peoples everywhere are struggling to shake off shackles that have held them for centuries. They want a larger share of the world's goods. They have no faith in military solutions.

Now the Republicans in the Senate have declared allegiance to a new leadership, differing from the President. Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, who calls himself a liberal-moderate, has taken over Dirksen's job as GOP minority leader and Sen. Robert Griffin of Michigan, who calls himself a moderate, is minority whip. Scott is close to the so-called Eastern Establishment which Dirksen and Nixon vehemently opposed.

All will recall the convention when Dirksen dramatically pointed a finger at Tom Dewey, 1948 presidential candidate, and charged him with leading the party down the road to defeat.

NOW DIRKSEN IS gone and a friend of Dewey's speaks for the GOP in his place.

But there's more to this developing story. Cong. John Erlenborn, R-Elmhurst, was a law associate of the newly appointed U.S. District Attorney in Chicago, DuPage Circuit Judge William Bauer. Bauer's name was sent to the President after agreement between Sen. Percy and Gov. Ogilvie.

In DuPage politics Judge Bauer is recognized as a new Republican leader far removed from the old GOP conservatism. He represents the forces that are shaping the transition brought about by today's problems and events. He speaks for a new generation of Republicans.

To add further emphasis to what is happening Cong. John Erlenborn has been closely associated with Sen. Charles Goodell, R-N.Y., most vocal among the GOP on Vietnam policy. In 1968 Goodell attended the DuPage GOP annual picnic in behalf of Erlenborn's reelection.

IT HASN'T broken into the open but the facts say there is a growing cleavage in Republican ranks. The LBJ confrontation which led to his abrupt departure from the White House is seen dogging President Nixon.

The President through good press agency has been portrayed as the greatest politician of this century. But so far he has been unable to inspire a large segment of his party to follow and trust in his leadership.

A basic leadership problem is the fact that he received no more than 43.3 per cent of the votes in the 1968 election and beat out Humphrey by a paper thin margin of popular votes.

The nation is deeply divided, and that division is growing. It crosses every age group, every income group, every social group and every church group.

For these reasons, perhaps, the President is charged with being overly cautious. But he realizes the mistakes of his predecessor and the fate that overtook him.

Nevertheless the problems are real. The world is looking for a new hope, a better life via a trusted leadership.

This is the promise and the danger of the coming 1970's.

Seen Any Spiffy New Cycles in Palatine?

A few weeks ago my son placed an ad in a Chicago paper to sell his Triumph TR 6 motorcycle, for which he hoped to get $500. This money was needed to help him get through his third year at Southern Illinois University.

On Friday evening, Sept. 12, a young man called in answer to this ad and asked directions from Palatine to our home in Winfield, which is just west of Wheaton. When he arrived he was given permission to take the cycle for a trial run. That was the last seen of the young man and the cycle. He never came back. He did not leave a car behind as he said his buddy dropped him off. The lad was about 20, good looking, short black hair, dressed very neatly in dark pants and a dark v-neck sweater. The motorcycle was orange and white.

MY SON IS ONE of 12 children and works summers to put himself through college. The loss of this cycle has hit him very hard.

If anyone knows of a newly acquired cycle Triumph TR 6 in Palatine or nearby, please contact us at 666-7461 or call the Palatine or Winfield police.

Even though it may have been repainted by now, my son has a way of identifying it.

This is probably not the first motorcycle this young man has stolen in this way. It seemed too well planned.

Withdrawal Setup Fuzzy?

What this newspaper really needs, is a "Sex-education — evasion — Counselor's Column." And why not; there are certainly more people that would like to keep their children out of this insidious program, than there are prospective draft dodgers. The need for such guidance becomes especially apparent when you study the contradictions in the withdrawing policies on different levels of authority.

On Thursday, June 26, 1969, the school board of Dist. 21 voted unanimously to adopt "Family Life and Sex Education" as part of the curriculum for all children with the following amendment: Parents may withdraw their children from any specifically named part of the family life and sex education program by written request. Since the board is duly constituted, this resolution is law.

On Thursday, Aug. 28, 1969, Superintendent Gill announced to the board, his newly conceived withdrawal policy: Parents may withdraw their child from the sex education part entirely, but not from the family life portion.

THE SCHOOL BOARD did not vote upon this. Therefore, this policy is not law. What does this mean to the parent?

a) The superintendent can change his announced policy at will or abandon it altogether without a vote by the school board. The credibility of the word of an employee of the board is certainly no safeguard.

b) The original adoption with amendment by the board is still in effect and has withdrawal provisions for the family life portion also.

In light of this, you actually can withdraw your child from the sex-education part under the superintendent's policy, and you can withdraw from the family life portion under the school board's policy.

What a way to run a school district! Parents! Let's go down to the next school board meeting on Thursday, Oct. 9, 1969, to find out whose withdrawing policy will prevail, the school board's or the school superintendent's.

Correspondence from readers is welcomed. Only letters of 500 words or less will be published, however, and no anonymous letters will be considered for publication. Letters must be signed with name and address. Direct your mail to The Fence Post, Paddock Publications, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

3 Businesses Donate Jr. Miss Scholarships

Three area business firms have donated scholarships to be awarded in the 1967-70 Paddock Junior Miss Pageant, Robert Y. Paddock, executive vice president, announced.

Beeline Fashions, Inc., of Bensenville and Lattot Chevrolet of Arlington Heights are contributing toward the scholarship awards for the third year, and Meeske's Super Market of Mount Prospect is participating in the scholarship program for the first time this year.

A total of $850 will be awarded in this year's pageant, Paddock said. Because of a change in regulations by the board of the Illinois Junior Miss Pageant, there will be only two Junior Misses from this area, each to receive a $250 scholarship. In addition there will be a runner-up to each of the winners and winners in the scholastic achievement and talent categories, two of the five areas in which candidates are scored.

WINNER OF THE scholarship given last year by Beeline Fashions, world's largest merchandiser of fashions by the party plan method, was Debbie Benysh of Roselle, now a freshman at Northwestern University. In addition to winning the title of Roselle's Junior Miss last year, Debbie was first runner-up in the Illinois Pageant.

Debbie, a 1969 graduate of Lake Park High School, recently was presented her scholarship by Chris Pedersen, vice president of administrative operations for Beeline.

Beeline has been located in Bensenville since the mid-1950's when it moved to the Northern DuPage County community from Chicago. In 1963 it opened a brand new plant on Meyer Road. The firm now does more than $51 million business annually.

PAMELA WEIR, the current Illinois Junior Miss, now enrolled at Illinois Wesleyan University at Bloomington, won the scholarship donated last year by Lattot Chevrolet. A 1969 graduate of Prospect High School, Pam is a resident of Arlington Heights. Besides winning the title of Arlington Heights' Junior Miss in the 1968-69 Paddock Pageant, she also received the scholastic achievement award.

Junior Miss is only one of the many civic endeavors with which Nick Lattot, owner of the automobile agency that has been in Arlington Heights since 1936, is associated. He has been identified with Northwest Suburban YMCA, Northwest Community Hospital and Southminster United Presbyterian Church. His son, Warren, now is associated with him in the Chevrolet agency, and both have been active with youth.

LATTOT PURCHASED the site of its present location at 800 E. Northwest Hwy., in 1953, at that time the edge of town for Arlington Heights. The firm has gone through five expansions since then and now covers five acres.

Joining Beeline and Lattot as scholarship sponsors this year is the Mount Prospect firm founded by Fred Meeske in 1925. Meeske's Super Market has been in the same block since its founding, expanding to its present location at 101 S. Main several years ago. Fred's sons, Earl and Fred Jr., now direct the operation.

Father and sons have been involved in village affairs, the three serving a total of 57 years in the village fire department. They all also have been active in the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce. In addition Earl is active in the Mount Prospect Historical Society and serves on the police pension board.

THE ORIENTATION meeting for all area high school senior girls eligible to participate in the Pageant ("B" average or better) will be held at 7 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 12 (correct date), in the little theater of Elk Grove High School, Elk Grove Blvd. and Arlington Heights Road.

Girls are asked to bring their parents with them. A film of the 1969 America's Junior Miss Pageant will be shown, and opportunity given to ask questions about the local Pageant as well as the state and national. Entry forms will be available at the meeting.

Individual interviews will be conducted at Elk Grove High Sunday, Nov. 2, and the talent finals are scheduled for Sunday, Nov. 16.

Questions should be directed to Mrs. Pat Adam, chairman, at 394-2300 or 773-1520, extension 267, during office hours.

College Adds Five To Faculty

College of DuPage board at its Sept. 24 meeting approved the appointment of five additional faculty members for the 1969-70 academic year. They include:

—Arthur P. Rose of Poughkeepsie, N.Y., dean of business. Rose has been chairman of the retail business management program at Dutchess Community College in Poughkeepsie. A graduate of McGill University, he received a master of science degree from Columbia University Graduate School of Business.

—Dorothy L. Black of Joliet, counselor. Mrs. Black holds an M.A. degree from Bradley University and has been a counselor at Joliet Junior College.

—Edgar H. Dowell of Lyons, instructor of photography. A former member of the staff of Parkway Color Laboratory in Chicago, he has had his own business for the last two years. Dowell holds B.S. and M.S. degrees from the Illinois Institute of Technology.

—Gary R. Lemkau of Oak Park, management instructor. Lemkau received his master of business administration degree from Western Michigan University. He has had additional training at the Harris Trust and Savings Bank in Chicago and has organized a management plan and accounting system for a large supermarket.

—Herbert E. Schultz of Chicago, physics instructor. Schultz, who has been a lecturer in physics at the University of Illinois, received his B.A. from New York University and his M.S. from the University of Chicago.

—Sharon E. Rose of Addison, nursing instructor, was appointed at a previous meeting of the board. A former instructor of pediatric nursing at the West Suburban Hospital, Oak Park, Miss Rose holds an M.N. degree from the University of Florida.

The next meeting of the college board will be in Room K163 at the college's interim campus, Lambert Road and 22nd Street, Glen Ellyn, at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

The Lighter Side Taxing Toward Greatness

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The main strength of America and the thing that has made this republic great is our almost limitless ability to think up new kinds of taxes.

Other nations have achieved greatness only to flounder, stagnate or fall. In each case, they reached the point where they were taxing everything in sight and were unable to devise any new revenue raisers.

Once a nation arrives at the outer limits of its tax levying capacity, it has no place to go but down.

In other words, the danger to a nation is not over-taxation, as some economic theorists would have you believe. The danger is that it will run out of new taxes to impose.

Each tax has its own ceiling beyond which it cannot be raised without causing internal rebellion. But as long as a nation has a supply of new taxes up its sleeve, it continues to progress.

By that token, I am convinced that the United States will flourish for at least a thousand summers. And maybe winters, too.

Within the past month, our country has been blessed with a number of ingenious new tax proposals, anyone of which could keep America assessing for four score and 20 years or so.

In Texas, for example, a member of the state Senate hit upon the idea of a dirty movie tax. The more obscene the movie, the higher the tax.

If adopted on a national scale, that levy could easily finance a landing on Mars. Providing we keep importing films from Sweden.

At a Senate subcommittee hearing in Washington this week, Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., suggested that some thought be given to a throwaway tax.

It would finance waste disposal programs by extracting a penny a pound for the sale of products that end up in the junk pile.

The new federal tax bill recently passed by the House would make interest from municipal bonds vulnerable to the federal income tax for the first time.

Now some states are threatening to retaliate by taxing interest on federal securities. Which is one of the most intriguing new tax ideas yet conceived.

A tax on U.S. Treasury bonds and notes would, in effect, be a tax on the national debt. When you consider the size of the national debt, the revenue potentials are staggering.

But if these new taxes aren't enough for the country to thrive on, I have an idea for the ultimate in revenue measures. I call it a taxation tax.

It would be a tax on all of the other taxes, and it should bring us to the millennium.

Marijuana Battle: Make it too Expensive

by LOUIS CASSELS
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. government is using two potent weapons—education and economics—to discourage young people from smoking marijuana.

The educational campaign against "pot" is being waged by the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) through newspapers, television, radio, billboards and other mass communications media.

Its purpose is to remind youth that no one now knows for sure whether marijuana is a dangerous drug and that its use at present is a crime which can land young people in very serious trouble.

The economic campaign is being waged by the Justice Department through a tighter patrol of the U.S. Mexican border.

Its purpose is to diminish the supply of marijuana entering the country so the price will rise to a point where high school and college students no longer can afford to buy it.

The attempt to price marijuana out of the youth market is getting results, according to Justice Department officials. The street price of the illegal drug, normally $10 to $15 an ounce, has climbed in recent months to $25 to $35 an ounce.

It would be higher still, officials say, were it not for the fact that Mexican marijuana, valued by users because it is stronger, is being replaced by home-grown "weed" that is considered distinctly inferior.

Some authorities on drug abuse question whether it's an undiluted blessing to make Mexican marijuana scarce and costly. One result, they say, may be that some young people who have hitherto used only marijuana will now turn to much more dangerous drugs, such as heroin or "speed" (amphetamines).

However, this argument does not appear to carry much weight at present in government circles.

The impact of the educational campaign is not so easily measured by statistics. But Dr. Sidney Cohen, head of the NIMH division of narcotics addiction and drug abuse, is hopeful that it will yield better results in the long run than any amount of police activity.

On a budget of $1 million—peanuts by federal program standards—Cohen's agency has armed 1.4 million American school teachers with 16-page pamphlets that will enable them to give authoritative factual answers to questions students may raise about marijuana and other drugs.

It also has prepared special educational films for school use, and is distributing millions of pamphlets written for students, in student language, on the effects of marijuana.

But the main thrust of the educational program is being carried out through the mass communications media, with the help of vast amounts of free advertising space and air time donated as a public service by newspapers and broadcasting stations.

The project has the active support of the advertising council and the ads were prepared on a non-profit basis by a major national agency, Grey Advertising Inc.

Gerald N. Kurtz, director of communications for the NIMH, said all of the ads have one thing in common: they stick to indisputable facts.

Young people have become so skeptical of adult scare-talk on this subject, Kurtz said, that "only such a factual campaign can bridge the credibility gap."

The NIMH ads, now getting very wide national circulation, carefully avoid any statement about marijuana and its effects that young people might regard as exaggerated or open to scientific dispute.

One of the ads features a picture of a package of cigarettes labeled "Acapulco Gold"—teenage slang for high grade Mexican marijuana. The headline asks: "When are they going to legalize pot?"

The text makes the point that marijuana is a drug whose short-and-long-term effects are only dimly understood and are the subject of sharp controversy among reputable scientists.

"Today, research scientists are studying marijuana's effects on the brain, the nervous system, on chromosomes, and on various organs of the body. They're trying to find out why different people have different reactions to it.

"Maybe it will turn out that there's no reason for it to be illegal. But nobody can be sure until all the facts are in. And until they are, it's a pretty bum risk."

The radio and television spots feature famous sports and entertainment personalities who have donated their services to the campaign. In one, for example, baseball star Willie Mays says:

"As you know it is very tough in the world today, but don't start off with two strikes against you. That's what you can get if you are busted for possession of pot. The marijuana law is very heavy."

A TV spot depicts a loud argument among several people about marijuana, with some defending it as better than alcohol and others repeating the bit about pot leading straight to heroin.

The announcer cuts in to say that both sides are making statements that cannot be supported at present by scientific facts, because there simply isn't enough firm knowledge about marijuana's effects for anyone to speak so dogmatically.

Then he adds:

"But there's one fact you should know now: possession of marijuana in the United States is a felony. Don't treat that fact lightly. Conviction, even with a suspended sentence, can, in some states, prevent you from getting a driver's license, furthering your education, landing a government job, or working in a profession."

"With marijuana, some things that may be important to you in the future can go up in smoke. And that is the truth."

Lady Mayor Rules Over a Man's Town

by PATRICK J. KILLEN
OLONGAPO CITY, Philippines (UPI)—This is a man's town with more night club hostesses than nurses, and a lot more bars than school rooms.

No place for a lady, you'd say. The main street begins at the main entrance of the Subic Bay Naval Base, largest U.S. naval installation in the Western Pacific and chief supply and repair point for ships of the seventh fleet operating off Vietnam. Neon signs and ear-splitting rock music set the tone for the nearly 200,000 off-duty sailors who head for Olongapo looking for fun.

And the town's 8,000 heavily made up bar hostesses — miniskirted or with tight sweaters tucked into even tighter stretch pants — are there to supply the fun.

No place for a lady perhaps, but Olongapo, a city of 130,000 some 90 miles northwest of Manila, has a lady mayor who is as gentle as the town is rough.

Mayor Amelia J. Gordon, a soft spoken attractive woman of 48, came to her job through inheritance, so to speak.

Her husband was James L. Gordon, the product of an American father and a Filipino mother. He was a World War II guerrilla fighter and later a theater and restaurant owner, and he became the first elected mayor of Olongapo City in 1963.

A balding, handsome man, Gordon set out to develop his problem city which grew from 20,000 to 130,000 in 10 years, but on Feb. 20, 1967, Gordon was shot and killed in front of his own city hall by an assassin thought to have been hired by political foes.

Grief stricken, Amelia Gordon and her five children made plans to leave Olongapo—but then the "man's city" decided on Gordon.

In August, 1967, a petition signed by 6,500 Olongapo residents urged Mrs. Gordon to run in the November elections. Although still in mourning, the black-gowned woman went to work and defeated four men for the post.

Since then, Amelia Gordon has had little time for mourning.

Like all Filipino politicians, she sees scores of her constituents daily. Nearly every week she makes a tiring trip to Manila seeking funds from the federal government. And nearly every night, accompanied by police escorts, the mayor sweeps into several night spots to check on conditions.

If Mrs. Gordon finds a dirty kitchen or an illegal electrical connection, the place is closed down.

"Of course, it is a very tough job for me," Mrs. Gordon acknowledged in an interview.

"I ran because of the petition. The thing is that I had been working with some organizations like the Red Cross and the blood bank and had been interested in social work. Yes, I enjoy the job, especially after I accomplished some projects."

The projects have included setting up of four "boys' towns" for orphans or unwanted children and moving squatters away from the river near the naval base. To date more than 160 families have been resettled in "Gordon Heights," where they received government lots and help in building homes.

Dress Code Draft Ready for Board

A draft of a revised dress code for Dist. 88 high schools is expected to be ready for consideration by the board of education at its monthly curriculum meeting Oct. 13.

Committees of students, parents, teachers and administrators in the three schools have worked since last March to draft a dress code that will be mutually acceptable throughout the district, yet will be flexible enough to suit the particular "character" of each school. The schools have been asked to prepare specific addendums — "do and don't" dress guidelines — for board consideration.

York and Addison Trail have prepared their addendums, Supt. R. Bruce Allingham reported at the board's Sept. 22 business meeting, while Willowbrook's is still being put together. The York and Addison Trail addendums are "very similar," Allingham said.

"When The Willowbrook addendum is ready," he said, "we will work with the committees to consolidate the recommendations of the three schools into virtually a single code."

Allingham reminded the board that its attorney, Kenneth Jacobs Jr., said divergent codes at each school could put the district in a disadvantageous position, should litigation be brought against the district.

Arguing for separate addendums, board member Earl Garrett, a member of the pupil personnel policy review committee, said, "We don't want our code to be the same as every other school in the area. There are obvious differences in the characters of the three schools. The public from which the student body comes is different in each school's area."

The board has had a first reading of the basic revised code and has been awaiting the schools' individual addendums.

What to Watch in Flu Bugs

By CHARLES S. TAYLOR

ATLANTA (UPI)—Americans may be prey to two types of flu bugs this season, government experts say, but there probably will be no major epidemic of any type of influenza.

The National Communicable Disease Center (NCDC) Thursday forecast "sporadic" cases of the A-2 Hong Kong flu and the Type-B virus.

The NCDC recommended flu vaccine shots for older persons and those in poor health. The recommended dose contains units of Hong Kong strain antigen against both kinds of flu.

The NCDC, apparently for the first time, acknowledged the limited effectiveness of the vaccine, and said it "should be considered only for persons of any age with certain chronic debilitating conditions . . ."

It said that "until good protection is provided consistently by influenza vaccine, it is not recommended for healthy adults and children."

In this connection, the NCDC noted that preliminary data compiled from trials of the Hong Kong strain vaccine indicated that the vaccine was "considerably less effective than would have been desired."

The Hong Kong flu last winter reached epidemic proportions in 44 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. The NCDC said final figures had not been tabulated but it estimated there were between 45,000 and 60,000 flu related deaths in the winter of 1968-69.

The Hong Kong flu strain represented a major antigenic shift within the Asian flu type. It caught this country and the rest of the world without an effective vaccine.

From Hong Kong, where it was first discovered, it spread rapidly throughout Asia. Jetliner travelers brought it quickly to this country and it spread rapidly in leap-frog fashion to most of the 50 states.

Dr. Allen Brodsky of the Viral Disease Branch of NCDC noted that six states, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Texas, Wisconsin, Nebraska, and Hawaii reported only regional or isolated Hong Kong flu outbreaks last winter. In addition, the state of Nebraska reported no laboratory evidence of this flu strain.

Based on past history of the flu bug, it would be these states that are likely to receive a visit from Hong Kong influenza this year, he said.

The B-Type virus struck mostly in the Midwestern United States in the 1968-69 season. This means that other parts of the nation are more susceptible to Type-B in the winter of 1969-70, Brodsky added.

The Classic Clash--Fenton, Lake Park

LAKE PARK quarterback Glenn Damato was almost a one-man offense against Ridgewood last week accounting for all 32 points in the Lancers' 32-

27 victory. Glenn scored three touchdowns and passed for two others and is currently the Tri-County's top scorer with 34 points.

they made believers soon enough, whipping West Leyden for the first time in their history and then smacking down Luther North and Elmwood Park.

"Everybody'd said they didn't have no offense. Well, they scored 22 points against Luther and 42 against Elmwood and as Lake Park coach Bob Monken said at the time, 'That's 32 points a game, and that ain't bad for a team that can't score.'

"You see, I guess nobody counted on Fenton's youngsters comin' through the way they did. Two juniors, Grant Kupisch and Mark Seggeling, joined with seniors Ken Hartmann and Carlos Villarreal to form just about the best backfield in the league.

"And balance? In their opener that year, Hartmann scored two touchdowns. In the second game, Kupisch scored three, and in the third game it was Seggeling who stepped in to lead the way with three. Now it ain't every day you get three backs like that together.

"AND VILLARREAL was somethin' else, too. A lot of people said he wouldn't even be the number one quarterback, and the doubters included his own coach Bob Appleby. But when the season started he suddenly developed into a mighty good field general. And I remember Appleby sayin', 'Carlos is 100 per cent improved. He's gained a lot of confidence, and the rest of the team had gained confidence in him.'

"Did Carlos have one of those fantastic days and pull it out for Fenton with a brilliant run in the fading moments?" came another question from the crowd.

The old man coughed a few times, and went on as if he hadn't heard.

"And then there was Glenn Damato. Talk about incredible. There was just about nothin' that kid couldn't do. A rifle arm. Speed, power, moves that left tacklers flat on their faces with a handful of grass wondering if he was really built like everyone else.

"EVERY WEEK he'd put on another spectacular for the fans. One time he'd be booming punts 85 yards, next he'd be running for three or four touchdowns or passing for a couple. Led the league in scoring with 34 points in two games — not bad for a quarterback.

"After he'd almost personally destroyed Ridgewood, ran for 139 yards, passed for 113, scored three touchdowns, intercepted two passes, there were amazed spectators who swore they'd never seen the likes of him."

"Did Fenton stop him?" asked a tow-headed youth who sat listening intently, his knees tucked under his chin.

"BUT IT WASN'T all offense, not by a long shot. Fenton and Lake Park both had pretty mean defenses. Why, Fenton went through eight straight quarters without allowing a point at one stage and Lake Park almost annihilated Mundelein, knocking out one quarterback in three plays and throwing the next for 100 yards in losses."

Of course, every great sports story needs a dramatic return, and the old man didn't forget.

"When Fenton played Lake Park back in those days, it was always a blood battle and the wounded were always healed for that one.

"Norb Schaeffer, one of the best trackmen in the state and certainly one of the most dangerous halfbacks missed a couple of games after an auto accident, but he was ready for Fenton.

"AND BOB WISNIEWSKI, an all conference linebacker in '68, cracked a bone in his elbow a couple of weeks before the Lake Park game but everyone knew he'd suddenly heal for the big one."

"Did Schaeffer score five touchdowns?" asked one.

"Did Wisniewski make a game-saving tackle?" asked another.

Again the old man went right on, his entire being obviously transported back to that day in '69.

"MONKEN AND APPLEBY, of course, they knew what the game meant. Monken had said, 'This'll be a big step for either

FENTON QUARTERBACK Carlos Villarreal has guided the Bisons to three or as Fenton bombarded Elmwood straight victories. Last week he scooted 56 yards to score the first touchdown and later passed for another as Fenton scored 42-16 in their first conference test of the year.

Musgrave Claims Title for Season

Elmer Musgrave of Mundelein roared to the 50-lap season championship win at the Waukegan Speedway Saturday night. Rich Sundling, who led until the 10th lap, hung on to finish second in front of Jim Cosman of Waukegan.

Dick Dornbusch of Lake Bluff and Al Hagerty of Libertyville led the first two laps of the feature before Sundling shot into the lead. USAC driver Tom Jones of Northbrook took second on the fifth lap, but Musgrave went by in the seventh and was in the lead three laps later.

The closest contest in the feature was among Vern Browne of Wauconda, Scott Moore of Mundelein, and Al Gutche of Pleasant Prairie, Wis. These three ran nose-to-tail for 26 laps before Moore spun in the 33rd lap. Gutche finally passed Browne in the 44th lap for fourth spot and Browne took fifth.

Paddock Pigskin Picks

by PADDOCK'S SPORTS STAFF

Conant and Arlington gridders weren't the only ones smarting from the challenges of their opponents after last weekend.

Foes Forest View and Wheeling also proved Paddock's consensus to be some odd degrees less than perfect with their surprise showings against the Cougars and Cards respectively. In fact, not one of seven sports writers picked the Cougars to score less than three TDs although they eventually wound up falling to the Falcons 7-0.

Six scribes also figured the Cardinals to win big and while Fearless Fred only missed the point spread by one, he was 27 points away from the 0-0 deadlock that finally evolved last Friday.

Still, the prognostications of the writers over a two week period — headed up by Heartless Harold's 13-3 mark — stood at a respectable 76-36 and the consensus itself at 12-4 for .750 went back out on a branch with the following selections for this weekend's action:

Arlington at Glenbard North — The Panthers figure to continue on their vegetarian diet, mainly eating a lot of grass. Even Cardinals can be birds of prey in the Glenbard garden.

Conant at Prospect — The Knight armor can expect to collect a few more dents, but this time not without extracting a little Cougar fur at the same time. Swords and claws will be equally dulled after this skirmish.

Fremd at Elk Grove — The Vikings will stage another successful raid into 214 territory.

Hersey at Wheeling — In a genuine neighborhood cat and dog fight the canine species figures to do the mauling. About the only consolation kitty might get is that he has a few more lives left afterwards.

Palatine at Forest View — It appears that there is more clear water ahead for one band of buccaners.

Lake Park at Fenton — Even lances have been known to bounce off a buffalo's thick hide. The visitors may find a quick mark or two Saturday, but it's just going to prompt an inescapable stampede.

St. Viator at Marist — Bulls seeing red and Lions seeing Redskins are apt to bring on the same effect. Even a tomahawk won't help the home tribe Sunday.

You could read the feeling in the happy faces. The 36-0 lead in Bell points the Bisons had earned Tuesday was just a beginning — this was the start of the year that would return the Bell to Bensenville.

The visiting athletes quietly left the field and boarded their bus for home. For them, it had been the worst of days.

For Fenton, coach John Kurtz said it all: "It's a day like this that makes it all worthwhile."

The battle for the Bell was officially on, and Fenton had the lead. A glorious day. And now the cross country squad would retreat to obscurity for another year. Their job was done.

Blue and gold crepe hung festively. Drums boomed and cymbals crashed. A small crowd milled nervously off the edge of the football field. The hour of confrontation was near.

Cheerleaders stood in an isolated group, waiting, chatting, occasionally practicing some kicks, some steps, and then stopping as quickly as they'd begun.

A late afternoon sun twinkled through the trees, offering glimpses of a flaming crimson glow that burst forth on a brilliant show of nature's proudest season.

And suddenly the wait was over.

A bus pulled slowly into the parking lot. The enemy had arrived. Lake Park athletes piled off the bus with their cheerleaders and their fans. The gladiators toled no shoulder pads or hip pads or helmets. They came dressed lightly, but wearing the solemnity of warriors.

Cross country is not a sport of violent contact. Glamor and glory are reserved for others. It is a grueling, demanding, supreme test of endurance and stamina. And it is perhaps the pinnacle of individual achievement, of sacrifice without recognition, of the kind of quiet strength and desire that make for greatness.

One day each year Lake Park and Fenton warriors get their moment of fanfare and attention — when they compete against each other.

Tuesday was the day for '69. So the crepe was hung at the finish line and a few pieces of a band were there and the cheerleaders were there and a few dozen fans were there.

And despite the absence of the tumultuous crowd, you could feel the excitement and the tension there.

This was the first test of a new year of sports competition between Fenton and Lake Park. The Milwaukee Bell slate had been wiped clean four months before. Lake Park had won it for the sixth straight year.

And now they were starting over.

For Fenton, six straight years of bitterness and defeat had built to this day. For Lake Park, six straight years of pride and supremacy. And you could see it in the faces of the athletes and the fans — this was the one they wanted to win.

For once, cross country was every bit as important as football. For once, the time-light was theirs. What they did today could not be overshadowed by what might transpire on the football field Saturday. Tuesday they carried the early hopes of their respective schools in the annual pursuit of the Bell.

The runners crowded together at the starting line. The gun sounded, and they sped off down the cinder path. They circled the football field and then disappeared through the gate at the western end and into the trees outside, the Bison gold and the Lancer blue and white barely visible as they moved seemingly in slow motion, like a jet in the distant sky.

Down a wooded path, out into the open again at the Fenton baseball diamond, around the field, past the gridders who stopped in their practice to yell encouragement to their cross country brothers, back through the east gate, and onto the track again.

Then out to the west and into the woods and down the path and across the diamond and around the field and back through the gate.

The long, arduous journey continued. Some fell by the wayside, Most stayed in the race. Finally the last lap, through the east gate, around the track, and into the finish chute.

Both times the man to break the tape wore the Fenton colors — first Rick Terhune in the frosh-soph meet and then Bob Lemaire in the varsity. Both won easily. Then came the rest of the field. The scores were totaled at the finish line.

Fenton won the frosh-soph race 21-37. And then they won the varsity race 24-31. There was jubilation in the Bison ranks.

"We did it," they shouted, hugging one another, congratulating one another. The Fenton crowd came out of the stands to mill with their heroes, shaking hands, patting them on the back, sharing in the moment of triumph. It had been a long, long time since Fenton had swept both levels in cross country competition.

Forest View Hosts Key Clash

Powerful Pirates Face Formidable Falcons

by PAUL LOGAN

Although Forest View's defensive team did a masterful job stopping Conant's Jim McGraw last Saturday, it will receive its supreme test tonight at 8:00 when Palatine's ZAP combination comes to town.

The Z.A.P., which stands for the Pirates' offensive trio of Zajonc (Guy), Andriano (Chris) and Patch (Tom), has zapped three straight opponents this season. Falcon coach Paul Jordan knows plenty about this threesome and he's plenty concerned.

"You have to worry about their passing attack of Zajonc and Andriano and also their ground game led by Patch. This is the whole story with Palatine, they've got good balance."

Palatine, which has destroyed Glenbard North (43-12), Arlington (11-0) and Glenbard North (60-0) in succession, will bring an eighth place Chicagoland ranking and the favorite's role in the Mid-Suburban League into this evening's clash.

Still, the Pirates are only one-third of the way toward taking the title away from Arlington and the Arlington Heights area. Forest View and Hersey are also contenders and both stand in the Pirates' way toward an outright crown.

The Falcons, which are their most concern right now, are presently basking in the glory of their first victory of the season. Their defense has finally come of age and the atmosphere of the upset covers the campus.

Out to stop the "Zappers" will be such defensive stickouts as tackle Bill Michalek, who had eight individual and four assist tackles against Conant, and tackle Greg "Swanee" Swanson, who has been averaging eight individual and five assist tackles a game.

"We'll give them a good game defensively," assured defensive coach Art Klein.

The Falcon stoppers will be setting their sites on quarterback Zajonc (12 of 26 completions for 244 yards and four TDs), left end Andriano (eight catches, 161 yards and two TDs), and halfback Patch (41 carries for 270 yards, three TDs, and two catches for 42 yards and one TD).

Mr. Patch has lighted the scoreboard plenty this year with 44 points. But while the Pirates have been racking up the points, their defense has been most stingy. Since the Glenbrook North game, which saw the Spartans score twice, the Palatine defense has not allowed anyone over the goal.

The stalwarts for the Pirates are linebackers Bob Carr and Bill Hathaway, tackles Chuck Drake and Mike Selsky and Dave Hasbach's replacement — Bob Hall. All have fine credentials with Carr leading them out as the top tackler. In the meeting with the Cards, Carr should have been arrested for hit-and-run-driving for he ran down 13 by himself and was assisted on 12 other tackles.

Herstedt is plenty proud of his boys' defensive showings of late but he is aware that the Falcons have a comparable crew.

"We know that they play tough defense. I guess they have since they shut out Conant."

He also knows the capabilities of the Falcons' offense. Leading it is quarterback Rich Olson, who presently is tops in yards passing in the MSL (307), second in completion percentage (.533) and first in total offense (394).

Olson's chief receivers, who will be trying to out-catch Andriano, are Wayne Meier (seven catches for 169) and Rich Posinger (five for 98 yards). Andriano is right between them with six receptions and 112 yards in league competition.

Posinger has also been carrying the ball well of late with 59 yards against Conant. He will be joined in the backfield by fullback John Ingo and halfback Howard Mock.

"I think that it is to Forest View's advantage to catch us this week," said Herstedt. "They beat a good team last week and they might have the momentum to carry over for this week."

"But we're in pretty good shape this week, too. We didn't get anybody hurt and we got a lot of boys to play against Glenbard North, so spirits are high."

It promises to be some kind of ball game. Palatine has a seven-game winning streak dating back to October of '68 and Forest View has one dating back to September of '69 — one game!

Somebody is going to get zapped, the question is who?

"HE'S ALL MINE." That's what Forest View's Bill Michalek (89) is probably saying as he nails Conant fullback Mike O'Malley in last Saturday's low-scoring encounter at Conant. The Falcons held Jim McGraw out of the end zone, and racked up O'Malley to just 27 yards rushing, kept the Cougars' their first victory of the year, 7-0. (Photo by Bob Finch)

Unbeaten Lions Face Skins' Challenge

by CHUCK WILLOUR
Even a journey of a thousand miles, the immortal Charlie Chan once said, must begin with a single step.
In their journey to the Chicagoland Prep League football crown, the St. Viator Lions have taken that initial step, last week blanking league foe St. Francis de Sales, 26-0. The Lions' journey is now well underway.
But Sunday at Eckersall Stadium in Chicago, a band of Indians will be trying to waylay the Lion trek — a band of Indians from Marist High School. The Redskins are also en route to the CPL title, they feel, and they would like to head off the Lions before they get any further down the trail.

And when two teams meet who both believe they have the makings for a conference champion, then you know a vicious battle can be expected.

The Redskins come into Sunday's fray boasting an undefeated record. Evergreen Park, Chicago Bogan and Luther South all have fallen before the mighty Redskin attack. The Lions boast the same 3-0 mark, chalking up impressive victories over Hersey, Argo and St. Francis while holding their opponents to only one touchdown.
The two squads are similar in other respects. Leading the Reskin attack will be quarterback Mike Plahm, who has thrown close to 500 yards so far this season, while Lion field general Mike Abinanti has tossed for 262 yards and hit on 50 per cent of his passes.

Both signal callers also have fine ends to throw to. Plahm can count on speedy Bryan Hogan to pull in his share of passes, while lanky Mark Zakula (6-4, 195) is being touted as a potential all-stater. Abinanti, though, has an equally fine deep receiver in junior Mike Pettenuzzo, and Tom Anderson will step in at the other end following the injury this week to all CPL receiver Denny Foreman that has sidelined him for the year.

The major difference between the two teams comes in the rest of the backfield. The Redskins rely on 5-10, 165 pound full-back Harry McCabe for most of their yardage on the ground, while the Lions can count on any number of runners to chew up the yards. Dick Aylward, Gerry Richardson, Larry Quinnett, Bill Madden, Tom Gillespie and Ed Klingberg can all run with authority, and Lion coach Joe Gliwa isn't afraid to use any one of them. Going at halfbacks for Marist will be speedsters Gary Rekasis and George Chamraz.

sites on the Redskin line by more than 10 pounds per man.
The edge on defense might also go to the Lions, at least if past results are any indication. The Lion defensive unit has yet to give up a tally, the single TD being scored against Viator coming against the kickoff unit. The Redskins, though, have had to fight from behind in two of their contests and managed to blank only one opponent, Bogan 26-0.

Leading the Lion defensive unit are the linebackers, Klingberg, Ostermann and Wilkin. These three, feels Lion mentor Gliwa, "are three of the best I've ever had. Klingberg has to be one of the best in the state, and Ostermann and Wilkin complement him perfectly." The Redskin defense is anchored by defensive end Ed Rogowski and linebacker Tim Higgins.

This is the most important game of the as yet young season, felt both Gliwa and Pietrzak. "They definitely look like the class of the league to me," said Pietrzak. "They have quickness, a good quarterback, good running back, a good line, and a very, very sound defense."

Gliwa responded: "This is our biggest game of the year. If we want to go anywhere in the league, we have to beat Marist. We have to stop their quarterback and their running game, can't let them get any long gains against us."

And both men added, "It's going to be a rough, tough ball game. It's hard to say how it's going to end up — it's just going to be a battle all the way."

The Lions have to win this battle to take their second step of their journey — a journey to the CPL grid crown.

FOUR HUNDRED pounds of trouble is what St. Viator tackles Pat McGrath and John Vandenberg offer opposing teams. In these two, Lion coach Joe Gliwa may very well have the best pair of tackles in the area, McGrath standing 6-3 and rocking the scales at 215, and Vandenberg, who has broken a blocking sled twice in three years, packing 195 pounds on his 5-9 frame.

Resident Posts 1st Hole-in-One At Buffalo Grove

"It was the first one this season and probably ever."

Those were the words of Buffalo Grove Golf Club's head professional, Al Griffith, concerning a recent hole-in-one at the fairly new course.

Neil Hopkins of Buffalo Grove notched the golfer's dream on the eighth hole, a par three, 150-yarder. He used a seven iron. Hopkins, however, didn't fade on the next hole like so many do after such a shot. He posted a par four to finish with a fine 43.

Witnessing the feat was his son, Mark, and Rick Wiedeman, also of Buffalo Grove.

Buffalo Grove was opened last year in late summer, so the hole-in-one took just about a year to materialize.

Cards Hope Offense Clicks at Glenbard

by CHUCK WILLOUR

The whole thing is vaguely reminiscent of that classic Western scene where two cowpokes — one in black and the other in white — square off in a crowded, smoke-filled saloon.

"Okay, McBrady," one draws, "I'm giving you fair warning. This town ain't big enough for two of us."

Basically that's the situation facing Arlington and Glenbard North tomorrow afternoon when the Cards travel to Carol Stream to take on the Panthers. It's a showdown between two Mid-Suburban League teams who have not been able to get their offenses clicking. The Cards have yet to score against MSL competition, and the Panthers have done little better, scoring just one TD and a two-point conversion two weeks ago against Conant.

But the MSL is too small a league and the Cards too strong a unit to allow this situation to last any longer than tomorrow afternoon.

At least that's what Panther Coach Don Elmore feels. "They should have scored two or three times against Wheeling and at least once against Palatine," Elmore said. "Arlington's a much better team than they've shown so far. I know they're capable of scoring."

Card mentor Bob Walther hopes Elmore is right about that, and thinks that tomorrow's game may just give the team the opportunity to prove to itself that it can score.

"We thought we could get our offense rolling last week," Walther remarked, "but problems — rain, fumbles, penalties — stymied us. We're hoping to get on the right track this week, though."

The Cards actually have done just about everything with the ball offensively except put it across the goal line. Last week against Wheeling they moved up and down the field virtually at will but could not punch the ball home.

The Panthers, on the other hand, have not been able to move at all. "We're puncheon," said Elmore. "We haven't been able to go anywhere at all so far. We feel we have good running backs but the blocks in the line just haven't been there — no holes."

The "punchless" Panther attack will receive a boost for tomorrow's game, however, with the return of the school's best athlete, Don Anastasi, who had seen limited action last week because of an injured knee. Another factor enters into the Panther picture in that tomorrow is Glenbard North's homecoming — their first ever. "The kids will want to do their best for this game," Elmore observed.

The Card offense might also get a shot in the arm with the arrival on the varsity squad of Terry Ormsbee, son of Wheeling Athletic Director Bus Ormsbee. In Jayvee action this year, the sophomore quarterback has shown an excellent passing arm, and Walther expects that his varsity inaugural will prove whether or not his passing is up to varsity standards.

Joining Ormsbee in the backfield this week will be running backs Mike De Zonna and Scott Douglass while either Craig Moritz or Mike D'Angelo will be going at slotback.

The Card line will be the same as last week's, with Chuck Donchess and either Tom Sayre or Bill Welton running at ends, Kevin Ellerson and Jack Hult at tackles, Carl Anderson and Pete Harth at guards, and Jeff Seileck at center.

Besides Anastasi, the Panthers will have Jeff Dowd at quarterback, Al Hogue at one running back, and Steve Horan at the other. In the line, junior Eric Malmberg will handle the ball-snapping chores, Jim Butties and Jay Eddy will go at guards, Dave Litzinger and Frank Savagnaga at tackles, and Jim Pavlka and Terry Horan at ends.

Both starting lineups impressed the coach of the other team, but where the deciding factor may lie in the game is in the two teams' defenses. Even though the Card offense has been unable to score, the Arlington defensive unit, led by co-captain Mike Hadley, is probably the league's best. And Glenbard's? Well, the Panthers have given up 108 points in two games.

Yep, it sure looks like the scoring draught at Arlington is about to come to an end.

Bisons Bag Bell Lead

"I'm elated. The boys really came through. What can you say when they give you an effort like that?"

Fenton cross country coach John Kurtz made no effort to conceal his delight Tuesday after his harrier squads had scored two victories over arch-rival Lake Park on the Bensenville course to take a 3-0 lead in Milwaukee Bell points.

"In other years we just haven't produced as far as cross country was concerned. But we had it today. It was just a beautiful effort by everybody. The season has a long way to go, but we can count it a success right now."

Earning top honors for the victorious Bisons were Rick Terhune and Bob Lemaire. Rick won the frosh-soph race easily, Bob the varsity run with about 40 seconds to spare.

Lake Park captured the two and three spots behind Lemaire, but it wasn't enough to avert a 24-31 loss. Carter Nottke took second in 14:52, 40 seconds behind blazin' Bob, and Dennis Dempsey was third.

Fenton took fourth through sixth with Bill McDonald, Jim Duvall, and Gary Albertson, Lake Park's David Wall was seventh, Fenton's Phil Lord eighth, and Lake Park's Greg Perkowski and Jim Plesia ninth and tenth.

The Lancers also took second in the frosh-soph meet with Ken Smiegowski trailing Terhune across, but after that the Bisons dominated in a 21-37 victory.

The number three, four, five, eight, and nine spots went to Fenton in the persons of Bob Richardson, Dave Bacagaluppi, Ray Basso, Glen Smith, and Juszcyk.

Behind Smiegowski, Lake Park's top runners were Jim Flexman (sixth), Jim Schaul (seventh), Louis Spizzirri (tenth), and Crabtree (twelfth).

Fremd Student Wins Bears Football in Grid Contest

A Fremd High School student, Joe Samojidny, topped other entries last week for the top prize in the third week of the Paddock Publications Football Forecast.

Joe's reward for the accurate pigskin predictions will be a football autographed by all of the Chicago Bears — the first-place prize every week throughout the season.

Of the 18 games to be predicted in last week's contest (eight high school and ten college), two ended in ties — Wheeling — Arlington and Minnesota — Ohio State. Thus, those two were scratched as only winners are chosen.

Samojidy correctly predicted the outcomes of 15 out of 18 games. His only miss was California's 17-14 victory over Indiana.

Two others — Larry Nomellini of Des Plaines and Stan Knodle of Palatine — also were right on 15 or 16. But Samojidy was named the winner on the tie-breaker — total points in the Bears-Cardinals game on Sunday. His guess was 33 points, and 37 were scored.

Nomellini's only mistake was in picking Conant over Forest View. The latter won that one, 7-0. Knodle's miss was the same as Samojidy's — the California-Indiana tilt.

Because Samojidy won, he will not be eligible to enter the contest again this year. But everyone else is.

Try your luck — and test your knowledge — in this week's contest. You may be the proud possessor of an autographed football by this time next week.

Four Squads Without Loss As Midget Grid Half Over

The Giants, Chiefs, Vikings, Illini and Wildcats remained undefeated as the Mount Prospect Midget Football Association autumnal madness reached the half-way mark with the completion of the fourth week of play last Sunday. Other winners included the Colts, Steelers, Redskins, 49ers, Badgers, Boilermakers and Hawkys.

SENIOR DIVISION

The high-flying Cardinals and the charging Colts fought to a scoreless deadlock in a penalty and fumble-marred contest. The game's biggest threat was posed by the Colts as they traveled 70 yards on Pete Paubick's passes to Buddy Strobel and Bruce Metge in the last 19 seconds. Linebacker Mike Zielinski, tackle Tom Nehmzow and end Jeff Leeman stopped the hard running Cardinal backs on many occasions. Randy Carlson and Mike Radoli performed well on the offensive eleven.

Halfbacks Bob Moore and Mark Wegner jaunted for considerable Redbird yardage as QB Randy Cherwin mixed his plays up well. Penalties wiped out several good gains. Defensive ends Jim Wade and Bill Novak plus tackle Bob Stephens, contributed some excellent, hardnosed tackling.

The Giants capitalized on early game fumbles as they beat the Bears 34-0. Kenny Holan rambled for three touchdowns and Tom Maher added two scores. Ray Meinsen dashed for another as he grabbed a punt blocked by Gary Hollenbein. The extra points were made by Rod Kiolhassa and John McGinnis. Gordon Reitz, Frank Rano, Keith Johnson and Vinc O'Brien did well on offense too. Defensive demons included Kurt Haaland, Bob Ochab, Mike Bernard and Scott Hager.

The building Bears tried gamely to get an offense rolling with Scott Gobielle directing play. Halfback Bernie Borschke displayed some fine running and pass receiving behind Tony Esposito's blocking. Scott Hetherington and Ed Fitzsimmons charged and tackled hard.

JUNIOR DIVISION

The solid Steelers blanked the Rams 19-0 on a pair of long runs by George Bicego and a criss-cross pass to Jimmy Altermatt. Signal caller Doug Spahr, Randy Galtisch and Mike Oldenburg were standout blockers. Mike Brown, Guery Watson, Phil Bono and Nick Richardson were tough on defense.

Tim Michaels, Bob Schachner, Ron Riedler, Rick Scott, Dave Wiselo and Ron Bentall were among the top performers for Kurt Telchert's Rams.

Touchdowns by Rick Chuppek, John Vojta, Andy Leicht and Rick Carlson sparked the Redskins to a 23-6 scalping of the Browns. Sharp blocking was provided by Scott Savage. Joe Gattas and Don Grasse made the most tackles and Mark Crompton gathered in two loose fumbles.

Bears QB Jon Anda sent Jim Tagney in on a plunge for a solo tally as Clyde Mundt set up the score. Heads up defense was shown by Perry Douvris and Tim Gosch.

Mike Starkey and Larry Ostling accounted for all the points as the 49ers edged by the Cowboys 14-7 behind the crunching blocking of Ken Lopata, Kevin Rogers and Jim Whinery. Good penetration and pass coverage was exhibited by Kevin-Gillogly, Pat Gorman and Bill Stephen.

Ricky Reames and Pat O'Connell tallied the touchdown and extra point respectively for the Cowboys. The Thoma brothers, Dave and Don, and Paul Hellerich played well both ways.

The Vikings made it four in a row on Steve Spielmann's run and pass touchdowns as they downed the Eagles 12-0. Mark Kranz, Tim Broderick, Mike Wood and Jim Karl moved the ball well too. Sticky defenders included Mike Grieb, Kirk Sneedon and Mike Szukalla.

Jeff Conway and Roger Patterson were the Eagles offensive attack. Robust charging and tackling was credited to Jim Recker, Joe Holloway and John Hamilton.

"Bo" Broeren and George Miscevic registered two touchdowns apiece as the Chiefs overpowered the Jets 28-0. John Appleton blocked, ran and caught passes to aid the cause. John and Ray Demmert and Mike Japewich tackled hard, recovered fumbles and made interceptions.

The Jets threatened early but couldn't score. Bill Mitsos, Chip Heinemann, Steve Eggesdal, Steve Nerby, Jim Gajda and Mike Miller played tough in a losing cause.

BANTAM DIVISION

Pete Petran's Badgers walloped the Wolverines 27-6 as Paul Izban, Bob Lopotko (2), and Dan Keller hit the end zone successfully. Big holes were opened by John Rohrer, John Ruckstaetter and Ken Stephens. Mark Adams, Rick Reed, Tom Wabik and "Chip" Crooks contained the Wolves most of the time.

Ken Schalla's pass grab set up Rick Krumtinger's lone Wolverine counter. Other standouts were Tom Franson, Walter Ciosek, Dan Lessner, Don Bach and John Baron.

The Boilermakers blanked the Gophers

21-0 as Chris Mihok (TD), Doug Shattuck (TD), Dan Eggesdal (TD), Mark Lockowitz (2 P.A.T.) and Chuck Arredia (P.A.T.) made all the points. Tom Redig, Pat Lucansky and Tom Van Wazer were "eye-ball to eyeball" performers.

Tom Martindale, Brian Kudalis and Roger Ullman on offense and Mike Zielinski, Tommy Smith and Lance Dahlke on defense were the Gophers steady six.

Six pointers by Tim Dixon (2), John Skwarek and John Maestranzi made possible the Hawkys 25-7 victory over the Hoosiers. Jeff Martinski, Brian Watson, Dave Groch, Pat Doyle, Harry Arnold and Ed Krikorian were all hard hitters.

Tracy Wetz ran the end for the Hoosiers only touchdown. Spirited play was shown by Mike Scott, Chris Tabbert, Tim Horan, Eddie Holt and Kurt Hoefler.

Six scored as the Illini rolled over the Buckeyes 38-0. They were: Lou Citro, Jeff Laver, Tim Chmura, Chris Hanson, Steve Wilkinson and Dave Peterson. Crisp tackling was accounted for by Brian Gayre, Dick Dolan and Mike Dankowski.

Jeff Gibson, John Pettit, Brad Hoegreve, Tim Crews, Dan Ayers and Mike Carroll were the Buckeyes steadiest stalwarts.

Ron Ash tallied twice as the Wildcats powered to an 18-0 win over the Spartans. Scott Spielmann got the other. Good work was added by Steve Gentzler, Chuck Brunner, Mark Gillman, Dick Paulus, Andy Loos and Mark Bowen.

Jeff Patterson and Mike Meyer ran effectively for the Spartans behind Roger Baron's key blocking. Jeff Olman, Marty Boyles and Joe Hamilton were toughies on defense.

Ski School Opens Oct. 1 in Lisle

For Chicago-area skiers who are already beginning to feel the itch and can hardly wait for the first snow to blow, the indoor slope at Four Lakes Village, Lisle, is the answer.

John Verrey, director of the ski school at the southwest suburban recreation area, announced today that the indoor facility will open Wednesday, Oct. 1.

For the experienced skier, the slope is a great place to begin limbering up and getting ready for the forthcoming winter season. For the beginner, the school run in conjunction with the artificial hill is the perfect way to get rid of the novice edge.

Both Verrey and most of his staff have been certified by the Central United States Ski Association. Their school is the only one in the Chicago area offering expert instruction both to novices as well as advanced skiers.

Classes at the school are held everyday. The price for three separate one hour lessons, including equipment, is $12.

The first class covers such basics as how to choose the proper equipment; how to walk; how to fall and get up again; how to get in position for straight downhill running; and how to execute the basic snow plow stop.

During the second session, students are instructed in the fundamental herringbone climb and review the proper techniques of walking and snow plowing.

The third class, in addition to covering proper limbering-up exercises, also covers right and left snow plow turns and edge control.

Throughout the three-course program, safety and enjoyment are continually stressed.

In addition to the school, which is located in the chalet at the apartment complex, Verrey also maintains a complete rental service providing boots, skis and poles for beginning skiers. He also operates a ski boutique in the same building.

Paddock Leaders Try to Break Away

Maybe this will finally be the week someone begins to make some real headway in the two Paddock Classic Traveling Leagues when they resume warfare Saturday evening.

No team has been able to break away from the pack up to now. The league leaders in both the men's and ladies' loops have changed hands often and whoever does happen to be in first place at the moment never has a very secure lead.

In fact, that has been the case from top to bottom of the standings. No team is far ahead of the next one down. The result is a couple of dandy races in which just about anything could happen.

The largest lead held by any team this year in either league was the three-point margin Morton Pontiac of the men's league had last week at this time. That cushion is down to one point after Morton was shut out by sixth-place Langlo's Refinishing last Saturday. Morton will be hard-pressed to hold that lead as any one of five other teams have a chance to grab it away come Saturday.

The same kind of situation exists in the women's league, with Girard-Bruno also at the top by a narrow point. This league is even tighter, as EVERY team is mathematically in striking distance of taking over first place Saturday.

The current average leaders are Ray Olson with a 202 standard and Lorrie Koch with 192. Last week's top bowlers were Ted Geiersbach and Shirley Schultz.

Saturday, the men will congregate at Beverly Lanes in Arlington Heights and the ladies at Elk Grove Bowl. The schedules look like this:

MEN: Gaare Oil vs. Morton Pontiac. Aladdin's Lamp Restaurant at Flying Carpet Motor Inn vs. Uncle Andy's Cow Palace. Snack Time Restaurant vs. Thunderbird Pro Shop, and Langlo's Refinishing vs. Buick in Evanston.

WOMEN: Sims Bowl vs. Morton Pontiac. Des Plaines Lanes vs. Girard-Bruno, Duchess Beauty Salon vs. Kemmerly Realty, and Doyle's-Striking Lanes vs. Lattot Chevrolet.

WIND Radio Airs Playoffs

Exclusive radio coverage in Chicago of the National League divisional playoff series will be broadcast on WIND. It was announced today by Program Manager Robert Mooney.

The best of five series will pit the winners of the National League's Eastern division, the New York Mets, and the Western division winner, the Atlanta Braves.

Coverage begins Saturday, Oct. 4 with the opening game of the series, which will be aired on WIND (Game Time 3 p.m.) immediately following the Illinois-Iowa State game from Champaign.

Games then are scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 5 at 3 p.m. (CDT) and Monday through Wednesday, Oct. 6-8 in Atlanta. The starting time for these contests will be 12 noon (CDT).

Fremd to Visit for Grove's Homecoming

by PAUL LOGAN

Fremd's coach Al Ratcliff and Elk Grove's coach Don Schnake have something in common — mutual fear of the other's team.

"Elk Grove is the best O-3 team I've seen in two years," said the Vikings' new mentor. "We respect them a lot."

"They score you to death because of their explosiveness," said the Grove's second-year coach. "They've got exceptional team speed."

And so with that pre-game admiration taken care of, the two teams will tear into each other this Saturday at 2 p.m. at Elk Grove.

Both squads have something going for them in this Mid-Suburban League struggle — the Vikings are undefeated in conference play (2-0) and are entertaining title aspirations; the Grenadiers (0-2) are celebrating Homecoming and are seeking to please the expected large gathering with the first win of the season.

The Grenadiers had chances to come out on top in all three games this season, but bad breaks spelled their downfall each time. In order to turn this trend around, the defense must come through, Schnake said.

"The defense is going to have to start reacting — that's the main thing if we're going to go any place this season," he said.

Ratcliff said he thought the Grove had a pretty sound defense and added this:

"They have some real good defensive players in No. 83 (Eugene Pinder), No. 65 (Bill Kasallis) and No. 22 (Rich Kruse)."

And these as well as the other eight defenders will be all "real good" in this second Homecoming ever for the Vikings will be out to show they are a better team than in the Prospect squeaker (7-6) victory. However, they don't need to show off any for Schnake for he knows what they can do:

"They've got something we don't have — the ability to score from anywhere on the field at any time, particularly Menick (Mike) and Moloznik (Bob)."

"I tell you a lot of people are overlooking this kid Menick who runs the 100 in 10.1 and plays end. People forget about him and just think about No. 5 (Moloznik)."

The Vikings' outstanding end has grabbed off eight passes for 141 yards and three touchdowns so far this season — credentials that anyone must respect.

And old No. 5 has a like number of statistics that he's racked up from his tailback or wingback positions. He's gained 323 yards on 65 carries for a 5.8 average, notched five touchdowns, and caught two passes for 59 yards.

"People are just waking up to the fact that he's (Moloznik) pretty decent," the Grove mentor added.

Posing the biggest quick-scoring threat for the Grove is the passing combination of Dave Ristau to Eugene Pinder. That duo has contributed two aerial TDs to the Grove cause in the last two outings.

Ristau has thrown for a score in all contests for 180 yards in all. Pinder has accounted for 117 of those yards with nine catches. Ristau might have connected more with his big end but the rain last Friday forced his bombs off target.

Coming on real strong in recent weeks has been the running of Kevin Byrne. The 161-pound left halfback totaled 72 yards against Hersey and 99 against Wheeling. Presently he ranks fifth in the league with a 5.9 average.

"We expect them to use the dive play a lot and then use a counter off the dive," said Ratcliff. "We'll have to stop those two plays if we're going to stop them."

TIME: Preliminary starts at noon; varsity game follows at approximately 2 p.m.

PLACE: Elk Grove High School, 500 W. Elk Grove Blvd. and Arlington Heights Road, Elk Grove Village.

COACHES: Fremd, Al Ratcliff; Elk Grove, Don Schnake

When the Grove gets down close to the goal, look for Bob Smith to cause some trouble. Last week he had a fantastic day at tackle making three stops inside the five-yard line.

Mike Bellomo, another defensive tackle, will be out for four weeks with a broken hand. Mark Wicklund (230 pounds) will be filling in for him.

Possibly missing from the Grove lineup will be Bill LaMont, who is plagued with a bad back, and Jeff Froyland, who hurt his shoulder. However, Schnake wasn't sure just who would be substituting for them.

"We've got to stop the Menick and Moloznik combination if we're going to win this one," Schnake pointed out. "If it turns into they type of offensive show it did last year, it could be an interesting game."

However, Schnake is hopeful that this time around his boys can reverse the '68 score of 33-21.

FOREST VIEW'S Don Reid latches on to standout Conant halfback Jim McGraw as two other Falcon defenders close in during last Saturday's contest on the Cougar turf.

McGraw, who was held to his lowest rushing mark of the season (128), was allowed to cross the goal line as the Falcons surprised the Cougars, 7-0.

Marion Jayne Takes First in Plane Race

Mrs. Marion Jayne of Palatine, with Mrs. Arlene Odegard of Elgin, took first place in the speed category of the 10th Fairladies Annual Indian Race, an airplane race held at Richmond, Ind.

The object of the speed race was to fly faster than the speed chosen for the plane. Mrs. Jayne flew her Piper Comanche over a 191 mile triangular course at a speed of 166.42433 or 5.42433 above her chosen speed for her model of plane.

Knights Eleven Seeks First Win Tonight

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

Before the 1969 football season got underway, Prospect and Conant were considered to be two contenders for the Mid-Suburban League championship.

And then a not so funny thing happened to the Knights and the Cougars on their way to the opening game of the season... both teams lost their record setting quarterbacks. Mike Gaffney moved to Ohio from Prospect and Scott Johnson moved to the sidelines with a broken wrist from under the Conant center.

Replacing Gaffney at Prospect have been Stu White and Bob Kline while John MacDonald and Buster Roggenbuck have been handling the signal calling chores for Conant. Prospect has an 0-3 record and Conant is 1-1-1. They meet tonight at Prospect.

White has emerged as the quarterback who has best moved the Knight offense. Last week he completed nine out of 16 passes for 100 yards. But He Knights lost 7-6 to Fremd.

Conant, meanwhile, opened with a 6-6 tie against Lake Park with quarterback MacDonald scoring the only touchdown. Against Glenbard North, Conant won 44-8 but it was Roggenbuck who led the way for most of the TD's. Last week Conant lost 7-0 to Forest View. MacDonald completed two passes. Roggenbuck none.

Conant coach Ralph Losee has not been overly concerned with his passer's passing, however. The problem has been his receivers' receiving. "We dropped one ball on the goal line and one on the 10 yard line," he said. "We can't win games doing that."

The head Cougar mentor has been pleased with his team's offensive display — for two plays at a time. "It seems that we always do the job on first and second down," he said. "But when we have third down and short yardage, we always seem to have a breakdown somewhere. The boys have to remember that they must go all-out on every play, not just two out of three."

Losee has not decided on which of his quarterbacks will start against Prospect, but he has no doubts about one halfback and his fullback. Jim McGraw, whose total rushing yardage has been 165, 179 and 128, will assuredly be at halfback and Mike O'Malley, who powered his 200 pounds for 134 yards in the second game of the season, will play fullback. The flanker will either be Tom Rambo or Rich Gallas.

Dave Kellermeyer and Dave Steinhoff or Mike Peters will be at end, the tackles will be strongmen Fred Beasley and Jim Orendorff, the guards will be Duke Martin and Tom Caprice and Brian Rucks will play center.

Prospect coach Don Williams is respectful of the Cougar attack, realizing that it can be explosive. "We've got to do the same thing with McGraw that we did with Moloznik (Bob Moloznik of Fremd who was held to 52 yards) last week. Stop him (McGraw) and I think you'll stop their offense. Of course, we'll have to watch out for their fullback and quarterback's passing, too. But McGraw's the one we have to stop."

Williams was happy with his squad's defensive effort last week, particularly Jim Dooley who was shifted from end to tackle. "He made a heckuva difference for us at defensive tackle," he said. "We had a weakness, but Jim's gone in there and plugged it up."

The Knight defense held Fremd to 168 yards in total offense — 96 rushing and 67 passing.

Prospect has had its difficulties on offense — managing only six points in each of the first three games.

Williams is counting on White for passes to Dooley and the backs, Mike Gebert. Don Koehler, Scott Szala and Pat Packard while getting ground yardage, also. Koehler gained 103 yards against Hersey and Szala had 127 against Fremd. Koehler has had injury problems the last two weeks.

Prospect's offensive line will have Casey Rush and Dooley at ends, Mike Korf and John Manning at tackles, Don Rodgers and Tim Loeffel at guards and Lauren Nelson at center.

Prospect may have its troubles on offense, and they might be compounded by a rugged Cougar defense which has given up only 13 points in three games. The main stalwarts have been Kellermeyer, Orendorff, Ron Ortwerth and O'Malley.

The Prospect-Conant game of 1969 is expected to be a close defensive battle — the opposite of 1968's game which saw the Knights outscore the Cougars 37-20. But, then, Mike Gaffney and Scott Johnson were on the field that day.

Players View Wheeling vs. Hersey

by KETH REINHARD

How do the players themselves feel about tonight's crucial first-time battle between Hersey and Wheeling?

Four of them were sounded out on each side and put to the verbal test prior to their big game test. Here are their reactions:

Any special reason why you want to beat the opposition?

Skip Peterson, Hersey halfback: "Because it's the high school I first went to and I still know many of their players."

Dan Hull, Wheeling halfback: "For the team's benefit and my own personal pride. I really want to win the conference championship."

In what ways do you think you're better than the opposition?

Dick Powell, Hersey quarterback: "Our team speed, offensive backfield speed and defensive pursuit all are above average, as is the consistency of our offensive line execution."

Scott Day, Wheeling quarterback: "Our defense is our strongest point."

By how much do you intend to beat the opposition?

Steve Tonneff, Hersey lineman: "It should be a very close game. I know that we definitely need a win to stay alive in conference competition — but then, so does Wheeling."

Bill Craighead, Wheeling lineman: "It's going to be a hard hitting battle and the team with the most desire and guts will win. The score can only be told on the field."

What do you think will be the turning point in the game?

Kurt Kieffer, Hersey end: "The team that hits harder and scores most in the first quarter will most influence the outcome."

Terry Lundquist, Wheeling end: "If we can stop their punt returning and possibly their kickoff return then I like our chances very much."

Harper Golfers, Harriers Notch Double Wins

6th Victory For Hawks; Hahn Stars

"We didn't win by much, but we won." Although Ron Bessemer, head golf coach at Harper Community College, doesn't like close matches, he was still very pleased with his boys' first away meet for they notched two more dual victories to up their excellent record to a perfect 8-0.

The Hawks, playing at Cherry Hills Country Club, last Wednesday, edged host Thornton, 219-222, and pounded Kankakee College 319-369.

"We were killing them all on the first nine and then we died on the second nine," Bessemer explained. "The first half of the second nine we were okay but the second half we started double bogeying."

Bessemer further pointed out that his boys' slight fade was probably a lack of adjustment from high school meets where only nine holes are played. However, he felt sure that they'd be coming around to playing 18 holes of pressure golf real soon.

Showing the way to play tough all the way around the 6,228-yard course was Pete Hahn, veteran of last year's wars. Hahn toured the layout in 76 strokes, five over the posted par.

However, taking medalist honors were two of the opposition — Dan Ustian of Thornton and Dave Mote of Kankakee with 74s.

Rounding out the Hawk scoring were Jack Benson (79), Rich Orwerth (81) and Tom Navratil (83). Pat Dwyer finished as fifth man (87) so his score didn't count.

Thornton showed pretty good balance — Mike Stepanczyk (79), Ron Gelatka (84) and Phil Jachin (85).

For the Kankakee crew, after Mote there was a tremendous gap — Ron Harrison (95), Greg Petro (96) and Mike Klonowski (104).

"It was real, real windy," pointed out Bessemer. "We have been trying to break 320 on our home course and they did it here. The boys were pretty proud of that." "Now I'd like to have them shoot 310 at home. I think if they can reach that score right before the conference meet we should do pretty well."

Besides winning their sixth straight, the Hawks are now 2-0 in the Northern Illinois Junior College League. They will be shooting for two more wins when they go against conference foe Bogan College next Tuesday and also Morton College.

Hawks Whip '68 League CC Champs

It was probably the biggest victory ever registered in the young history of Harper Community College athletics, but Bob Nolan, head man of the cross country team, accepted it with his usual cool:

"The boys were running real nice." And all his boys did was meet head to head the junior college powerhouse harrier team of the midwest and blast them right out of the Ned Brown Forest Preserve last Wednesday night, 21-34.

"It's probably been three years since they lost anything," said the happy Hawk mentor. "They took everything last year (the Northern Illinois Junior College League title and the regional tournament) and they've been the conference champs for three years and the regional champs at least the last two years."

But that wasn't the only accomplishment for this year's high flying Hawks. They also polished off Wright College of Chicago, 24-31, to boost their season record to 5-1 — one dual win more than they registered all last season (4-6).

Wright also handled Black Hawks, 22-37. Wright's Ramal Diab recorded a 21:43 over the Hawks' four-mile layout, a clocking which Nolan considered "a pretty good time." It was good enough to capture the No. 1 spot in the field.

Gary Hoffman of Black Hawk followed with a second place showing (21:52). But then the rampaging Hawks marched in post haste capturing the next five places.

Jim Macnider led the tightly packed Harper crew with a 22:06 for third. Then came Ron Bryant (22:13), Bob Bachus (23:01), Ray Sommer (23:05) and Mike Elwart (23:38).

"Sommers is really coming on," said

Leading Swingers

Golf Magazine's 1968 "All-America" team, with each member having one specialty, was as follows: Driver, Arnold Palmer; fairway woods, Gary Player; long irons, Jack Nicklaus; middle irons, Dan Sikes; short irons, Billy Casper; sand wedge, Julius Boros; pitching wedge, Lee Trevino; and putter, George Archer.

BBAA Grid Action Continues

Action continued hot and heavy last weekend in B.B.A.A. football, as all teams saw action.

COLT LEAGUE

Ris Park defeated the Bensenville Colts 19 to 13 in a hard fought game, which saw John Shultz field a punt and race 65 yards for the first Colt score. In the third quarter with the Colts trailing John Colbas plunged three yards for a score and then plunged again for the extra point that tied the game. But Ris Park was not to be denied as they rallied for a score in the fourth quarter and were able to hold the Colts for the rest of the game. The Colts record is now 2-2.

WIDGET LEAGUE

The Bensenville Widgets lost their third game of the season to Ris Park 18 to 13. Tim O'Brien scored all the points for the Widgets, in what was considered an excellent effort by the Bensenville team to even their record for the year. Tim's first touchdown came on a 37 yard rollout and his second score of the day came on a three yard plunge. He also scored the extra point on a plunge.

TRAVELER LEAGUE

Led by the running of Dick Anderson, Ken Kula and Frank Wieklini, the Bensenville Travelers defeated the Addison Cowboys by the score of 14 to 6. The touchdowns were scored on a 30 yard pass from Wieklini to Bob Doherty and a 17 yard run up the middle by Kula. Anderson scored both extra points. The traveler defense was outstanding as they allowed the Cowboys only 41 yards rushing and 12 yards passing. Leading the defense were Bill Zaleski, Craig Palmer and Bob Doherty.

PEE-WEE LEAGUE

The Bengals remained undefeated when they beat the Bears 12 to 0. Doug Elg scored on a 15 yard run and Steve Heale ran 10 yards for the other score. Fuzzy Wunschei, Chi-Chi Cwik, Billy Hach, Bill Sahagian and Chuck Schroeder were outstanding.

The Packers defeated the Bears 41 to 6. Tony Riggio scored on a 3 yard run, a 10 yard run and contributed four extra points. Dean Eichelman scored on runs of 40 and 50 yards and added one extra point. Eddie Deanda scored on a pass from Riggio and on a 15 yard run.

The Jets defeated the winless Bears 20 to 6 as Alex Malin scored on a 30 yard run and later on a five yard plunge. Dan McCormick passed 35 yards to Scott Swanson for the final score set up by a 50 yard run by C. Kaufman. Malin also scored the extra point on a plunge.

Standings W L
Bengals 2 0
Packers 2 1
Bears 0 3

The B.B.A.A. Pee-Wee Jets and Packers will play two Pee-Wee Teams from Mokena, Illinois under the lights on Saturday Oct. 4, at the Bensenville Pool, the first game starting at 6 p.m. and the second game at 8 p.m. The public is invited.

Stickiest Fingers

Clifton McNeil, one of the most underrated pass receivers in the National Football League, caught 13 more passes than anyone else in the loop. He grabbed 71 aerials for 994 yards and seven touchdowns. His longest gain was 65 yards and his average gain 14.0. Though catching considerably fewer passes than McNeil, four other receivers in the league gained more yardage on pass receptions, all topping 1,000 yards. They were Roy Jefferson of Pittsburgh, Lance Rentzel of Dallas, Paul Warfield of Cleveland, and Homer Jones of New York.

At Beverly Lanes

In the Parkway League, Cutler remains on top by two points as George, gaining three points over Glenn, moved into second. Team series this week were very close. George and Donahue had the edge over their opponents by 17 pins and Bergdahl had six more than Cutler. Besides Bill Sheddler's 621 series, Bob Lampert had 586 with a 206 game, George Quade 567-201, Bob Paddock 562-204, and Vern Schroeder 547. Otto Heimann had a 205 game.

At Rolling Meadows

Joan Sayre bowled the top game last week in the District 15 Mixed Teachers league. Joan had a 233 game, and this will receive a trophy.

Palatine Panthers Win 3rd

Quarterback Andy Donahue tossed two TD passes to favorite target — Tom Bullen, and fullback Lon Marchel scored three TD's on the ground in leading the Palatine Junior High Panthers to their third straight win, 38-14 over Crystal Lake St. Thomas at Palatine Sunday.

The Panthers drew first blood midway in the first quarter on a 42 yard reverse with Tom Bullen carrying the ball. After the Trojans were unable to generate an offense, Palatine took over on the St. Thomas 46 and pushed their second TD across with Lon Marchel carrying the ball 32 yards to paydirt.

Early in the 2nd quarter, Palatine drove to the Trojan 35 where on second and seventh Marchel swept the right side of the St. Thomas defense for Palatine's third score.

But St. Thomas stormed back, covering 55 yards in 11 plays to close the margin to 18-6. Then following a kick-off to Palatine which sent the Panthers deep in the hole, Marchel attempted a punt in his own end zone which was blocked with St. Thomas recovering for the score. A two point after TD closed the Palatine lead to 18-14 as the half came to an end.

The second half was all Palatine's as the Panthers struck for three more scores, another 40 yards run by Marchel and two passes from QB Donahue to flanker Bullen. One pass covered 30 yards and the second, a flat pass was good for 23 yards.

Palatine travels to Woodstock next Sunday to meet the Fighting Irish of St. Mary's. Game time has been set for 2 p.m.

Hoffman Team Meets Defeat

The Hoffman Estates Commandos of the Suburban Junior Football League, suffered their first defeat of the season, losing to the Addison Cowboys 27-13 Sunday.

The Commandos scored in the first quarter on a pass from Ken Williams to Scott Traphahn. A 40-yard run by Cory Rathman and a 20-yard pass from Williams to Ken Dunck set up the scoring play.

With the score tied 6-6 in the second quarter, Williams passed 30 yards to Rick Fleming. Ed Rock carried for 10 yards and Rathman carried for the TD from the one.

Addison's offense scored three touchdowns in the second half to wrap up the game.

Auto Show Seeks Cars

The Midwest Championship Rod and Custom auto show will be held at the Kane County Fair Grounds in St. Charles on Oct. 17-18-19. There will be no entry fee and it is open to customs, antiques, motorcycles, competition cars or anything in the automotive field.

Awards and prizes will be presented in the different auto classifications. For more information write or phone Tom Crow, 954 West State St., Sycamore, Illinois, 815-895-3284.

Bisons Bag CC Victory

Fenton finally got that varsity cross country win they'd been looking for, but it still wasn't a perfect day for coach John Kurtz and his harriers as the frosh-soph squad at the same time lost their first meet of the year.

On the happy side, the Bisons whipped Elmwood Park soundly 19-46 with Bob Lemaire, of course, leading the way in 14:13 over the 2.7 mile course.

Elmwood's John McGinn finished three seconds behind Lemaire, and Kurtz says: "He was coming up pretty strong on the end. But I think part of the reason Bob didn't win it easier was that he's still running with a bad head cold."

Behind McGinn it was all Bisons, with Bill McDonald grabbing third, Jamie Duval fourth, Gary Albertson fifth, and Ed Sabia sixth.

Kurtz was partially pleased with the performances of Albertson and Sabia.

"Gary hadn't practiced for a day because he cut himself on a piece of glass in practice, and had to get a tetanus shot and it kind of knocked him out a little bit. He missed the whole day of school. Sabia, a basketball player, came up with his finest race since coming out for cross country."

In the frosh-soph meet, it was almost all Elmwood with the Tigers winning handily 19-39. Rick Terhune finished second for the Bisons, but that was about it for the boys from Bensenville. Winner of the race was Ed Mayo.

"They went out in front at the beginning and just stayed there," says Kurtz. "They have a real strong team."

Looking ahead to Tuesday's big meet with Lake Park, Kurtz says: "We're gearing to them right now. It should be very close. I know our kids will definitely be putting out 110 per cent. I think it's going to be two very good races. And if we can beat Lake Park, we could be on our way."

Marszalek Wins Palatine Tourney

Palatine Hills Golf Course held the first Junior Open Jaycee Championships last Saturday, and an Arlington High School sophomore came away with the top prize.

Chris Marszalek toured the 6,800-yard test with a brilliant six-over-par 78 to top the title and a fine trophy.

Tying for second place were Dick Evans and Gordon Kaser with 88s. They received symbolic prizes.

Coming home with the low net trophy was Frank Fenton who posted a 71, one-under-par. Deadlocked for second were Rick Frohne and Mike Rossi.

Ralph Lonergan, the course manager, said that the turnout was good and should double for next year's second annual event.

Killy Headliner Of 1969 Ski Show

The 1969 International Ski and Winter Sports Show at Arlington Park Race Track October 17 - 19 will feature Olympic and European champion skier Jean-Claude Killy, it was today announced by Exposition Marketing of New York City, producers of the Show.

The three-day Chicago ski exposition is the largest show of its kind in the world and one of a unique chain of Ski and Winter Sports Shows held annually in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Detroit, New York, and Boston.

For the past eight years, the Chicago version has been co-sponsored by the Chicago Metropolitan Ski Council which has more than 30 individual Ski Clubs and 8,000 active members here. The Council again is co-sponsoring this event.

Jean-Claude Killy was largely responsible for the reemergence of the French ski team to a position of prominence in Alpine racing. He has dominated European skiing since 1965 and world competition since 1966, when he won the international downhill and combined championships. In both the 1966-67 and 1967-68 seasons he paced the French team to the world championship and won for himself the World Cup. Killy became the second man in history to win the triple Olympic Crown when he swept the downhill, the slalom and the giant slalom at the Winter Olympics in Grenoble, France in February, 1968.

Killy started skiing under his father's tutelage when he was three. By the age of six, he was descending slopes as fast as the elder Killy. During his teens, there were few faster skiers around.

BONN (UPI)—"At twenty years of age," old Benjamin Franklin declared, "the will reigns. At thirty, the wit. And at forty, the judgment."

An analysis by the West German Federal Statistical office seems to bear out the pronouncement in the 1941 edition of Poor Richard's Almanac.

Men under 40 years of age suffer than twice as many accidents as do men over 40, say the German statisticians.

Furthermore, both men and women who live in cities have significantly more minor accidents than do those who live in rural areas, presumably demonstrating that while cities, as Sherlock Holmes once remarked, "do not present a more dreadful record of sin that does the smiling and beautiful countryside," they are more dangerous places to live.

One fourth of all injuries requiring hospital treatment result from traffic accidents, the Germans add, while one-third are from accidents at work. Fifteen per cent occur in the home.

The Mentally Ill Child

The School's Role In Mental Health Care for Children

Suburban Living
ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

by MONICA WILCH

(First of a Series)

In 1965, 1,400,000 children under 18 needed psychiatric care, but only a third received it, according to the Joint Commission on the Mental Health of Children.

The federal study group reported to Congress recently that mental health care for children in the U.S. "has worsened considerably" in 40 years.

Admission of teenagers to state hospitals has increased 150 per cent in a decade, the report said, and in one state, one of every four children admitted to mental hospitals "can anticipate being permanently hospitalized for the next 50 years."

The commission concluded that "there is not a single community in this country which provides an acceptable standard for its mentally ill children, running a spectrum from early therapeutic intervention to social restoration in the home, the school and in the community."

SUCH POOR conditions, however, seem not to be the case in the Northwest suburbs.

Even prior to the recent legislation passed by the State of Illinois requiring that all handicapped children be provided special education in the public schools by July 1, 1969, private and public agencies and schools in this area have been working together toward a goal of comprehensive mental health services.

The road is a long and slow one, but the results are obvious when one compares facilities available to northwest suburbanites with the picture painted by the federal commission.

Recognition, diagnosis and initial treatment of mental and emotional problems begin in the schools. All area schools have psychologists and, in many cases, consulting psychiatrists, who constantly watch for problems through various tests and conferences with teachers.

IF HE IS ELIGIBLE, a child suffering from emotional problems may be placed into a special education classroom.

John Wightman, director of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO) in Arlington Heights, which represents a joint agreement among High School Districts 211 and 214 and their eight elementary school districts, explained the guidelines for eligibility in this program.

Special education classes must not exceed eight, and the students must be under 10 years old, not range more than four years in age, and not be in it for more than three years. He added that "these guidelines will have to change."

These northwest suburban schools operate a unified program of special education in which all children in the districts with a particular problem are brought to one school building where there is a special classroom for them. Several different types of classrooms are located in different schools.

IF A CHILD seemingly cannot be helped either in a regular or a special education classroom, he may be referred to the Diagnostic Learning Center in Arlington Heights, which currently serves seven of the 10 northwest suburban school districts.

Coordinated by the NSSEO, the Learning Center, according to Wightman, is "an interesting tool by which the community can become involved" in solving the mental and emotional problems of its youth.

Its team of psychologists, psychiatrists and specialists provide "more professional and intense help than the schools can offer," Wightman said. It "takes the pressure off the schools."

The learning center may recommend that the child be returned to special classes, that he go back to the regular classroom or that he remain under the supervision of the center for a period.

IN THE LAST contingency, the child is treated by the staff and may be placed in a special learning situation, the center obtaining his assignments from the school for him.

Wightman stressed, though, that when a child is taken out of the school system, it must be a consensus of opinion. Not only does it require the cooperation of both private and public institutions; the decision is also entered into by the Department of Mental Health.

In DuPage County, special education is administered by the School Association for Special Education in DuPage (SASED), which includes High School Districts 100 and 108 and their seven elementary school districts.

SASED is one of four joint agreements in the county providing 56 classes for 200 of the county's estimated 830 special education students. Classes are available for the trainable and educable mentally handicapped, the physically handicapped and the emotionally and socially maladjusted between the ages 5 and 21. They are usually referred to SASED by teachers or school psychologists.

According to Mrs. Doris Heine, pre-vocational patient coordinator, the emotionally disturbed child is provided with a tutor who works with him either in his own school or his home. He is not moved "from school to school, out of his environment," she said, because that in itself could upset him more.

The SASED hopes eventually to open a diagnostic learning center. It has recently added four psychologists to its present staff, one of whom just completed a year at Northwestern University studying learning disabilities.

Now They're Showing a Home That Maintains Itself

"You've come a long way, baby, to get where you are today."

Just try to remember when electricity wasn't taken for granted, and washing was all done by hand. It's almost impossible. Now, there are self-cleaning, self-maintaining homes. Some kind of joke? Well, maybe only a stretch of the truth.

Requests for easy-maintaining homes have prompted the firm of Raymond Loewy/William Smith, Inc. to design for the first time a total "Easy-Care Living" home which should allow women that second cup of coffee from her automatic percolator every morning.

The home located at 508 S. Tomah St., Prospect Heights, is open to the public 11 a.m. until dusk on weekends during October.

Mr. and Mrs. Typical Suburbia and their two school-aged children may find life even softer and more comfortable by incorporating into their home certain space area materials found in the new "Easy-Care Living" home.

PAINT BRUSHES may become antiques with the new availability of low maintenance aluminum products. All outside surfaces and trim of the "Easy-Care Living" home are of pre-finished aluminum that never cracks, blisters, rots or needs periodic repainting.

The siding, window frames, shutters, doors, gutters and screens are all made of aluminum. Aluminum nails were also used throughout to prevent rust streaking.

Cleaning and redecorating can also be greatly reduced inside the home. Every product selected in the building of the "Easy-Care Living" home was judged on the basis of easy, low maintenance.

While cobwebs may still accumulate without dusting, constant painting has been reduced for walls and ceilings by the choice of prefinished materials with exceptional finishes that are easy to clean, and are also durable. Materials used include vinyl wall coverings, ceramic tiles, acrylic carpeting and other synthetic soil-resistant fabrics.

ALSO USED IN decorating of the home are hardboard wood-grained panels with Mar Gard plastic coating which resists scratches and dirt.

But best of all is the kitchen. Equipped with a full pantry and more than ample storage space, the "Easy-Care Living" home features a countertop which is non-porous, highly resistant to stains.

The Pyroceram glass ceramic range top looks like a counter. Using the same material found in the nose cone of a missile, the entire range top is sealed so nothing can get inside. A wipe with a damp cloth makes quick work of most spills.

There are no exposed coils or burners, and nothing to take apart. The heating elements are all underneath. Sunburst designs mark the heating areas, which turn yellow when hot. Add a self-cleaning oven and the hours spent cleaning the stove are completely eliminated.

To alleviate the kitchen "boxed up" feeling, the "Easy-Care Living" house repositioned the kitchen and opened it up to the family living area. Also, in order to save time and steps, the laundry room was positioned immediately off the kitchen. Women can do the day's wash while preparing dinner.

The irritable problem of noise, especially with both a TV and stereo going at the same time, is now even solvable. Noise controlling partitions of insulation board line the walls of the bathrooms and bedrooms of the "Easy-Care Living" home. Insulated board acoustical ceilings with fully washable plastic finish may also be installed and further prevent noise from carrying.

Bedrooms should be individually tailored, yet comfortable and easy to clean. Large walk-in closets and storage areas as found in the "Easy-Care Living" home make organization of a room much easier

A PRIME ALUMINUM door with quality-baked enamel finish is only one of the many low maintenance and long wear features of this "Easy-Care Living" home now open for public viewing. Siding and shutters as well as gutters also are aluminum, and inside the house are many other easy care ideas.

and hide everyday clutter. Wash and wear furniture, resistant to spills, stains and cracks, and vinyl washable walls also make cleaning days easier. The new space age innovations of today will no doubt become obsolete in 10 years or so. Computers are fantastic machines. Maybe they can be taught to take over what cleaning is left.

Circle Topic: 'Why Black Power?'

Mrs. Norman Soderstrom and Mrs. Charles Macaluso will be presenting "Why Black Power?" at the October circle meetings of the Lutheran Church Women of Our Saviour's Lutheran Church of Arlington Heights. A background of this movement, its leaders and goals will be discussed in order to assist the members of the circles in gaining a better understanding of the subject.

The Wednesday morning circle meets Oct. 8th, at 9:30 a.m. at the church. Hostess will be Mrs. Douglas Donoho, 392-0745. THE THURSDAY morning-circle meets Oct. 9, at 9:30 a.m. Hostess will be Mrs.

Melvin Weeg, 301 S. Dunton, Arlington Heights, CL 3-5667.

The Thursday evening circle meets Oct. 9, at 8 p.m. Hostess will be Mrs. Philip Breiding, 1404 Brown, Arlington Heights, CL 3-1289.

The Monday evening circle meets Oct. 13 at 8 p.m. Hostess will be Mrs. Donald Reed, 1406 W. Concord, Arlington Heights, 392-6720.

The Tuesday afternoon circle meets Oct. 14 at 1 p.m. Hostess will be Mrs. Olaf Hansen, 255-9419, and the meeting will be held at the church.

Garden Club Sees Table Settings

Countryside Garden Club, Rolling Meadows, will host Mrs. Emil C. Walker Jr. at its Thursday, Oct. 9, meeting in the Clearbrook Center in Rolling Meadows.

Mrs. Walker's presentation will show capsule table settings with co-ordination of place setting, linen and fresh flower arrangement. Tips for garden club members on show tables will be incorporated with the more functional uses at home.

MRS. WALKER is a nationally-accredited life flower show judge, Illinois honor roll judge and director of the Garden Club of Illinois flower show schools. She is also an active member of the Countryside Garden Club of Crystal Lake.

The special program is open to all area women. Advance tickets are currently being sold by club members. Reservations are available from Mrs. Robert Helfand 358-6629 or Mrs. Robert Lichner 392-1112. Because of a limited seating capacity, no tickets can be offered for sale at the door.

GOP To Honor Woman of the Year

Presentation of the annual Republican "Woman of the Year" award to an outstanding Republican woman of DuPage

County will be one of the highlights of the luncheon given by the DuPage County Federation of the Women's Republican Clubs Wednesday, Oct. 15. The luncheon, a fund-raising activity, will be held at 12:30 p.m. in the Elmhurst Country Club, Wood Dale. Proceeds will benefit the County Republican Central Committee.

Speaker for the afternoon will be Irene Hughes, psychic-mystic, who will speak on "ESP and Modern Man." Mrs. Hughes, who predicted exact dates of the major snow storms in Chicago in January and February, is replacing Forrest Tucker as Mr. Tucker will be showing films in Mexico.

Tickets may be purchased from any local president or board member or by calling MA 7-6307.

Leslie designed not only her own wedding gown, but also the gowns worn by her attendants. Her own featured a white lace bodice with sweetheart neckline, and a full skirt of silk organza over delustered satin. Her chapel-length train of silk organza over illusion with lace edging, extended from a lace yoke, and her veil, with fingerlip blusher, extended the full length of the train.

Her flowers were white carnations and ivy in a cascade arrangement. Leslie designed her attendants' gowns of pale watermelon pink with empire waistlines and A-line floor-length skirts. They featured short sleeves, cowl collars and floor-length trains of pink and white lace. Their pink illusion shoulder-length veils were attached to pink rose-shaped headpieces, and they carried cascades of pink carnations.

MARY BETH SPEIGHT was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Carol Dallinger of DeKalb, Christine Dyller of Chatsworth, Ill. and the groom's sister, Carol Schon of Palatine.

Attending the groom was Jeffrey Kroger of Normal as best man, and David Renard of Champaign, a brother-in-law Larry Lundberg of Glenview, and the bride's brother, Kent Speight of Milwaukee as ushers.

There was no time for a wedding trip, so Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schon Jr. will honeymoon in 1970, during July and August. Married Aug. 23, the couple settled at Normal, Ill., on the 24th, and on the 25th, the bridegroom began a teaching assignment at nearby Wapella High School.

Son of the senior Albert H. Schons, 215 S. Elmwood, Palatine, the groom is a graduate of Palatine High School and received his B. S. degree in education from Illinois State University at Normal in June.

His bride is the former Leslie Ann Speight, daughter of the Paul L. Speights of Milwaukee. Last Monday Leslie began her senior year at Illinois Wesleyan University in Bloomington.

THE WEDDING TOOK place in Whitefish Bay, Wis., a suburb of Milwaukee, with Rev. Don Stewart and Dr. James Buxton officiating. Mr. Speight gave his daughter in marriage during the 3:30 p.m. service.

Mrs. Speight greeted the 175 guests at the reception in the church hall wearing a celery green, sleeveless, A-line dress with matching coat, and a corsage of white butterfly orchids. Mrs. Schon was in a light turquoise dress and coat ensemble with white butterfly orchid corsage.

"Gala" to Benefit Northwest Hospital

Tickets are now available to the general public for the Northwest Community Hospital anniversary ball to be held Saturday, Dec. 6 at the Drake Hotel in Chicago.

Mrs. R. A. Wulfer reports that past supporters of the May ball, on receiving pre-invitation announcements for the December affair, have already reserved 23 per cent of the available tickets. The event replaces the May Ball for 1969 as a celebration of the hospital's 10th anniversary.

Entertainment will feature Corbett Morica, the Henry Brandon Orchestra, and the Lillian Keller Trio.

The ball will benefit the hospital's expansion program.

Reservations are available through Mrs. Robert Alhni at 259-1871.

Her own featured a white lace bodice with sweetheart neckline, and a full skirt of silk organza over delustered satin. Her chapel-length train of silk organza over illusion with lace edging, extended from a lace yoke, and her veil, with fingerlip blusher, extended the full length of the train.

Her flowers were white carnations and ivy in a cascade arrangement. Leslie designed her attendants' gowns of pale watermelon pink with empire waistlines and A-line floor-length skirts. They featured short sleeves, cowl collars and floor-length trains of pink and white lace. Their pink illusion shoulder-length veils were attached to pink rose-shaped headpieces, and they carried cascades of pink carnations.

MARY BETH SPEIGHT was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Carol Dallinger of DeKalb, Christine Dyller of Chatsworth, Ill. and the groom's sister, Carol Schon of Palatine.

Attending the groom was Jeffrey Kroger of Normal as best man, and David Renard of Champaign, a brother-in-law Larry Lundberg of Glenview, and the bride's brother, Kent Speight of Milwaukee as ushers.

Speaker for the afternoon will be Irene Hughes, psychic-mystic, who will speak on "ESP and Modern Man." Mrs. Hughes, who predicted exact dates of the major snow storms in Chicago in January and February, is replacing Forrest Tucker as Mr. Tucker will be showing films in Mexico.

Tickets may be purchased from any local president or board member or by calling MA 7-6307.

FALL NATURE HIKES

by Marilyn Hallman

In fall, animals and plants begin to prepare for winter. You can see some of the interesting ways they do this at Morton Arboretum, on Route 53, in Lisle.

Three Saturday morning nature hikes will be held for children 8 through 12 years old. They will be from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., Oct. 11, 18, and Nov. 8. Each of the free hikes will be in a different area of the arboretum.

To sign up for a hike, call WO 9-5782 the preceding week. Dress for cool weather and wet trails.

Fun Programs for Fifth Wheelers

ONO the clown, a Halloween party and a pumpkin hunt with chicken dinner have been slated as October activities for Fifth Wheelers, a group of widowed, divorced or legally separated individuals.

The adult Halloween party is scheduled for Saturday evening, Oct. 18. A costume affair, details are available by calling 945-4619. The following Sunday evening, Oct. 19, Kenneth Lagerholm will speak on the clown at 7:45 p.m. in Trinity Lutheran Church, Wolf and Algonquin Roads, Des Plaines.

The pumpkin hunt and chicken dinner will be included in the annual Family Activity Day at Euclid-Lake Woods at 1 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 26.

For the meeting this Sunday at 7:45 p.m. in Trinity Lutheran Church, newly-elected officers will be taking over their new duties. Among the officers are Donald Belden of Arlington Heights, vice president of the group, Harley Gates of Oak Park is president.

Blue Garter Stays in Family

The blue garter is still in the family. Last summer it was caught by Patrick Joseph Luchsinger at a wedding in which Carole Jean Komorowski's brother-in-law was the groom. Carole Jean was the garter for her marriage Aug. 23 to Patrick, and this time it was caught by Patrick's brother, Jay.

Carole and Patrick met at the University of Illinois Medical Center where both have been studying. Carole in the School of Nursing, and Patrick in the College of Pharmacy. Patrick has now graduated and Carole is completing her senior year. Carole, a graduate of Wheeling High School, also studied a year at the University of Illinois at Urbana.

THEIR MARRIAGE TOOK place during a 3 o'clock nuptial mass in Holy Trinity Catholic Church, which is located near the Medical Center. Rev. Thomas P. Fahey officiated and Jay Luchsinger gave the lay readings and commenting for the service.

The bride was escorted by her father to the altar which was decorated with bouquets of gladioli and baby mums for the double ring service.

The new Mrs. Luchsinger is the daughter of the Ralph A. Komorowski, 9 Debbie Drive, Mount Prospect, and the groom is the son of the Joseph P. Luchsingers of Chicago's far south side.

Carole chose a gown of white silk organza over taffeta with empire bodice appliqued with peau d'ange lace embroidered with seed pearl clusters. A scooped neckline and short lace sleeves were other features of her gown. Her chapel veil was a mantilla of tulle bordered with wide peau d'ange matching the lace on her gown. A cascade of phalaenopsis, stephanotis and baby's breath completed her ensemble.

MRS. JUDITH BLUTT of Lombard, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Kathleen Simonik, of Palatine, a college roommate of the bride, and Ann Burhoe of Parma Heights, Ohio, a former neighbor.

Their gowns were of Nile green ribbed ottoman with empire bodices accented with white venise lace and threaded with moss green velvet ribbons ending in bows with long streamers. The girls also wore matching green venise lace headpieces with double tulle short veils, and they carried love balls of dark greens studded with yellow baby mums.

A cousin of the bride, 6-year-old Laura Komorowski of Toledo, Ohio, was flower girl and the groom's brother, Joseph Luchsinger Jr., 7, was ring bearer. Laura's gown was identical to the older girls' gowns.

JOSEPH WALLACE was best man to the groom and ushers were Frank Luchsinger, brother of the groom, and James Abbott, all of Chicago.

A dinner reception for 100 guests was held at the White Pines Golf Club in Bensenville. Mrs. Komorowski greeted the guests in a pink, silk blend A-line dress with matching accessories. The groom's mother chose a tunic style mauve crepe and a corsage of light blue cymbidiums.

The newlyweds honeymooned for a week at the Abbey in Fontana, Wis., and are now residing in a Chicago apartment.

St. Marcelline CCW

Stages Square Dance

St. Marcelline's Council of Catholic Women will hold its second annual square dance in the parish social center Saturday, Oct. 18, at 8:30 p.m.

John Dolce, familiar to fans of the WLS Barn Dance for over 20 years, will be the evening's caller. "Square dancing experience is helpful, but not necessary," reports the chairman.

The dance is open to all. Further information concerning tickets is available from Mrs. Jack Pujol at 894-1390.

TOPS OF THE AREA Take-Off-Pounds-Sensibly Clubs were crowned at the second annual Northwest Festival of Stars last week at London Junior High School, Wheeling. Betty Wolfram, upper, of Slim and Trim TOPS Club, Hoffman Estates, was named queen; Pat Taff of the same club became princess, and Bernard Schwartz of Wheeling was crowned prince of the TOPS. Helen Wisowaty of Medinah became the area KOPS (Keep-Off-Pounds-Sensibly) queen for maintaining her weight loss. Of all 15 clubs participating, the Slim and Trim Club earned an award for the most pounds lost per member, and Prospective Waistways of Mount Prospect took the prize for most members reaching their goal and graduating into KOPS.

Sorority Activities

Pi Phi's Arrowcraft Date Set

PIBETA PHI

The annual Arrowcraft sale sponsored by Arlington Heights Alumnae Club of Pi Beta Phi will be first on the agenda at the club meeting next Wednesday evening in the home of Mrs. Richard Nieland, 906 White Gate Drive, Mount Prospect.

The Arrowcraft sale is a national project of the entire sorority to support the Arts and Crafts School in Gallatinburg, Tenn. There will be all kinds of hand-crafted items at the sale, such as fireplace equipment, mirrors, toys, linens, basketware and jewelry, all produced at the school.

THE ARLINGTON alumnae group is slated the annual benefit on Oct. 14 at Arlington Heights Masonic Temple from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

At the same time, there will be two fashion shows of ensembles from area shops. A showing at 10 a.m. will feature clothes from Bob and Betty Apparel Shop, Barrington, and one at 2 p.m. will display styles from Beatrice Dorsey Casual Fashions, Dundee.

THE PUBLIC is invited to the sale and shows. Tickets may be purchased from Pi Phi members or by calling Mrs. Scott Davis, 392-3705.

Mrs. Robert Lollar is chairman of the Arrowcraft sale; Mrs. Larry Brown is vice chairman; Mrs. John Miller heads decorations; Mrs. R. A. Armstrong, refreshments; Mrs. Arnold Stoutland, publicity.

ZETA TAU ALPHA

A candlelight ceremony commemorating the 71st anniversary of the founding of Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority will take place next Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. John Schaffer of Mount Prospect. ZTA was founded at Longwood College, Farmville, Va., on Oct. 15, 1898.

Vice president of the local chapter, Mrs. R. Ingolia of Park Ridge, has planned a "self help" program on cerebral palsy children that night. Cerebral palsy is the sorority's philanthropic project.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA

Area Alpha Gamma alumnae will gather in the home of Mrs. W. G. Peterson, 2250 Longacres Lane, Plum Grove Estates, Palatine, for a potluck dinner next Tuesday at 7 p.m. Special guests will be members of Lambda undergraduate chapter at Northwestern University.

Co-hostesses for the evening are Mrs. Phillip Zarob, Elk Grove Village, Mrs. Floyd Buchanan, Arlington Heights, and Mrs. Henry Barker, Miss Sally Walter and Mrs. Bruce Brothers, all of Mount Prospect.

Members of the alumnae chapter are asked to bring any food dish besides meat, which will be provided by the executive board. New members wishing to attend may call Mrs. Gary Sams, 259-1897.

KAPPA DELTA

At a recent meeting, members of Northwest Suburban Alumnae chapter of Kappa Delta made stacking cans for educational purposes at Countryside Day School in Barrington. The cans, in sets of four, are covered in colorful matching fabrics.

The cans were recently presented to Mrs. Robert Mundstock, program coordinator of the school, along with a check to cover the cost of playground equipment.

DELTA KAPPA GAMMA

The learning disabilities teacher in Bensenville, Dorothy Scott, will be among the teachers initiated into Gamma Eta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society, an international organization for women educators.

The initiation will be the focus of a luncheon meeting to be held Saturday, Oct. 11, at Nordic Hills Country Club.

BETA SIGMA PHI

Nu Rho Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi launched its fall rush season with an Italian dinner in the home of Mrs. William Howe of Roselle. The affair was established as a tradition for introducing prospective members to the organization.

Among invited guests were Mrs. Thomas De Lashmitt, Mrs. Allen Vancura and Mrs. Loren Long of Roselle and Mrs. Paul Grundmann of Schaumburg.

To complete the rush program, Nu Rho will hold a model meeting Oct. 14 in Mrs. Ronald Rosinski's home in Roselle. The program for the evening includes a display of Christmas decorations with instructions on making them.

A RITUAL OF JEWEL ceremony was given to Mrs. Ray Glassman at the September meeting of Xi Eta Rho Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. A Ritual of Welcome went to Mrs. Herbert Redmond and Mrs. Bill Stubin.

The next meeting is Thursday, Oct. 9, in the home of Mrs. Robert Miller of Palatine. Mr. Haverkamp from Hilltop Foundation, Bloomington, will be guest speaker.

Four members of Xi Eta Rho will attend the Illinois convention in Springfield Oct. 10-12.

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA

The next meeting of the Chicago Suburban Northwest Alumnae Association of Tri Sigma takes place Monday, Oct. 13, at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Karl Kubon, 702 N. Pine St., Mount Prospect. Co-hostess is Mrs. Tom Cooper of Oak Park.

Alumnae Circle degrees will be presented to 15 women. Cards and refreshments will follow.

Mrs. J. Koopman may be called at 392-0577 for details.

Food and Politics For GOP Women

Itasca Republican Woman's Club will meet at the Nordic Hills Country Club next Tuesday for a 12:30 business meeting followed by luncheon at 1.

Luncheon speakers will be winners of the Sept. 24 Con-Con primary: Thomas Kelloghan, West Chicago attorney; William Sommerschild, Elmhurst advertising executive; Margaret Larson, Elmhurst homemaker; and Stanley Kula, Lombard attorney.

The candidates will share their views and participate in a question and answer period.

Reservations are available from Mrs. Roy Petherbridge, 773-1618 or Mrs. Roger Sutphin, 773-1173 before noon Monday, Oct. 6.

PEO Sisterhood Plans Fall Luncheon

Chapter JM of the PEO Sisterhood will begin its fall season Monday with a 12:30 luncheon meeting in the home of Mrs. Sam Hess, 509 S. Wa-Pella, Mount Prospect.

The meeting will feature a program entitled, "Being Conversationalists," in which members will relate summer happenings.

Purposes of the Sisterhood are educational and charitable: the PEO Educational Fund, Cottey Junior College for Women, and the International Peace Scholarship Fund.

Co-hostesses will be Mrs. D. K. Neal, Mrs. Allen Julin Jr. and Mrs. Jerry Mast, all of Mount Prospect.

Antique Tour

The sisterhood of Temple B' Nai Jehoshua Beth Elohim will meet for the first time this season on Oct. 8, 10:45 a.m. at the Hobson House in Long Grove. Lunch and an antique tour is planned.

A Sukkas party at Elgin State Hospital is planned for Oct. 9. Mrs. Stella Sabath, Skokie, is in charge of the chaplaincy program, which will include serving lunch and distributing gifts to the patients.

New executive officers of Sisterhood B.J.B.E. from the area are Mrs. Philip Denenberg, V.P. program, Mount Prospect.

Disclose CCD Women To St. Edna Women

St. Edna Woman's Club of Arlington Heights will hear about the parish Confraternity of Christian Doctrine program at its 8 p.m. meeting next Wednesday in the parish hall, 2525 N. Arlington Heights Road.

Sister Kay Merrill, co-ordinator of the program, will discuss her plans for the coming year to the mothers of the 800 children enrolled in the program.

All mothers of St. Edna CCD children are invited.

'Round the Corner

The art Rental and Sales Gallery, a project of the Woman's Board of the Art Institute of Chicago, will be filled with new works on Monday, Oct. 6. The selections will be made by John W. Parker, adult lecturer in the department of museum education; George Buehr, artist and former Institute staff member, and Alan Lunak, painter.

The Gallery on the ground floor of the Institute is open weekdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Thursdays until 7:30 p.m. and Saturdays from noon to 3 p.m.

The Lizzadro Museum of Lapidary Art, 220 Cottage Hill Ave., Elmhurst, will present "Artifacts of the Romans, Greeks & Phoenicians," a slide-lecture by Melvin Manthey, who teaches at the Chicago Junior School in Elgin. The program is Oct. 11 at 2 p.m. Manthey acquired his collection while working with the Peace Corps in North Africa.

Barry Goldwater will speak before the Northwestern Political Forum 70 Monday at 7:30 p.m. at McGraw Memorial Hall, 2705 Ashland Ave., Evanston. The public is invited.

The First Wedding in a New Church

In the very first wedding to be held in the new First Baptist Church in Wood Dale, Miss Joyce Ann Page, daughter of the Glen Pages, 244 Jacqueline Drive, Bensenville, became the bride of her Georgetown College classmate, Michael Duane Collins. Pastor Joe E. Sledge performed the 3:30 p.m. nuptials on Aug. 23.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Collins of Tipton City, Ohio, and his bride are both seniors at Georgetown where they met during their freshman year. Mr. Collins is majoring in music education and the new Mrs. Collins in English.

Since there was no time for a honeymoon before classes started, the newlyweds left immediately for Georgetown, Ky., where the college is located. The bride was graduated from Fenton High School before enrolling at Georgetown.

White gladioli decorated the altar for the double ring service, and Mr. Page gave his daughter in marriage.

AN EMPIRE WAISTED gown of white, sheer dotted swiss over peau de soie was chosen by Joyce for her marriage. The gown featured short sleeves trimmed with venise lace that also edged the floor-length hem of the gown and the train. A Camelot headpiece with venise lace appliques held her silk illusion veil, and she carried a cascade of white roses.

A college friend, Linda Thurman of Dayton, Ohio, served Joyce as maid of honor and bridesmaids were her sister, Glenda Page, and Alice Schmidt, both of Bensenville, and Sue Mittle of Wood Dale.

Mrs. Page made the gowns for the attendants of yellow sheer dotted swiss over taffeta. Empire style, the waists and sleeves were accented with chains of daisies and avocado ribbon at the back of the waistlines. Their headpieces were of yellow nylon flowers and they carried daisy pompons with baby's breath and green streamers.

ART COLLINS OF Sidney, Ohio, served his brother as best man. Ushers were the bride's brother, Sam Page of Bensenville, LaVern Farmer of Tipton City and Larry Holloway of Dayton.

The reception for 125 guests was held in the church's Fellowship Hall where Mrs. Page received in a mint green linen trimmed with pearls and green cymbidium corsage, and the groom's mother in a blue knit with white cymbidiums. (Delmar Studio)

HOFFMAN-DES PLAINES

There will be two locations for Saturday's twin bake sale sponsored by the Parent-Booster Club of the area-wide Guardsman Drum and Bugle Corps. One will be in Hoffman Estates at Golf Rose Shopping Center, next to Grant's Department Store, and another in Des Plaines in front of Prairie Lee Paint Store, Lee and Prairie Streets.

The sales at both sites will begin at 9 p.m. Proceeds go into the Corps treasury.

BUFFALO GROVE

Highlight of the rummage sale in progress at Ranchmart Shopping Center will be an auction of new, old and antique items at 11 a.m. Saturday. Ranchmart Rummage Roundup Sale Days is being held today and tomorrow at the shopping center, Buffalo Grove and Dundee Roads.

Sponsor of the sale is Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Nurses Club. Proceeds will help provide nursing scholarships and purchase hospital equipment for the club's lending closet.

Hotdogs and drinks will be available both days.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS

The annual rummage sale sponsored by the Womens' Society of the First United Methodist Church, 1903 E. Euclid, is being held today and Saturday at the church. Friday hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m. to noon.

A specialty shop, home-baked goods booth and coffee shop are available today only.

DUNDEE

The Women's Fellowship of the First Congregational Church is holding a rummage sale this morning, 9 to noon, at the church, 417 W. Main St.

BARRINGTON

A two-day sale of used clothing, furniture and appliances is in progress today and tomorrow at St. Anne's school hall on Chestnut Street. The women of the church are sponsoring the sale.

Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day.

PALATINE

Palatine American Legion Auxiliary is holding a rummage sale Friday, Oct. 10, at the Legion Hall, 122 W. Palatine Road. Hours will be 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Post-School Work Of Teens Explored

by EDITH FREUND

Third in a Series

Who are the kids without wheels? What lures them to hang around downtown areas and unlighted parks late at night when they should be home? And what motivates them to do the things they do?

In this third of a three-part series, staff writer Edith Freund explores the after-school world of children from 10 to 15, the youths without cars, and what makes them tick.

The Mount Prospect youth commission is one village agency that is attempting to do something about what they refer to as "our youths." Whether "our youths" want something done for them is another matter.

The youth commission itself has many deep philosophical discussions concerning young people. One or two kids are represented at its meetings. The discussions are on a high plane, mostly a generation removed from what is happening in the community's streets.

And a strong undercurrent is felt in the discussions, reflecting the political tug-of-war played in Mount Prospect recently by Mayor Robert Teichert and ex-Mayor Dan Congrove. The score, to borrow a tennis term, is love-all, for the kids.

From two years of wrangling and "careful thought and study" have come a greatly reduced commission and two productive suggestions to the village board.

THEIR MOST outstanding accomplishment was to recommend the hiring of Dr. Ronald Duckers, a psychologist, and John Strong, a social worker, for police department work with juveniles.

The second suggestion, for this is just an advisory commission, is that a scholarship program, funded by donation last year, be continued this year by the village. This scholarship would provide $500 toward teacher education. The first scholarship was awarded to a prospective practical arts teacher. The mechanics for selecting the applicant were worked out by the commission.

The youth commission is also aiding youngsters in the community by making plans for a dance for high school students this Christmas. These plans must also be presented to the village board for approval.

If it is forthcoming, the adults on the youth commission may get the surprise of their lives when they look in on the "happening" they helped plan.

FOR THE HIGH school kids of today don't dance. A 14-year-old girl was furious after her first dance at Prospect. Nobody danced. The "group" was marvelous, she said, but everybody just stood around. Some sat on the floor here and there. And there were no refreshments.

"The dances in junior high were better," she said.

Two area churches are planning youth centers. One, at the Pease Reformed Church, is in operation now. It's for junior high students throughout the village who might want to drop by after school.

St. Mark's Lutheran Church is building a large youth center in a centrally located spot. The park district has opened a corner of the country club, hoping to lure the "creek freaks" and their friends into the light.

But often the results of these good intentions by adults, even those informed enough to let the youngsters run things themselves, are that the kids who are attracted are not the ones the community is trying to reach.

THE OTHERS, the ones who are having a hard time with what Strong calls "their dependency struggle," stay out in "the unorganized night," away from their energetic peers.

Youth facilities are often "captured" by a clique or faction who make it their own. The kids who are part of the crowd have a great time, but it's not really the type of place adult sponsors would like to believe they are providing. This type of thing can be done right under the noses of the sponsors.

Some of the problems the Crystal Ship represented was this type of unspoken dichotomy between age levels or political factions of the young people. The difference between an eighth grader and a high school freshman, who is just a month older, may be light years.

THE CAPTURE of the Crystal Ship was most successful. It sank, and it illustrated one of the recurring problems in facilities run by the young people themselves.

They are changing, growing up, and eventually they go away somewhere to school or work. Their interests of last year fade, the fashions of this year's kids are different. What the teenager has worked hard for in his community collapses behind him as he turns to new things.

Some of the most successful programs to keep kids busy are the drum and bugle corps, drill teams and marching bands. These turn unchanneled energy into something productive with the side benefits of a good time with the gang.

The Guardsmen Drum and Bugle Corps offers one such program. Far from "keeping the kids off the streets," it puts them right down the middle every weekend during the spring, summer and fall. On the Fourth of July they may have three or four parades and two exhibitions. The kids go home tired.

THEIR WEEKDAY evenings are spent practicing drill. Summer weekends are spent traveling with the corps, which brings in that necessary "gang" appeal. The corps are separated by sex when traveling. They are housed in "Y's" and schools over night. If there is a pool, they are allowed to swim all night when possible. Pizza and a lot of horseshoe give them the feeling it is all a free-wheeling good time. But the chaperones are always there.

"I don't know," said the middle-aged taxpayer over his second martini, "what these kids want. My boy has a five speed bike out there in the garage that I would have given my eye teeth for in the depression, but he won't ride it to high school. There are pools and a library that they abuse. We have a great family room. But where does he go? Out. What does he do? Nothing."

If the middle-aged taxpayer will take another look, he will find that much of his capital investment in the community is locked up after 9 p.m., although curfew extends two or three hours later.

POOLS CLOSE at 9 p.m., even on hot nights. The schools are dark after that hour and school boards are urged to recommend a 10 p.m. time when "everyone should be away from the building."

In summer, if it is cool as summer-1969 was, half the season is not swimming weather. But just as the hot weather gets rolling, Labor Day arrives. It might be possible to use Harper students or kids who will be around in the fall to keep the pools open an extra week or two. But nobody ever did, so nobody does.

How about a 10 p.m. swim for high school kids in the summer? Or a midnight swim for adults only? When the kids are using the park in organized activities there is not much vandalism, say the police. After summer programs close and before the winter ones begin — that's the vandalism gap.

The much-beleaguered library closes at the usual time. Nine o'clock for everybody. It isn't a social club, after all. And who can blame these agencies who have a hard time finding help that they cut short their hours of use?

A 10 P.M. DISCUSSION group for teens at the library? Who would come? A supervised tent-out in Lions Park and Meadows for 11- and 12-year-olds? Who would plan it? That wouldn't cost much, says the middle-aged taxpayer in wonder.

Why don't the kids of today go to the movies like the last generation did? Movies are not better than ever, that's why. There are few movies suitable for kids between 10 and 15. And the ones that do exist, cost too much.

But communities throughout the nation have adopted some facts of the successful Mott plan, developed by a private foundation in Michigan that encourages fuller use of public facilities already in existence. Roller skating at night for junior high kids in the multipurpose room, or the school library shared with a community makes taxpayers increasingly interested in supporting things that are well-used.

Today's 10- to 15-year-old is living in a time of performance, pressure and burgeoning puberty. The kind of imaginative help his community gives him may determine the kind of world he will live in 30 years from now.

Water Crisis Eliminated

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ

Bloomington's water loop is not a new ride at Adventureland, but 6,000 feet of eight-inch pipe connecting the Indian Lakes water system to the Suncrest Highland system which virtually eliminates the possibility of water crises in the village.

The pipe, which begins near the Indian Lakes well, runs southeast through the new Westlake development and turns north, ending at the Suncrest well.

By a series of valves at various mains, Larry Freier, Bloomington superintendent of public works, can channel the water from both wells anywhere in the village.

IF THE WELL serving Suncrest Highlands at the top of Prairie Avenue, or the Indian Lakes well should ever break down, Freier could open a valve and let the other operative well serve the entire village.

Freier announced at the last village board meeting he is using the Indian Lakes well to serve a part of Suncrest Highland, to keep a flow of water through the new pipeline.

The Indian Lakes well is serving about a third of the Suncrest Highland area. This includes all of unit four which is north of Lake Street except the Elaine Boyde Creech Home and Paoletta's Rustic Barn.

Suncrest Highlands' other residents are still being served by the No. 2 well on Prairie Avenue.

PRIOR TO THE looping of the systems, the Indian Lakes well was only pumping about 30,000 gallons a day for residents in its area. The well which produces about 625 gallons of water per minute, is now pumping about double, over 60,000 gallons of water a day.

Since the Indian Lakes well has relieved the Suncrest well of some of its workload, the Suncrest well is pumping between 30,000 and 40,000 gallons less than it did.

Normally, people in the Suncrest area in the eastern part of Bloomington use about 100,000 gallons of water a day. Indian Lakes residents on the western edge of the village use over 30,000 gallons a day.

The looping was done by the Hoffman-Rosner Corp. at the insistence of the village board and Village Pres. Robert Meyers. The firm, originally planning to connect its Westlake development to the Indian Lakes system, promised to loop Indian Lakes to the Suncrest system as a condition of annexation in July.

THE PROJECT was completed two weeks ago, and the water tested before the loop became operative

Just Buddies

A Farewell To Summer

To a boy, each summer is an adventure, complete in itself.

It begins when school ends, and ends when school begins, and there is no other time quite like it.

Summer is the best time of a boy's year, just as the boyhood summers are the best memories of a man's life.

Its special joy is that there is no responsibility, save perhaps to get home before dark. It is intended only for hiking, fishing, splashing, running, hunting crabs, turning over rocks; picking berries, chasing snakes and making new friends.

Its sadness is that — for boy and man — when it is gone, a piece of the person is gone as well.

In that, the boy is the luckier of the two. If he has not yet made the irrevocable turn toward manhood, there is always another summer. For the man, there is only the memory.

And now, another summer is gone.

The Northwest Suburbs
... it's a shame some people have to leave it!

Approximately 3 out of every 10 families living in the Northwest Suburbs will relocate this year.

And when they do, the most important transaction to be considered is the sale of their home.

They expect fast, trouble free action . . . when selling the home and buying another home in the new location.

So . . . the right thing to do is call a Realtor. Northwest Suburban Realtors get the job done quickly and conveniently for buyer and seller.

If you must leave . . . we're sorry . . . but we suggest you make it as pleasant as possible by calling a Realtor . . . and relax.

Opens Alpine Sales Agency

A new real estate agency has opened in Hanover Park: Alpine Real Estate.

Located at 6724 Barrington Road, the firm is managed by Dick Crantz. The agency serves the local area, specializing in the sale of single family residences.

Crantz received a B.S. degree in business administration from Bradley University. He is a member of the Elgin Real Estate Board and the Cook County Multiple Listing Service.

OTHER MEMBERS OF the sales staff at Alpine Real Estate include Elmer Williams, Bloomingdale; Deborah Simpson and Dolores Barton, both of Streamwood; and Trudy Gay, Bartlett.

Crantz said the agency was opened to fill a need for a real estate firm serving the local area.

OPEN HOUSE festivities at the Flick-Reedy Corp. plant, Bensenville, will include movies, exhibits, refreshments and plant tours Sunday. The event marks the 10th anniversary for Flick-Reedy, world's largest manufacturer of air and hydraulic cylinders.

Flick-Reedy Has Open House

An open house will mark the 10th anniversary of the Bensenville plant of Flick-Reedy Corp. Sunday.

The plant, at York and Thorndale roads opposite O'Hare Field, will be open from 2 to 5 p.m. Open house festivities will include movies, exhibits, refreshments and plant tours.

Flick-Reedy is the world's largest manufacturer of air and hydraulic cylinders.

THE PLANT IS totally air-conditioned and all electric. It uses a heat exchange pump for heating and cooling. It has a 40 by 60 foot indoor swimming pool. There is a combined auditorium-gymnasium-recreation room, a fully equipped kitchen and a picture window dining room that overlooks one of the two outdoor lagoons stocked with fish. Colorful painted patterns on inside walls combine with windows everywhere, making the open-door policy of the company a reality. In time of stress, an employee can find a few minutes of solace in the plant's non-denominational chapel.

According to personnel manager William O'May, there are many positions available both in the shop and the office. "Since 1959, our sales have tripled and so has our employment. We now have 800 employees working three shifts."

Recreational programs for employees include free movies, use of the company swimming pool, summer day camp for employees' children, an annual picnic, Christmas party and cook-out. The company was awarded the top award for the best recreation program among firms of its size by the National Industrial Recreation Association. The 1969 award was the third for Flick-Reedy in the last 10 years.

THE COMMUNITY, too, profits from Flick-Reedy's facilities. Since 1959, more than 500,000 persons have used the plant for parties, meetings and instruction. Participating groups include scouts, political organizations, Red Cross swim classes, retarded children's groups, church clubs and other organizations.

The plant that never closes will be open to the public from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday. Flick-Reedy president, Frank Flick, said he hoped that "all of our neighbors will accept this invitation to join us at the open house."

From Sand Piles to Rocking Chairs

Looking for a typical social security beneficiary? Don't limit yourself to a check of rocking chairs. You may find him playing in the sand pile.

Of the 25 million people now receiving monthly social security checks, 5 1/2 million, or 1 out of every 4 is under 60 years of age, and 1 out of 8 is under 18.

"In the 29 years that social security benefits have been payable," Arthur Hutchison, Chicago Northwest's social security district manager, noted, "the number of children receiving monthly payments has increased from $4,648 to more than $4 million—4 1/2 million if you count the children 18 through 21 who will continue to receive benefits until they are 22 if they remain in school."

"CHANGES IN THE law over the years," Hutchison said, "have broadened social security protection, greatly increasing the significance of the program to younger people. Through his social security contributions, the young worker of today is building protection for his family that may pay off as much as $100,000 in benefits if he should become disabled or die before his children are grown."

"About 1.3 million disabled workers under 65 are now drawing monthly disability insurance benefits under social security," Hutchison pointed out, "and payments are going to over 1 million of their dependents. The average payment to the family of a disabled worker with 1 or more children is $235 a month. The maximum is $415."

Three million young widows and children are receiving payments based on the earnings of a deceased husband and father, with the average payment for a mother and children now $245 and the maximum $434.40.

"There are a lot of people who should know they can count on social security—not just when they retire, but to see them through trouble now," Hutchison concluded.

Briefly on Business

by LEA TONKIN

THE 1969 EDITION of the A. C. Smith Fact Book reports that earnings for the first six months of 1969 climbed about 34 per cent over earnings for the comparable period in 1968 to $6,018,000, or $3.21 a share. The earnings came despite a decrease in sales, caused by the transfer of certain operations to affiliate companies. First half sales were $181 million, compared to $189 million in 1968. Headquartered in Milwaukee, Wis., it manufactures such diverse products as automotive frames and components, electric motors, meter systems, metal powder, railroad equipment, reinforced plastics, storage and handling systems, tubular and ordnance and water heating equipment. Its consumer products division, including A. O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc., a subsidiary, with a facility in Arlington Heights, made improvements in both sales and earnings.

MAISON De ROMAYNE, 43 S. Dunton, Arlington Heights, has announced the winner of a recent promotion, during which participants registered at the store. Mrs. Hubert Ewing of Arlington Heights chose a Fred Perlberg cocktail gown; added to the gown was a dinner for two at the Horseshoe Club at Arlington Park Towers. No purchase was necessary to enter the contest.

KUSTOM KLEEN is now open at 1008 Wilke Road, Arlington Heights. The firm offers full cleaning service, including shirt laundry, dyeing, blocking and cleaning knitwear and drapes as well as storage service. The owner, Alex Makarounis, is from Elmwood Park. During the Grand opening through Oct. 10, the firm offers a 20 per cent discount on dry cleaning service and a free glass mug with a $3 cleaning order. No purchase is necessary to register in the drawing for two bikes, a television, and two radios.

TEN-YEAR-OLD Pam Leisner of Des Plaines is among the Illinois State Music Championship winners. She was one of the top two in her age group in the organ finals recently held in Springfield, with a score of 99 out of a possible 100. She is a student at Wilkins Music Center, Mount Prospect.

"DIALOGUE '70" is the theme of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards' 1969 exposition, to be held Oct. 7-9 at the Marriott Motor Hotel, Chicago. Nearly 1,300 Realtors are expected to attend the conference, including concurrent dialogues on the changing market, exhibits, entertainment and an awards luncheon.

Realtors Move To Beat Money Pinch

Realtors of the nation, in the face of a cost and money pinch which has reduced housing starts to a rate about one-half the federal housing goal, are finding ways to obtain adequate shelter for Americans, particularly the low income groups.

They are doing this as a part of the six-objective Make American Better Program, a public service enterprise that already has involved hundreds of the 1,560 boards of Realtors, L. Allen Morris, Miami, national chairman of the innovative MAB program, said recently. The program was started two years ago by the National Association of Real Estate Boards to help solve the major problems of America's cities and towns.

AS ONE EXAMPLE, Morris said that a Realtor in Youngstown, Ohio, last year rebuilt 103 homes in depressed areas, and is continuing this effort on an increasing scale. Neighboring home owners began sprucing up their homes and thus saving them from the potential bulldozer.

Four Realtors in Eau Claire, Wis., formed a corporation to build 40 apartment units for the elderly under the federal rent supplement program, proving that they could provide larger units at less expense than nearby public housing units. Sixty additional units are being added.

Realtors of Austin, Tex., did a paint-up, fix-up job on 30 homes of deserving low-income families, as a public service campaign. Similar rehabilitation jobs were done in areas across the country.

The Sarasota (Fla.) Board of Realtors recently gave eight awards for housing rehabilitation.

REALTORS IN A NUMBER of centers have found ways to preserve existing properties through tenant counseling services, Morris explained. In the national capital the Washington Board of Realtors hired a consultant to serve as a conduit for communication between owner and tenant. The consultant found that many of the problems of property damage can be averted by this means. The value of a consultant has been emphasized in cases where large families from rural areas have moved into city apartments. The MAB chairman noted that in Oakland, Calif, one family virtually destroyed five apartments and houses in a succession of moves.

"In the face of high demand, and low production of housing, we must preserve the adequate dwellings on hand," Morris said.

Housing is high on the list of Make America Better projects, Morris said. The MAB program has six objectives and 43 proposals for action.

Realtors have found ways to help young people, including mini-parks in San Antonio; help in getting jobs in Northern Virginia and California; the gift of a $40,000 building to poor youngsters in Des Moines; four recreation and tutorial centers in Miami.

The Light the Night anti-crime activity has been adopted by hundreds of boards of Realtors and affiliated organizations. Realtors offer a plan to light dark places so families will be more secure in their homes, Morris pointed out. As a second phase of this program, high school students are being taught the dangers of the use of narcotics.

THE MAKE AMERICA BETTER Program includes objectives to improve education, to end restrictive building practices, to develop vocational programs that will save the school dropout, to build greater respect for law enforcement, and to assist owners in marketing housing on a non-discriminatory basis, the chairman said.

Passaic Joins Firm

Robert F. Callaghan, of Passaic, N.J., has joined J. H. DeLamar & Son, Inc. of Chicago, as vice president-sales. His new responsibilities will include marketing and sales supervision for DeLamar's extensive chemical and packaging lines.

Callaghan was formerly general sales manager for the B. L. Lemke Co. of Lodi, N.J., a producer of medicinal chemicals for the pharmaceutical, cosmetic and food industries.

A graduate of Notre Dame University, and a licensed aircraft pilot, he resides at 233 S. Princeton Ave., Arlington Heights.

Chateau Louise Gains Management Group

A new corporation headed by Don Smith, former Glenbard East football coach, has recently purchased the Chateau Louise restaurant and hotel complex from the Polivka family.

Among the local men who are partners in the corporation are Dave Garrison, president of Paragon Sales, Elgin; Russ Harris, president of Harris Oil Co., Elgin; and George Edgumbe of the Elgin Airport.

Smith, a former University of Illinois football player is accompanied in the venture by another former Illini gridder, Jim Grabowski, the 1965 All-American who now plays fullback for the Green Bay Packers.

The Chateau Louise, located on Rt. 31, in West Dundee, specializes in continental cuisine.

SMITH, GENERAL manager of the Chateau Louise complex before purchasing it, said plans are underway for expansion of the hotel and recreational facilities.

Proposed expansion includes building a theater, indoor swimming pool, large banquet room and adding 110 hotel units to the existing 40 units.

Other local investors in the group are Ben Morgan, Elgin attorney; L. Giunchigliani, Barrington architect; Dave Oatman and Ray Van Poucke of Milk Specialties, Dundee.

Bankers Meet In Honolulu

Local members of the American Bankers Association attended the annual convention in Honolulu, Hawaii, Sept. 28-Oct. 1.

Among those planning to attend the convention are Gerald F. Fitzgerald, president of Palatine National Bank, and his wife.

Also attending the convention will be John R. Hughes, president of Suburban National Bank of Palatine and his wife; and D. Earl L. Spore, vice president and cashier of Palatine National Bank and his wife.

Nelson Has 4000th Home Sale

Robert L. Nelson has come a long way since he started a one-man real estate sales office 11 years ago.

In 1958, his first home sale was to Mr. and Mrs. William Baughman in the Scarsdale development in Arlington Heights. Nelson recently sold his 4,000th home in Barrington to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Konny, also the first sale in the newest Nelson sales office in Barrington.

NELSON MEASURES his success not only in dollar volume, but also in the return of former customers. The Baughmans now have their home listed with Robert L. Nelson, Realtors, 11 years after Nelson sold them a home in Arlington Heights.

Gross dollar volume of Nelson sales speaks for itself: after reaching a sales record of nearly $25 million last year, Nelson expects to top the $30 million mark this year with 800 home sales. He projects 1,000 homes sales for 1970.

Now president of an organization with sales offices in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Elk Grove Village, Prospect Heights and Barrington, Nelson has plans to expand to north Arlington Heights and the Schaumburg area. There are now 44 sales personnel on the staff.

Nelson attributes approximately 40 per cent of his residential sales to participation in MAP Multiple Listing Service, co-operative network of area real estate brokers. "We have been fortunate, and so has the community, to benefit from the cooperation of MAP Multiple Listing Service.

This local group, whose effectiveness has been nationally recognized, is a service to both home buyers and sellers," Nelson said.

THOUGH MOST SALES by Robert L. Nelson, Realtors, are residential, a separate division has been established to handle commercial and industrial development.

Commenting on the current problems of inflation and tight money, Nelson said, "Prices have leveled off in the last several weeks. Now is as good a time as any to buy a home." He noted that money is expensive, though his sales haven't been hurt for lack of money.

Young couples who can't afford a large down payment are the group most adversely affected by the current economic situation, according to Nelson. "Most of our sales in this area consist of people in better positions, moving to their third or fourth home, with enough money to buy now," he said.

BASED ON NEW construction and listings with MAP Multiple Listing Service, Nelson said the average valuation of single-family residences has risen sharply over the past several years and will probably continue to climb; the average selling price with the listing service is $34,000. Though he has no estimate of the turnover in local apartments, he cited figures from area savings and loan associations showing a complete turnover among homeowners in Arlington Heights, Palatine and Mount Prospect every four years, or a 25 per cent annual turnover.

A former vice president of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors and director of MAP Multiple Listing Service, he foresees the need for research on land use in the Northwest Suburban area, as land values climb.

NOT A VIEW FROM a helicopter, but actually a shot from about 5 feet above a tabletop, three-dimensional scale model. It's The Windings of Ferson Creek near St. Charles. The development will feature two mini-lakes stocked with fish, recreation center with clubhouse, pool, tennis courts and a ski hill and the unique open space greenbelt traversing the development. The Windings is a Branigar Organization, Inc., project.

Windings Offers Recreation

How do you show a prospective buyer of a homesite in a new development what his surroundings will look like when the development is eventually built up? Take him for a helicopter ride over the area? Many buyers would shy away from that.

dimensional scale model of the entire area with "homes," open greenway areas, trees, mini-lakes and all the rolling contours of the land. Even the recreation center is "built in" for prospective buyers to see.

However, the Branigar Organization, Inc., Chicago area land developers with headquarters at Medinah, solved this problem at their new development, "The Windings of Ferson Creek" located near St. Charles. They built a complete, three-di-

A prospective buyer is shown where his selection of homesites is located in relation to the terrain and the other features of the development. He can tell instantly what the advantages of his site will be.

LEE GRAHAM, in charge of the Bran-gar sales office at "The Windings" says, "we believe that this model is going to be very helpful in presenting the special advantages of 'The Windings' to any interested prospect. He and his wife can view the entire locale in three dimensions and get a good idea of where their choice of homesites is located.

"It seems as if people like to see things in three dimensions, even if the buildings and trees are very tiny," Graham said. "I guess it just seems more realistic than any map or photograph or drawing. In any event, it attracts every prospect and helps him to visualize the development as it will be when complete.

Committee Review Of Highway Usage

Development of a long range highway program, to be implemented upon completion of the Interstate System, will be an area of major concern to the American Automobile Association in the near future, Matthew C. Sielski, vice president of the Chicago Motor Club-AAA for engineering and traffic safety and chairman of the AAA highway committee reported recently.

In a statement filed with the 67th annual meeting of the 12-million-member motorist organization, the highway group pointed out that the Highway Trust Fund, which supports the Federal-aid highway program, is scheduled to expire in 1972. "This necessitates a complete review of its operation to include the possibility of its extension and a change in user charges," the committee said. "A cost allocation study now in progress will include increased costs and mileage traveled. This study may result in an adjustment of user charges."

A long range subcommittee of the highway committee has been assigned the task of developing a future highway program that will be in the best interests of motorists.

WELLINGTON IS ONE of several models now on display at Cambridge development in Prospect Heights. The bi-level, with five bedrooms and 2½ baths, has room for a growing family. In addition to the living room and formal dining room, there are an extra informal dining area and family room. Models range in price from $39,900 to $64,900, with garage and landscaping included.

Architect Moves To Buffalo Grove

The firm of Philip Lembo & Associates, architects, has opened new offices at 232 Anthony Court, Buffalo Grove.

Lembo's office was formerly located in Chicago. He is a former associate of Ezra Gordon-Jack Levin & Associates, Inc., Chicago, and Robert C. Taylor & Associates, Oak Park. He also served as vice president of Blivas & Page, Inc.

A GRADUATE OF the University of Illinois with a B.A. degree in architecture, he received the James M. White Memorial prize in architecture from the university. He was associated with four projects, winners of awards from the Chicago Chamber of Commerce and Industry, the American Institute of Architects and the federal government.

Lembo has designed townhouses, high rise apartments and condominiums, commercial and industrial facilities. His work also includes large site developments and interior design.

Lembo lives in Buffalo Grove.

Roetherdt Overseas Restaurant Cuisine

Hubert Roetherdt of Mount Prospect, has been appointed food and beverage director of the Chicago Marriott Motor Hotel.

He is a graduate of the Hotelfach Schule (Culinary Institute), Frankfurt, Germany, and of the Berufs Schule, Wiesbaden, Germany. The Hotelfach Schule three year curriculum for prospective food executives include an apprenticeship served at a hotel. He served his apprenticeship at the Hotel Nassauer in Wiesbaden. The Hotelfach Schule gives a degree comparable to American University degree of B.A. and trains executive chefs for European restaurants.

Roetherdt came to the United States in 1959 to fill a position at the Shoreham Hotel, Washington, D. C. Following five years as executive chef at the Hotel Windsor Park and two years as food and beverage director, he joined the Marriott Corp. in 1966.

Has Sales Success

Before raising a crossbeam on the first model home, Dick Brown, president of Richard J. Brown Associates had already sold the first homesight in the new Cambridge Community in Prospect Heights. After their recent grand opening, 13 of the original 25 homes are sold.

The location and size of the lots are reasons for this success, according to Brown. Thus, Brown concludes, "this new community combines the convenience of city living with the freedom and comfort of the wide open country."

Buyers can select, from six diversified models, the home constructed to suit the particular needs of their family. Families choose from an assortment of over 22 customized exteriors, ranging in style from American Heritage to European Provincial. All homes are fully landscaped at no extra charge.

ONE OF THE homes on display is the Wellington, a bi-level, with room for a large, highly active family.

The Wellington's lower level features an entrance foyer opening into a living room and formal dining room. A kitchen leads to a separate, family dining area and adjacent family room. For large parties and holiday entertaining, the informal dining area and family room will accommodate additional guests.

Five bedrooms with two full baths occupy the upper level away from the activity of the first floor family living area. The private zoned master suite includes a sitting room, dressing room and bath. Each bedroom has windows which offer a view of the surrounding landscape and cross ventilation.

To reach the models, open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily, take Willow Road (Palatine Road) to Schoenbeck Road, and turn south two blocks.

Moves Up Ladder

Richard M. Rovnyak, 1641 Linden, Hanover Park, has been named a senior engineer in the materials and apparatus laboratory at Automatic Electric Co., Northlake.

Rovnyak, who joined Automatic in 1961, has been a staff engineer since 1966, will have technical and fiscal responsibility in design and development of switching devices.

A graduate of the Indiana Institute of Technology, he holds a degree in electrical engineering.

EYE-CATCHING lamps highlight the entrance to Three Fountains Apartments, in Rolling Meadows. The apartments, on 25 landscaped acres, are located on Route 62. The theme of Old World atmosphere is repeated in the styling of the buildings and in the gatehouse at the entrance.

Adding An Old World Air

Underscoring the exterior concept of Three Fountains Apartments — located on Route 62 (Algonquin Road) in Rolling Meadows — the gate lamps at the entrance catch the eye of the visitor.

The antique lamps, in white wrought iron, continue the Old World air which marks these Scholz-designed apartments. They are mounted on the wall at each side of the entrance gate, and also at the corners of the gatehouse, itself. The latter is styled after the gatehouses still to be found guarding many of the baronial estates of Europe.

The same over-all theme characterizes the exterior lines of all buildings at Three Fountains. The three-story buildings offer one and two-bedroom apartments, featuring many of the same design ideas which have won national citations for Scholz homes over the last few years.

RENTALS AT Three Fountains start at $200 per month for the one-bedroom units. The two-bedroom suites start at $255 per month. Room arrangements of the apartments vary, with one, 1½ and two baths provided.

Each upper floor suite has a private balcony, and ground-floor apartments have their own private patios. Formal landscaped grounds, with courtyards and fountains, are maintained on the 25 acres of grounds.

The main entry foyer of each building is thickly carpeted, with a stairway sweeping upward. Distinctive lighting fixtures are used. Walls of foyers and corridors present a series of molded panels and wallpapers.

In all Three Fountains apartments, floor systems are double-layered and sound-conditioned. Walls are insulated. Every suite is fully carpeted, including closet floors.

Automatic elevators provide service to the large, heated underground garage in each building. A small personal activating unit is provided for each car, for controlling the electronically-operated garage doors. Other features in each building include master TV outlets — secured storage space for each resident — and intercom systems in the entry foyers.

Furnished model apartments at Three Fountains are open to visitors daily from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. They are also shown by special appointment.

Seminar Attracts Salesmen

A sales training seminar was held by Japan's Toyota Motor Co., Sept. 30 through Oct. 1, at the Arlington Park Towers in Arlington Heights, for retail Toyota salesmen in the 14 Midwestern states.

The seminar was conducted by Toyota's national training manager Richard C. Shermet, assisted by Toyota's senior training specialist Jim Truesdell.

The retail sales training program has been developed by Toyota to assist retail Toyota salesmen at Toyota dealerships throughout the country in evaluating the needs of potential customers and to improve the individual salesman's product knowledge, Shermet reported.

REPORTING THAT there are slightly over 1,500 retail Toyota salesmen at the

Truckers Want Liberal Limits

American Trucking Associations today issued a White Paper documenting its assertion that the need to liberalize federal motor vehicle sizes and weights is both necessary and desirable.

The ATA White Paper spelled out the history of present federal limits — written in 1946 — and underscored the trucking industry's position that it can operate more safely and economically with more liberal limits.

The ATA paper asserted that H.R. 11870 — which would permit states to update their limits on truck and bus sizes and weights — has been endorsed by the Department of Transportation and its branch, the Federal Highway Administration and by the American Association of State Highway Officials.

MORE THAN 200 manufacturing, agricultural, food and other business industries maintain the bill is essential to combat inflation, the ATA position paper noted.

Highway safety will be enhanced, ATA said, because of technical improvements — possible if trucks can be manufactured six inches wider.

Also, extra highway expense, according to Department of Transportation experts, won't exceed $305 million, contrary to assertions by the American Automobile Association that costs will run as high as $5.3 billion.

The ATA paper asserted that the trucking industry's widely-used twin-trailer combinations — two short trailers pulled by a single tractor — are as safe or safer than conventional tractor semi-trailer combinations. The paper noted the misuse by the American Automobile Association of an accident study it commissioned by Ernst & Ernst. The AAA claimed to conclude the paper said, that twin-trailer units have higher accident rates. This was categorically denied by Ernest & Ernst.

THE PROPOSED legislation would not, said the paper, authorize larger or heavier trucks than are now on Interstate highways. The bill gives each state the option to bring its standards up to the proposed federal limits. Some states already have higher limits and could keep those limits.

Principal elements of H.R. 11870, the paper stated, are:

—Increase from 18,000 to 20,000 lbs. for single axle weight.

—Increase from 32,000 to 34,000 lbs. for tandem axle weight.

—Change in maximum gross weight from 73,280 lbs. to a formula designed to protect pavement and bridges in each state.

—Increase from 96 to 102 inches in width.

—Institute for the first time a 70-foot length limit.

"The Department of Transportation has estimated that the transportation industry will have to double its facilities every 20 years just to keep pace with the nation's anticipated economic growth," the ATA paper declared. "Since trucking is growing at a considerable faster rate than transportation generally, it appears conservative to estimate that truck capacity will have to be increased even faster."

Herbert Is Manager

Tried Trading In Your Home?

Home trade-in plans, a relatively new concept in the residential real estate field, are proving beneficial in the current period of credit stringencies, according to the president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

John Cotton, San Diego, explained that, since the new-home purchaser in most cases must sell an existing home before he can move, the effect of tightening money is felt in both the new-and-existing-home market.

Demand for housing still outpaces supply, and until recent weeks money was available in most areas although at high rate. At present, however, while demand is still strong and money is expensive, some areas are beginning to report a shortage for home loans. Credit requirements are more strict as a result, and the number of potential home-buyers may thus be curtailed, he noted.

WHILE IT STILL remains a good time for the existing-home owner to sell his house because of the pent-up demand and rising prices, the mortgage market may be squeezing out some prospects. Therefore, he may want "insurance" that he can apply his equity if he buys a new home or has one built, Cotton added.

The owner probably cannot afford the expense of maintaining and keeping up the payments on both homes until the former home is sold, if there is an inordinate delay. The trade-in concept, while developed even before the 1966 credit crunch, is proving invaluable in helping meet some of the problems of the present tight-money market, he added.

"Here is how a typical trade-in plan could work in a hypothetical case," Cotton explained. "A man wishes to purchase a new home for $40,000 with one-third down. However, he must first sell his present home, which he values at about $30,000, and realize his equity of $16,000.

"At the time of signing the contract to purchase the new home, the builder gives the buyer a written guarantee that he, the builder, will take title to the existing home at some given date, if necessary.

"Often, the price the builder will pay is established on the basis of three appraisers' estimates of value of the existing home.

"HOWEVER, THE guarantee to purchase does not go into effect until the time of settlement or another agreed-upon date. This gives the owner time—usually 90 days—in which to sell his home through a Realtor on the open market, which would be advantageous to both the builder and the owner."

Cotton noted that, by selling his house, the owner is more likely to get the going market price, and the builder is not required to take over the house and its related expenses.

"But the guarantee does assure the buyer that he will have a good portion of his equity out of his present home at the time of settlement on the new home and that he will not have both houses for even a short period of time," he explained. "The builder, on the other hand, is assured that his new home has been sold, and he can, therefore, proceed with his other units."

Trade-in plans are one innovation which permit continuation of the entire upgrading process of the real estate industry, and moving into a new home in nearly all cases must be considered a "step up," Cotton said.

However, thousands considering an upgrading in their housing look to the existing-home market, Cotton explained. In fact, 2.5 existing homes change owners for every new home sold. Existing-home buyers realize there are a number of advantages to such a house which cannot be found even in a brand-new unit.

ADVANTAGES OF the existing home include location, numerous improvements added over the years plus an established yard, a settled neighborhood, larger rooms for the same amount of money, and knowledge that the house has been lived in, so major defects, if any, have likely been discovered and corrected.

In the process, the entire housing inventory of the country is upgraded. As people move up to larger, better housing, the inferior and substandard units which are vacated somewhere at the bottom of the chain are either demolished or renovated to make them competitive in the market, according to Cotton.

"Realtors are currently actively engaged in a new program, called the Make America Better Program, which has as one of its several objectives the upgrading of housing," Cotton reported. "This program is a direct attempt to help solve the problems of the nation's cities, including provision of adequate housing for all."

The monthly newsletter, Barometer of Business, published by Harris Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, comments on the causes of inflation and events which may occur before current economic policies slow down inflation:

—The price rise continues and more of the same is expected in the next few months.

—A slowdown is imminent according to several studies. These studies indicate a restraint in spending will follow the onset of a tighter monetary policy by three to six months.

—LEADING INDICATORS of business also show that a slowdown is in the offing; weaknesses in new business formations, new building permits, stock prices, corporate profits after taxes, and installment credit for consumers.

—Relief from inflation is not expected until well into 1970. First, a decline in productivity, a squeeze on corporate tax profits, and increased unemployment are expected.

—The longer current restrictive policies are maintained, the greater the prospects for slowing inflation, but the greater the chances of a recession in 1970.

—The unusually rapid growth in the money supply since mid-1965, except for a period in 1966, is the probable source of inflation, according to the newsletter.

VISIONS OF BARBECUES dance in their heads as Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Nyhus, 440 N. Smith, Palatine, accept a Weber covered barbecue kettle from Evelyn Disbrow of the F.B.K. Rental Firm In Elk Grove International Furniture Rental, Inc., now has an office in Elk Grove Village. One of 12 offices in the United States, the Elk Grove office is located at 101 Kelly St. The company decided to move there after a market survey was conducted in the area.

Leonard Jacobson is Midwest divisional sales manager. Bob Goldenberg is sales manager for the Elk Grove location.

Offering delivery service within 24 hours, the firm has office, warehouse and display facilities in a new building covering 7,500 square feet. Customers may visit the showroom and choose from contemporary or mediterranean styles in a variety of colors. Furniture is usually rented in a package group, decorator coordinated, with appropriate tables, lamps, pictures and other accessories. Single pieces of furniture may also be leased.

FURNITURE MAY BE rented from one month to two years. Customers may rent furniture for an entire house or for a studio apartment.

Goldenberg reports that people using this service are often transferred employees who will be in the area only a short time, though others rent furniture because they cannot afford to buy it.

The staff at the Elk Grove International Furniture Rental office is 10 persons.

Red Balloon Makes Debut

North suburban residents will be treated to a little bit of old Paris when they visit the John R. Thompson Co.'s new Red Balloon family restaurant scheduled to open in mid-October at the intersection of Dempster and Grace in Niles.

Drawing heavily on French architectural styles, both the exterior and interior of the 146-seat restaurant will reflect the Gallic charm in the delightful children's story of a small boy, Pascal, and his magical red balloon.

"From the all-white brick building capped with a bright red roof to the raised interior ceiling with heavy wooden beams, we've incorporated dozens of design details that are reminiscent of Paris a hundred years ago," said James Kibbee, the Thompson Co.'s vice president in charge of engineering.

INSIDE, THE DECOR of the 4,100-sq. ft. restaurant will be a blending of reds, whites and wood tones.

Throughout the restaurant, walls will be decorated with large reproductions of bright colored scenes from the movie, "The Red Balloon."

For lighting, the French theme is carried out with a combination of large conch lamps and decorated ornamental iron lamps with globes custom-designed to resemble red balloons. The red balloon lamp design is also used for lighting in the spacious parking lot.

The new Red Balloon in Niles will be the sixth opened by the John R. Thompson Co., which also owns the nationally famous 100-year-old Henri's luxury chain, Little Red Hen Country Chicken carry-out restaurants, and Holloway House and Ontra cafeterias.

Donald J. Pliszka

Donald J. Pliszka, of Palatine, has been promoted to manager — international personnel for Travel Laboratories International, a division of Baxter Laboratories, Inc.

With the company for nine months, Pliszka previously served as personnel supervisor. He holds a B.S. degree in economics from the University of Wisconsin.

Local Float Levels Vary

Commercial bank float, which is checks in the process of being collected, varies among banks and cities, reports the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. Among major cities in the Seventh Federal Reserve District, banks in Des Moines had the largest float — 20 per cent of total deposits — and Chicago the smallest — 7 per cent. Banks in centers other than large cities averaged float equal to 5 per cent of deposits.

For individual large banks, the range was from a low of 0.01 per cent to a high of 32 per cent of total deposits.

Generally speaking, the larger the bank the greater the ratio of float to total deposits. Seventh District banks with deposits exceeding $500 million averaged a float level of 10 per cent which is roughly double the level at banks in the $100-$200 million class.

THE MOST IMPORTANT factor affecting float at individual banks is the proportion of demand deposits of other banks. Banks holding large deposits of other banks tend to have large float because they handle the collection of checks for such banks.

In the nation as a whole, float is $33.6 billion — 7 per cent of bank assets. In 1946, float averaged $5.3 billion or 3.5 per cent of bank assets.

Since the end of World War II, the volume of check clearings has increased sevenfold while float, as a percentage of assets, has roughly doubled. The smaller rise in float than in check volume is a result of gains in efficiency associated with the use of magnetic ink and high speed computers.

Louis S. Terhune, chartered life underwriter, has been named assistant manager of Continental Assurance Co.'s Insurance Exchange brokerage agency, 175 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago.

A member of the national association of life underwriters since 1946, Terhune was director of its Chicago association in 1964. He has been in the insurance industry since 1946.

Terhune resides at 511 Mayfair Road, Arlington Heights.

New Business Is Off and Running

A new business, Arlington Fastener Co., is located at 500 S. Hicks Road, Palatine.

Albert Malwitz, Arlington Heights, president of the firm, said he has been in business for 13 years and decided to open his own shop. He received technical and engineering training at the University of Illinois. Robert Kleve, Park Ridge, is vice president and general manager of the operation.

The company markets a complete line of fasteners, with accounts in several Midwest states as well as New York.

Most of the 4,000 square foot facility on Hicks Road is warehouse space. The company has five employees.

Close to Arlington Park Race Track, the company has adopted the slogan, "thoroughbred service."

Doucette Is Salesman

William Joseph Doucette of Rolling Meadows, has joined Chemplex Co. in Rolling Meadows, as a sales representative for molding and extrusion resins on the west coast.

Doucette received his B.S. degree from John Carroll University in University Heights, Ohio, in 1960.

Reserve Bank Reports

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago has reported in its monthly publication, "Banking Briefs," that in the first half of August, interest rates charged on short-term loans have varied more for small loans than for large loans.

A quarterly sample of Seventh District banks indicated that 25 per cent of loans for less than $10,000 bore interest rates below the prime interest rate of 8.5 per cent. At the same time, more than three-quarters of all loans for $1 million or more bore rates between 8.5 and 9 per cent.

Average loan rates have risen for both small and large loans, the bank notes, since the increase in the prime rate last June. In the Seventh District the average loan rate was 8.9 per cent in August, compared to 7.9 per cent in May. Although all banks in the sample reported higher average interest rates, some large regional banks make relatively few large loans to business and therefore have not experienced as severe pressures on available funds as have money market banks. Accordingly, the bank reports, they have made smaller adjustments in their rates.

Slowing from the second quarter average, consumer installment loans were affected by a sharp cut in auto paper purchased from dealers. This was associated with a slowdown in consumer purchase of automobiles during the month. Banks also curtailed automobile loans made directly to customers, though not as much as purchased paper.

The July increase in home improvement loans was smaller than in the second quarter. Larger increases than a year ago have been reported, however, in personal loans and in loans for consumer goods other than autos. The bank notes that loans on a revolving basis under bank credit card and check credit plans are less subject to the squeeze on bank funds.

Large banks in the Seventh District reported at the end of August that $76 million of their outstanding large denomination certificates of deposit were scheduled to mature on Sept. 10 and 15, dates when firms make large payments on dividends and income taxes. Down from the $98 million figure a year ago, this year's smaller amount reflects the banks' inability in recent months to offer competitive rates because of Regulation ceilings.

Large banks in the Seventh District have reported that business loans declined more than usual in July and August. This remained true even when the data was adjusted for banks sales of loans to parent companies or others.

Students Use Bank Loans

W. C. Wolf, president of the bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights, has announced that the bank offers participation in the Illinois Guaranteed Loan Program and the Guaranteed Student Loan Program, a policy established by its board of directors.

Its first involvement was simply, loans to the student co-signed by the parents. This began in 1965.

IN 1968, THE BANK became a part of the Illinois Guaranteed Loan Program. This enabled the bank to make more college loans.

The bank now has approximately $500,000 loaned out to local students going to colleges throughout the country. Another $200,000 will be added to this by the end of September, 1969. The demand for this type of loan has been so great that the bank makes these loans solely to students whose families bank with them.

As of December 15, 1968, The Bank & Trust Co. of Arlington Heights ranks ninth in the entire State of Illinois of all banks participating in the Illinois Guaranteed Loan Program. This has been computed on the participated amount in relation to total bank deposits.

In 1965 the bank provided free checking accounts for college students. As of this date the bank has approximately 600 student checking accounts.

Hartensine Gets A New Territory

Richard C. Hartensine

C. H. Masland & Sons, Carlisle, Pa., manufacturer of rugs and carpets, has named Richard C. Hartensine a territory manager in its central division. Announcement of the appointment, effective immediately, was made by G. Richard Keim, vice president for marketing.

Hartensine will serve Masland retailers in a five-county territory in the northern Chicago metropolitan area. Reporting to division manager Elmer Gledhill, headquartered in the Chicago Merchandise Mart, Hartensine will cover Lake and McHenry counties in Illinois and Kenosha, Racine and Walworth counties in Wisconsin.

Hartensine is a graduate of North Penn High School, Landsale, Pa. and of Shippensburg State College, Shippensburg, Pa. In addition, he has completed graduate study courses at West Chester, Pa. State College.

Hartensine and his wife, Ann, live at 870 Old Willow Road, Wheeling.

Campanelli Gets Approval

After a relatively calm, uncomplicated bargaining session between Bloomingdale village trustees and representatives of Campanelli, Inc., officials have accepted essentially the same sewage package which was tentatively approved by the village's plan commission last month.

Provisional agreement over the developer's preliminary plat at Wednesday's committee meeting gives both parties some "direction regarding the village's trunk system and sewage treatment plant," Ralph C. Gross, village engineer, said.

Campanelli's preliminary plat, which has been tentatively approved and is still subject to change, proposes the development of 181 acres south of Lake Street between the Suncrest Highland subdivision and Ridge Avenue.

PRIMARY EFFECT of the board's acceptance of the plat was approval of the rezoning involved. An old pre-annexation agreement can now be updated and reviewed by the board.

Of the 181 acres, 29 immediately south of Lake Street will remain for commercial use. This is 16 per cent of the total project.

South of this section, forming a backward L on the west boundary, will be 42 acres of multiple-family residences. Campanelli has complied with the plan commission, ending the multiple-family housing north of what will be Shick Road. South of Shick Road, the remaining 110 acres are set for single-family residences.

QUESTIONS WERE posed by Trustee Werner Troesken, chairman of the zoning and building committee, who objected to the 630 proposed apartment units in the multiple-family zoned area. Troesken wanted the firm to return to its original 340 townhouses within the same area.

Campanelli representative Joseph Sharkey said the firm changed its townhouse proposal at the request of the plan commission. He said Campanelli would rather build townhouses.

Gary Thompson and Mrs. Diane McLaughlin from Bloomingdale's school board supported the one and two-bedroom apartments over the townhouses, saying they provided a better tax base without generating a large number of children.

Average lot size in the R-1 area will be 10,800 square feet, with 9,000 square feet as the minimum size. The area is to have a maximum of 320 lots.

Campanelli is donating approximately seven acres in the R-3 area to the village for public use. The strip along the western edge of the project is unbuildable and was included in the multiple-family zoning to achieve the density ratio stipulated in the village building code.

ANOTHER PIECE of land in the single-family residential area will also be dedicated to the village.

Approval of the preliminary plat was essential for Campanelli and the village.

"We both need each other," Trustee Wallace Geils said.

Throughout the bargaining, the board and Gross discussed the possibility of Campanelli contributing to the village's sewer trunk system and treatment plant.

Sharkey reiterated his stand taken at an August meeting that he could not promise anything until he knew what would be approved by the village.

The village, in turn, needed estimates of population densities within Campanelli's development to properly oversize the trunk system and request front money for an expanded plant.

CONCERNING THE water and sewer agreement, the firm said it would consent to everything Hoffman-Rosner did, including a hold-harmless clause in the event sewer and water service could not be provided.

With board acceptance of the preliminary plat, the way is now open for both sides to negotiate on the amount of money the firm will provide for underwriting the cost of the sewage treatment plant.

Sharkey has indicated that Campanelli's initial share is not likely to be much, since the entire project will take five years for completion.

If enough front money could be secured, the village could begin designing a sewage treatment plant larger than the 800,000-gallon starter plant it is now considering. If not enough money is available, Gross will go ahead with the 800,000-gallon plant with provisions in it for expansion to an eventual capacity of 2 million gallons.

Final Touches Given Sewer Line

by GEOFFREY MEHL

Another round of finishing touches is being given a proposed contract between Itasca and the Central Manufacturing District (CMD) involving the installation of a major sewer line.

Once again, it is predicted that the contract will be ready for approval by the village board "shortly."

That was the report on the status of the Prospect-Thorndale sewer agreement by Itasca Mayor Will Nottke yesterday. He said the latest snag is preparation of final form of a payback schedule from the village to CMD, with most of the revenue coming from tap-on fees to the sewer line.

ACCORDING TO Nottke, the final agreement should be ready for board action sometime next week, but no deadline was given. The mayor had continued praise for CMD efforts in preparation of the contract, and commented that the latest revision was "very well drawn with little to be corrected."

Nottke said that Village Atty. Lawrence Truog received two copies of a proposed contract from CMD officials Sept. 25, and that he finished study of the document Wednesday.

A paragraph providing for CMD payment to tap onto the existing municipal system at the usual rate of $50 per inch of sewer line was included, the mayor said. He said CMD payment wasn't necessary or expected. "It only involves a couple of hundred dollars," he said. But rather than delay the contract again to remove that section, Nottke said he would let it stand and possibly ask the board to either waive the fee or permit CMD to pay for it.

WORK ON "Exhibit C" — the payback schedule — was reportedly under way by CMD officials yesterday. Nottke said he was informed that a final draft wouldn't be ready until next week.

This was acceptable to him, he said in an interview, and if the contract isn't completed in time for the regular village board meeting Tuesday night, he plans to call a special meeting later next week to take action on the contract.

Nottke said the village plans to advertise for bids on the work as soon as the contract is accepted. General provisions of the document call for CMD to pay for installation of a sewer line along Prospect Street and Thorndale Road, and to be reimbursed for it from tap-ons as the area is developed.

ESTIMATED TO cost in the vicinity of $1 million, it would not only provide for sanitary sewers to the village's growing industrial park, but also would permit development of presently vacant land north of the village. This, the mayor said, will be along residential and industrial lines.

Meanwhile, work on a renovated sewage treatment plant on the southern end of town is progressing. The expanded facility is about 95 per cent complete, Nottke said, and is already up to 100 per cent efficiency.

The mayor added that affluent into Salt Creek is "crystal clear" — much better than what communities to the north and west of Itasca dump into the creek.

"I DON'T KNOW how our poor ducks survive in it," Nottke said. "It's midnight live in it," Nottke said. "It's midnight black and slimy."

Itasca Gains From Wood Dale's Loss

Wood Dale's loss is Itasca's gain as Terry Colls joined the Itasca police department this week.

Formerly, he was appointed as a police officer in Wood Dale and was waiting to give notice to his previous employer. In the interim, he decided the atmosphere in Wood Dale wasn't to his liking and sought employment in Itasca.

Colls, 24, is a resident of Wood Dale where he lives with his wife and child. He has been on duty this week at Itasca, working with Patrolman Edward Inns who is "showing him the ropes."

Colls never served on duty in Wood Dale, therefore had to resign from Wood Dale before joining Itasca.

HE WORKED one year as a patrolman investigator for the Illinois Suburban Police Reserve. During four years of study at Columbia College, Chicago, he graduated with specialization in television and photography.

Police departments can always use men with specialization training, Itasca Police Chief Stanley Rossol said Wednesday. Colls' experience in photography and other technical skills will indeed be an asset to this department, he added.

Rossol said the average work week for the eight man department, which includes himself, will be 40 hours. The previous work consisted of about 48 hours of duty per week, he added.

STARTING SALARY for an Itasca police officer is $550 per month. New officers in Wood Dale get $595 per month.

When asked how he felt about Colls' transfer in loyalties, Wood Dale Acting Chief Robert Sample simply said he was sorry to lose him. Further comment wasn't given.

That Game Back in '69...

by PHIL KURTH

The old man staggered out of the past, from where nobody knew.

It was obvious, though, he had wonderful stories to tell and that he wanted to die with one on his lips as was the tradition in his day.

"Gather 'round," he said feebly, coughing once or twice for effect, "and I'll tell you of that incredible day at Kitty Hawk when..."

"WE'VE READ IT in the history books often enough," responded a rather impudent youngster.

"Well, I'll tell you of the great blizzard of '67..."

"We've heard it from our parents," said a man in his 40's.

"Hmmm. What about the Lake Park-Fenton football game back in '69? Now there was an unforgettable day..."

"Talk of tension, of drama of excitement, of all the things that used to make up a Hollywood plot, this was it. Yep, it was all there — two undefeated teams, the Milwaukee Bell, a bitter rivalry, a classic showdown..."

Paddock Offers Insurance Plan

An accident insurance program is being developed and will be offered to readers of Paddock Publications' Herald and Register newspapers.

Wayne Tite, director of promotions for the newspaper, said the insurance program is the first in a series of announcements involving an extensive program of community services that will be made available to readers. He said an analysis of existing programs throughout the country is being conducted prior to development of a local community services program.

The Readers Accident Insurance Program is being developed in consultation with Washington National Insurance Co. of Evanston.

TERRY COLLS, THE new Itasca police officer, is a specialist in television and photography after spending four years of study at Columbia College. His hiring brings the force up to eight men and cuts the average work week from 48 to 40 hours.

Split Shifts in 1970

A curious mixture of concern and enthusiasm pervaded Lake Park High School Monday night as 100 citizens met with Dist. 108 school board members to discuss the burgeoning enrollment problems.

At the meeting, called by the school board, residents learned that their children will have to attend school in split shifts next year to accommodate the growing high school population.

General consensus reflected the critical need for more buildings and the essential part the community must play in formulating these needs.

AT LEAST A dozen alternatives aimed at housing Dist. 108 students were suggested. Supt. Carl Forrester said it is up to the citizen's advisory committee, which is beginning to form, to go to the community and learn what it really wants.

Forrester said it was imperative a referendum be brought before the voters during this school year or Lake Park High School would have to go on complete split shifts before another building could be built.

Even if a referendum is passed, Forrester told the Register, Lake Park would have to go on temporary split-shift sessions before buildings could be completed.

Raymond W. Foote, school board president, stressed the critical time factor. Assuming a referendum is passed in this school year, it still takes three years for a building to be completed for occupancy.

BY NEXT YEAR Lake Park, which was built to serve 1,750 students, will be overcrowded. It is currently housing 1,720.

There are 6,500 residential units in the district, Forrester said. Using current information on proposed and developing housing projects, he said within the next three to five years "4,130 units, or two-thirds of what is now existing, will be added."

"The district's high school population is expected to double between 1973 and 1974 and double again between 1979 and 1980," Forrester said.

Realizing three site referendums have previously failed in 1962, 1963 and 1968, the group felt the crisis situation facing the district would favor passage of a referendum now.

its only recourse was to bring the issue directly to the residents.

Monday's meeting generated enough response to begin plans for formulating a volunteer citizens' committee to research and investigate what type of referendum could be passed.

Forrester expressed hope the committee could be organized and begin functioning by the end of the month. Exactly how the committee will obtain a consensus of opinion from the community has not been established.

"THAT WILL BE up to the members," Forrester said. "Once the committee is activated and its report ready, another open meeting on its finding will be held to get citizen reaction."

Of the several proposals mentioned at the meeting, one was to acquire more land adjacent to the present site and build another massive building. Other suggestions included acquisition of at least two more sites.

Forrester and board members emphasized that no plan would be favored over another. Total consideration would be given to the desires of the community to insure passage of a referendum.

Nottke Appointed

Wilbert Nottke, mayor of Itasca, was appointed as a member of the committee on international municipal cooperation of the National League of Cities.

In making the appointment, league president Beverly Briley, mayor of Nashville, Tenn., noted that "you will be a member of a three member delegation from your state to represent its municipal interests in this important committee."

Committee chairman is Mayor Victor Shro of New Orleans, La., and vice chairman is Mayor Milton Graham of Phoenix, Ariz.

The league president said, "To keep city leadership in the forefront of national urban policy development, the committees have three major tasks:

First, a constant search for new concepts which will aid in providing a good life for all urban Americans, second, carefully weighing the national and urban program priorities; and third, more clearly determining the strategies necessary to achieve our goals.

"National Municipal Policy activity is a year-round effort," the Nashville mayor wrote. "I sincerely hope that you will accept this assignment and that you will provide the chairman and the NLC staff with suggestions for either policy or procedural improvements."

Nottke, in accepting the appointment, said "naturally, I'm quite pleased, and I'll do my best to work for the advantage of municipalities and the betterment and encouragement of the league."

HE SAID he got the appointment through the Illinois Municipal League.

Nottke, in addition to duties as mayor of Itasca, is also the president of the DuPage County Mayors and Managers Conference.

School Consolidation Committee Begins Work

by RICHARD BARTON

David Buser of Keeneyville was chosen Wednesday as chairman of the consolidation study committee of citizens and school board members from Lake Park High School and its five underlying grade school districts.

The group met for the first time armed with some facts and figures to begin work in studying the feasibility of consolidating grade school districts from Roselle, Itasca, Bloomingdale, Keeneyville and Medinah with Lake Park High School into a unit district. Any combination of consolidations like between just Roselle and Keeneyville, for example, will also be considered.

Committee membership is supposed to be three citizens or school board members from each district. The roster came up short Wednesday.

FROM ROSELLE, board members Donald Bessey and Edwin Peck and citizen Dr. C. F. Nagro were present.

Mrs. Greta Long, Bloomingdale school board member, Mrs. Jean Bonavolonta, PTA member, and Carl Merchut represent Bloomingdale to the committee.

Keeneyville members are Mrs. Joan Stucker, Kay Lohm and Duiker.

Itasca is represented by F. Edward Peacock, Dist. 10 board president, Mrs. Mary Hodgins, board secretary, and Raymond Benson. The sole representative of Medinah Dist. 11 is Supt. Richard C. Davis. Lake Park was represented by Stanley Wheeler, administrative assistant.

E. W. J. BAGG, Roselle superintendent of schools, began committee discussion with a short review of a state education task force study completed two years ago. The study said quality education can only be obtained by paying for it, he said.

A school district is only as good as its educational leadership, which includes the school board and parents who choose the direction and development, he said. Superintendents should be guides for development, he added, because no one knows all the answers.

Area development, which was predicted as being more dense in 10 years in population due to more high-rise buildings, rapid transportation and other reasons were kicked around as justification for considering the feasibility of consolidation.

PEACOCK CITED three main factors which should be studied by the committee. They were:

—That educational facilities can be obtained which are not now available in individual districts.

—How will financing be affected by consolidation because each district has a different status at present.

—Can practical matters such as building enough "bridges" between the communities be done to make an area-wide acceptance.

He said the achievement of education benefits for district students should be the main concern of why to consolidate, if at all. Financing would be easy to study, he added, and of secondary importance.

HIS THIRD POINT was clarified with an example question.

"Will residents in Bloomingdale, for example, vote to pass a bond issue for a school to be built in the Itasca area?"

The committee must find out if the communities are psychologically ready to be joined into a unit district, he said, which is an extremely difficult thing to evaluate.

Other possible problems may exist, for example, because Roselle is nearly 90 per cent developed and doesn't predict much more need for school. On the other hand, Bloomingdale will soon experience extremely rapid growth.

In a favorable light for consolidation, according to Bessey, is that there is a trend in state aid upward. The state once paid about 25 per cent of the district cost, he said, but now pays nearly 30 per cent. He predicted the day when the state may pay over 50 per cent.

"AS THE STATE pays more of the load cost of education, the individual tax base of each district becomes less important,"

Bessey said. "It also looks like possible state aid formulas resulting from expected constitutional changes will further encourage consolidation for financial benefits."

The committee agreed there would be cost savings with increased use of administrative staff and one superintendent.

Peacock said no superintendent presently working in any of the district would be out of a job as a result of consolidation.

There would be other much needed positions such as curriculum director which could be filled by highly qualified men like Arnold Rusche, Itasca school superintendent, he added.

BUCKER PREDICTED teacher salaries may be increased overall because some districts are lower than others at present.

A standardization of all financial information and district statistics will be made before the next committee meeting Nov. 20 at the Lake Park High School board room. The information sheet will act as a basis and reference chart for further actions from which subcommittees can act.

Committee formation was done Aug. 6 by an informal meeting of representatives from Roselle, Bloomingdale and Keeneyville and Lake Park. Consolidation efforts have been underway for over a year.

Train Riders Plan Car Pools

Cautious commuters in the Northwest suburbs are planning their car pools now in face of a nationwide railroad strike threatened for midnight tonight.

Spokesmen from both the Chicago North Western and the Milwaukee Road railroads said they will be out of operation if the strike occurs.

"But that's a big if," said Ashley Wilhite of the Milwaukee Road. "We seldom know anything definite until it occurs," he added, "but we're preparing for it."

"It's hard to believe the strike will actually take place," Wilhite said. The strike would paralyze all rail service.

"YOUR GUESS is as good as mine,"

Frank Koval of Chicago North Western said Thursday when asked if the strike will take place.

"One thing in the offering is if President Nixon appoints a presidential acting board. That will stop the strike for 60 days," he added.

President Nixon has until midnight tonight to appoint the board and head off the strike temporarily, Koval added.

The situation is in the President's hands, Wilhite agreed. He could offer no consolation to commuters should the strike occur. "We have to be prepared if transportation simply does not run. That is very hard to face," Wilhite added.

A primary concern of the railroads is that perishable goods get to a point where they can be protected while a strike is on, he said.

WILHITE COMPARED the situation yesterday to water rising during a flood. "You can't stop it so you just watch it rise," he said.

The strike threat is being meted by four shopcraft unions in pursuit of a 10 per cent pay increase.

Since regional, rather than nationwide, service would be halted, according to initial reports, there was doubt that President Nixon would intervene.

Later developments indicate that rail service would be hampered on a national level and a fine line now exists on which the president must make a decision.

The railroads threatened with the strike Saturday were the Santa Fe, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Erie Lackawanna, Southern, Baltimore and Ohio and Chesapeake and Ohio.

The unions include the International Association of Machinists, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, International Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Blacksmiths and the Sheet Metal Workers.

Vote on Garbage Contract

A formal agreement between Teamsters Local 782, the union which includes garbage collectors in 25 communities in DuPage and Cook counties, and the Chicago and Suburban Scavengers Association was to be voted on by union members late yesterday.

Clair Wilhite, regional director of the Federal Mediation Service, said a tentative agreement has been reached and "we have every reason to believe it will be accepted."

A mediator from the federal service was in on the negotiations between the union and the scavengers' companies.

MANY NORTHWEST suburban garbage

collectors refused to go to work Wednesday and Thursday despite a temporary agreement which was supposed to forestall any walkout.

Garbage collection companies that serve Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect were affected by wildcat strikes.

Officials of the union agreed Monday to delay the Oct. 1 strike voted by union members last week. The agreement to hold off the strike was made with the understanding that any final settlement would be made retroactive to Wednesday, the expiration date of the contract between the union and the scavengers' association.

Wilhite said he was surprised to hear of the wildcat strikes in the area. "It's possible that some of the people got antsy," he said.

Unofficial sources reported the strikers were unhappy with the negotiations and "they wanted to force the issue and force it fast." The sources said the members were not happy with the slowness of union officials to get a settlement.

TELEGRAMS WERE sent to members of the local union Tuesday night to tell them the strike had temporarily been called off and to show up for work Wednesday morning. However, some workers struck anyway.

John Baggot, spokesman for the teamsters, said the main demand is a salary increase of $1 per hour across the board for men. The current rate is $3.86 per hour. Other demands such as holiday and vacation pay were also discussed.

Details of the tentative agreement will not be released unless the union membership votes approval of the settlement today.

Election Judges To Get $30 A Day

Election judges in DuPage County will receive $30 a day for all elections they work.

The $30 amount is the maximum allowable by the recently passed state bill.

The DuPage County Board of Supervisors passed the resolution raising the election judges' salaries from $25 to $30 after Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie signed the amendment to the state election code.

As stipulated in the amendment, any county with a population of less than 500,000 can fix the compensation of the judges of elections at not less than $20 nor more than $30 per day.

Village Beat

Geoffrey Mehl

Lake Park High School is going to make Bison Peanut Butter out of Fenton tomorrow. Fenton is going to be so mangled by the guys from Roselle they will wake up Sunday morning wondering why they are in the same conference.

Now, the TriCounty group is a fairly good one, and I'll concede that Fenton has a better than average squad. But Lake Park is beautiful, and they are going to kill Fenton tomorrow and win the conference title and there won't be a chance for Bisons at all.

We hear Fenton has got a pretty good quarterback, but like the rest of the Bisons, he'll be eating grass in his own backfield when Lake Park's defense punctures the Fenton offensive line, sort of like shooting bullets through glass.

FENTON IS going to get murdered.

The Lancers, of course, play a waiting game. They wisely study opposition defense for the first quarter or so, probing the weak points, finding the keys to victory.

In the meantime, offensive and defensive lines work over the opponent with ease, and when the crucial moment arrives, the hapless team that would dare challenge the Lancers goes down for the count with a single punch.

And then it's all over. Glenn Domato numbers his magnificent throwing arm, and the ball is all over the field with defensemen scattered about like so many fallen tin soldiers.

Fenton? Hah. When you're playing someone easy like Elmwood Park, you can do nothing but look threatening. The casual observer will note that they try to score early, apparently because they haven't got the staying power for that second round.

FENTON ONLY scored 14 points in the second half last weekend, but Lake Park got 26. It's a different sort of style, but we've seen enough high school football to know that the team that goes nutty on the scoreboard in the second half has got it all over the team that must roll up the points early in the game.

Elmwood Park, for example, didn't do a thing in the first two periods but promptly came up with 16 points after the halftime break.

Domato's throwing arm is something else. He was eight for 12 last weekend, good for 113 yards. Carlos Villarreal was good for four out of nine and 67 yards. Domato is good on the ground, too — last time out he rolled up 189 yards. The lad from Fenton was good for only 70 yards.

Fenton must rely on the rest of its backfield, while Lake Park's defense wipes out backfield. Ridgewood could muster only 99 yards on the ground from four backs other than the quarterback.

FENTON HAS A reasonable attack, and we'll give them three touchdowns. But the Lancers are worth five scores this weekend, and the bet is that Lake Park will defeat Fenton by a score of 33-20.

Fenton is going to get murdered. It's not that they are a lousy team; it's just that Lake Park is better.

See you there.

Procon has just added 36,000 square feet to its international headquarters in Des Plaines, Illinois. This space contains a new design-drafting section where we're adding facilities and men because our business, already well over $100,000,000 a year, is growing fast. Our growth means good openings for designers and draftsmen, especially those with electrical and mechanical experience. These are permanent jobs... not feast-or-famine slots in a drafting room.

Before we build a refinery like the one underway in Thailand, or the ones just finished in Spain and South Korea, we have to produce about 4,000 linear feet of blueprints. Campanelli Gets Approval

After a relatively calm, uncomplicated bargaining session between Bloomingdale village trustees and representatives of Campanelli, Inc., officials have accepted essentially the same sewage package which was tentatively approved by the village's plan commission last month.

Provisional agreement over the developer's preliminary plat at Wednesday's committee meeting gives both parties some "direction regarding the village's trunk system and sewage treatment plant," Ralph C. Gross, village engineer, said.

Campanelli's preliminary plat, which has been tentatively approved and is still subject to change, proposes the development of 181 acres south of Lake Street between the Suncrest Highland subdivision and Ridge Avenue.

PRIMARY EFFECT of the board's acceptance of the plat was approval of the rezoning involved. An old pre-annexation agreement can now be updated and reviewed by the board.

Of the 181 acres, 29 immediately south of Lake Street will remain for commercial use. This is 16 per cent of the total project.

South of this section, forming a back-ward L on the west boundary, will be 42 acres of multiple-family residences. Campanelli has complied with the plan commission, ending the multiple-family housing north of what will be Shick Road.

South of Shick Road, the remaining 110 acres are set for single-family residences.

QUESTIONS WERE posed by Trustee Werner Troesken, chairman of the zoning and building committee, who objected to the 630 proposed apartment units in the multiple-family zoned area. Troesken wanted the firm to return to its original 340 townhouses within the same area.

Campanelli representative Joseph Sharkey said the firm changed its townhouse proposal at the request of the plan commission. He said Campanelli would rather build townhouses.

Gary Thompson and Mrs. Diane McLaughlin from Bloomingdale's school board supported the one and two-bedroom apartments over the townhouses, saying they provided a better tax base without generating a large number of children.

Average lot size in the R-1 area will be 10,800 square feet, with 9,000 square feet as the minimum size. The area is to have a maximum of 320 lots.

Campanelli is donating approximately seven acres in the R-3 area to the village for public use. The strip along the western edge of the project is unbuildable and was included in the multiple-family zoning to achieve the density ratio stipulated in the village building code.

ANOTHER PIECE of land in the single-family residential area will also be dedicated to the village.

Approval of the preliminary plat was essential for Campanelli and the village.

"We both need each other," Trustee Wallace Geils said.

Throughout the bargaining, the board and Gross discussed the possibility of Campanelli contributing to the village's sewer trunk system and treatment plant.

Sharkey reiterated his stand taken at an August meeting that he could not promise anything until he knew what would be approved by the village.

The village, in turn, needed estimates of population densities within Campanelli's development to properly oversize the trunk system and request front money for an expanded plant.

CONCERNING THE water and sewer agreement, the firm said it would consent to everything Hoffman-Rosner did, including a hold-harmless clause in the event sewer and water service could not be provided.

With board acceptance of the preliminary plat, the way is now open for both sides to negotiate on the amount of money the firm will provide for underwriting the cost of the sewage treatment plant.

Sharkey has indicated that Campanelli's initial share is not likely to be much, since the entire project will take five years for completion.

If enough front money could be secured, the village could begin designing a sewage treatment plant larger than the 800,000-gallon starter plant it is now considering. If not enough money is available, Gross will go ahead with the 800,000-gallon plant with provisions in it for expansion to an eventual capacity of 2 million gallons.

Final Touches Given Sewer Line

by GEOFFREY MEHL

Another round of finishing touches is being given a proposed contract between Itasca and the Central Manufacturing District (CMD) involving the installation of a major sewer line.

Once again, it is predicted that the contract will be ready for approval by the village board "shortly."

That was the report on the status of the Prospect-Thorndale sewer agreement by Itasca Mayor Will Nottke yesterday. He said the latest snag is preparation of final form of a payback schedule from the village to CMD, with most of the revenue coming from tap-on fees to the sewer line.

ACCORDING TO Nottke, the final agreement should be ready for board action sometime next week, but no deadline was given. The mayor had continued praise for CMD efforts in preparation of the contract, and commented that the latest revision was "very well drawn with little to be corrected."

Nottke said that Village Atty. Lawrence Tracer received two copies of a proposed contract from CMD officials Sept. 25, and that he finished study of the document Wednesday.

A paragraph providing for CMD payment to tap onto the existing municipal system at the usual rate of $50 per inch of sewer line was included, the mayor said.

He said CMD payment wasn't necessary or expected. "It only involves a couple of hundred dollars," he said. But rather than delay the contract again to remove that section, Nottke said he would let it stand and possibly ask the board to either waive the fee or permit CMD to pay for it.

WORK ON "Exhibit C" — the payback schedule — was reportedly under way by CMD officials yesterday. Nottke said he was informed that a final draft wouldn't be ready until next week.

This was acceptable to him, he said in an interview, and if the contract isn't completed in time for the regular village board meeting Tuesday night, he plans to call a special meeting later next week to take action on the contract.

Nottke said the village plans to advertise for bids on the work as soon as the contract is accepted. General provisions of the document call for CMD to pay for installation of a sewer line along Prospect Street and Thorndale Road, and to be reimbursed for it from tap-ons as the area is developed.

ESTIMATED TO cost in the vicinity of $1 million, it would not only provide for sanitary sewers to the village's growing industrial park, but also would permit development of presently vacant land north of the village. This, the mayor said, will be along residential and industrial lines.

Meanwhile, work on a renovated sewage treatment plant on the southern end of town is progressing. The expanded facility is about 95 per cent complete, Nottke said, and is already up to 100 per cent efficiency.

The mayor added that affluent into Salt Creek is "crystal clear" — much better than what communities to the north and west of Itasca dump into the creek.

"I DON'T KNOW how our poor ducks survive in it," Nottke said. "It's midnight vire in it," Nottke said. "It's midnight black and slimy."

Itasca Gains From Wood Dale's Loss

Wood Dale's loss is Itasca's gain as Terry Colls joined the Itasca police department this week.

Formerly, he was appointed as a police officer in Wood Dale and was waiting to give notice to his previous employer. In the interim, he decided the atmosphere in Wood Dale wasn't to his liking and sought employment in Itasca.

Colls, 24, is a resident of Wood Dale where he lives with his wife and child. He has been on duty this week at Itasca, working with Patrolman Edward Innis who is "showing him the ropes."

Colls never served on duty in Wood Dale, therefore had to resign from Wood Dale before joining Itasca.

HE WORKED one year as a patrolman investigator for the Illinois Suburban Police Reserve. During four years of study at Columbia College, Chicago, he graduated with specialization in television and photography.

Police departments can always use men with specialization training, Itasca Police Chief Stanley Rossol said Wednesday. Colls' experience in photography and other technical skills will indeed be an asset to this department, he added.

Rossol said the average work week for the eight man department, which includes himself, will be 40 hours. The previous work consisted of about 48 hours of duty per week, he added.

STARTING SALARY for an Itasca police officer is $550 per month. New officers in Wood Dale get $595 per month.

When asked how he felt about Colls' transfer in loyalties, Wood Dale Acting Chief Robert Sample simply said he was sorry to lose him. Further comment wasn't given.

That Game Back in '69...

by PHIL KURTH

The old man staggered out of the past, from where nobody knew.

It was obvious, though, he had wonderful stories to tell and that he wanted to die with one on his lips as was the tradition in his day.

"Gather 'round," he said feebly, coughing once or twice for effect, "and I'll tell you of that incredible day at Kitty Hawk when..."

"WE'VE READ IT in the history books often enough," responded a rather impudent youngster.

"Well, I'll tell you of the great blizzard of '67..."

"We've heard it from our parents," said a man in his 40's.

"Humm. What about the Lake Park-Fenton football game back in '69? Now there was an unforgettable day..."

"Talk of tension, of drama of excitement, of all the things that used to make up a Hollywood plot, this was it. Yep, it was all there — two undefeated teams, the Milwaukee Bell, a bitter rivalry, a classic showdown..."

Paddock Offers Insurance Plan

An accident insurance program is being developed and will be offered to readers of Paddock Publications' Herald and Register newspapers.

Wayne Tite, director of promotions for the newspaper, said the insurance program is the first in a series of announcements involving an extensive program of community services that will be made available to readers. He said an analysis of existing programs throughout the country is being conducted prior to development of a local community services program.

The Readers Accident Insurance Program is being developed in consultation with Washington National Insurance Co. of Evanston.

Split Shifts in 1970

A curious mixture of concern and enthusiasm pervaded Lake Park High School Monday night as 100 citizens met with Dist. 108 school board members to discuss the burgeoning enrollment problems.

At the meeting, called by the school board, residents learned that their children will have to attend school in split shifts next year to accommodate the growing high school population.

General consensus reflected the critical need for more buildings and the essential part the community must play in formulating these needs.

AT LEAST A dozen alternatives aimed at housing Dist. 108 students were suggested. Supt. Carl Forrester said it is up to the citizen's advisory committee, which is beginning to form, to go to the community and learn what it really wants.

Forrester said it was imperative a referendum be brought before the voters during this school year or Lake Park High School would have to go on complete split shifts before another building could be built.

Even if a referendum is passed, Forrester told the Register, Lake Park would have to go on temporary split-shift sessions before buildings could be completed.

Raymond W. Foote, school board president, stressed the critical time factor. Assuming a referendum is passed in this school year, it still takes three years for a building to be completed for occupancy.

BY NEXT YEAR Lake Park, which was built to serve 1,750 students, will be overcrowded. It is currently housing 1,720.

There are 6,500 residential units in the district, Forrester said. Using current information on proposed and developing housing projects, he said within the next three to five years "4,130 units, or two-thirds of what is now existing, will be added."

"The district's high school population is expected to double between 1973 and 1974 and double again between 1979 and 1980," Forrester said.

Realizing three site referendums have previously failed in 1962, 1965 and 1968, the group felt the crisis situation facing the district would favor passage of a referendum now.

BECAUSE THESE referenda, proposed after extensive studies by professional firms, were defeated, the school board felt its only recourse was to bring the issue directly to the residents.

Monday's meeting generated enough response to begin plans for formulating a volunteer citizens' committee to research and investigate what type of referendum could be passed.

Forrester expressed hope the committee could be organized and begin functioning by the end of the month. Exactly how the committee will obtain a consensus of opinion from the community has not been established.

"THAT WILL BE up to the members," Forrester said. "Once the committee is activated and its report ready, another open meeting on its finding will be held to get citizen reaction."

Of the several proposals mentioned at the meeting, one was to acquire more land adjacent to the present site and build another massive building. Other suggestions included acquisition of at least two more sites.

Forrester and board members emphasized that no plan would be favored over another. Total consideration would be given to the desires of the community to insure passage of a referendum.

TERRY COLLS, THE new Itasca police officer, is a specialist in television and photography after spending four years of study at Columbia College. His hiring brings the force up to eight men and cuts the average work week from 48 to 40 hours.

lein and outscored Ridgewood in a rouser to come into Bensenville that Oct. 4 with a 2-0 conference record.

"AND FENTON? They were the Cinderella team, not mentioned by anyone as a title contender when the year began. But steam-rolled defending champion Munde-

Nottke Appointed

Wilbert Nottke, mayor of Itasca, was appointed as a member of the committee on international municipal cooperation of the National League of Cities.

In making the appointment, league president Beverly Briley, mayor of Nashville, Tenn., noted that "you will be a member of a three member delegation from your state to represent its municipal interests in this important committee."

Committee chairman is Mayor Victor Shiro of New Orleans, La., and vice chairman is Mayor Milton Graham of Phoenix, Ariz.

The league president said, "To keep city leadership in the forefront of national urban policy development, the committees have three major tasks."

First, a constant search for new concepts which will aid in providing a good life for all urban Americans; second, carefully weighing the national and urban program priorities; and third, more clearly determining the strategies necessary to achieve our goals.

"National Municipal Policy activity is a year-round effort," the Nashville mayor wrote. "I sincerely hope that you will accept this assignment and that you will provide the chairman and the NLC staff with suggestions for either policy or procedural improvements."

Nottke, in accepting the appointment, said "naturally, I'm quite pleased, and I'll do my best to work for the advantage of municipalities and the betterment and encouragement of the league."

HE SAID he got the appointment through the Illinois Municipal League.

Nottke, in addition to duties as mayor of Itasca, is also the president of the DuPage County Mayors and Managers Conference.

WILL NOTTKE, mayor of Itasca, on a new appointment: "I'm pleased, and I'll do my best to work for the advantage of municipalities."

School Consolidation Committee Begins Work

by RICHARD BARTON

David Buser of Keeneyville was chosen Wednesday as chairman of the consolidation study committee of citizens and school board members from Lake Park High School and its five underlying grade school districts.

The group met for the first time armed with some facts and figures to begin work in studying the feasibility of consolidating grade school districts from Roselle, Itasca, Bloomingdale, Keeneyville and Medinah with Lake Park High School into a unit district. Any combination of consolidations like between just Roselle and Keeneyville, for example, will also be considered.

Committee membership is supposed to be three citizens or school board members from each district. The roster came up short Wednesday.

FROM ROSELLE, board members Donald Bessey and Edwin Peck and citizen Dr. C. F. Nagro were present.

Mrs. Greta Long, Bloomingdale school board member, Mrs. Jean Bonavolonta, PTA member, and Carl Merchut represent Bloomingdale to the committee.

Keeneyville members are Mrs. Joan Wacker, Kay Loftus and Bucker.

Itasca is represented by F. Edward Peacock, Dist. 10 board president, Mrs. Mary Hodgins, board secretary, and Raymond

Benson.

The sole representative of Medinah Dist. 11 is Supt. Richard C. Davis.

Lake Park was represented by Stanley Wheeler, administrative assistant.

E. W. J. BAGG, Roselle superintendent of schools, began committee discussion with a short review of a state education task force study completed two years ago. The study said quality education can only be obtained by paying for it, he said.

A school district is only as good as its educational leadership, which includes the school board and parents who choose the direction and development, he said. Superintendents should be guides for development, he added, because no one knows all the answers.

Area development, which was predicted as being more dense in 10 years in population due to more high-rise buildings, rapid transportation and other reasons were kicked around as justification for considering the feasibility of consolidation.

PEACOCK CITED three main factors which should be studied by the committee. They were:

—What educational benefits can be obtained which are not now available in individual districts.

—How will financing be affected by consolidation because each district has a different status at present.

—Can practical matters such as building enough "bridges" between the communities be done to make an area-wide acceptance.

He said the achievement of education benefits for district students should be the main concern of why to consolidate, if at all. Financing would be easy to study, he added, and of secondary importance.

HIS THIRD POINT was clarified with an example question.

"Will residents in Bloomingdale, for example, vote to pass a bond issue for a school to be built in the Itasca area?"

The committee must find out if the communities are psychologically ready to be joined into a unit district, he said, which is an extremely difficult thing to evaluate.

Other possible problems may exist, for example, because Roselle is nearly 90 per cent developed and doesn't predict much more need for school. On the other hand, Bloomingdale will soon experience extremely rapid growth.

In a favorable light for consolidation, according to Bessey, is that there is a trend in state aid upward. The state once paid about 25 per cent of the district cost, he said, but now pays nearly 50 per cent. He predicted the day when the state may pay over 50 per cent.

"AS THE STATE pays more of the load cost of education, the individual tax base of each district becomes less important,"

Bessey said. "It also looks like possible state aid formulas resulting from expected constitutional changes will further encourage consolidation for financial benefits."

The committee agreed there would be cost savings with increased use of administrative staff and one superintendent.

Peacock said no superintendent presently working in any of the district would be out of a job as a result of consolidation.

There would be other much needed positions such as curriculum director which could be filled by highly qualified men like Arnold Rusche, Itasca school superintendent, he added.

BUCKER PREDICTED teacher salaries may be increased overall because some districts are lower than others at present.

A standardization of all financial information and district statistics will be made before the next committee meeting Nov. 20 at the Lake Park High School board room. The information sheet will act as a basis and reference chart for further actions from which subcommittees can act.

Committee formation was done Aug. 6 by an informal meeting of representatives from Roselle, Bloomingdale and Keeneyville and Lake Park. Consolidation efforts have been underway for over a year.

Train Riders Plan Car Pools

Cautious commuters in the Northwest suburbs are planning their car pools now in face of a nationwide railroad strike threatened for midnight tonight.

Spokesmen from both the Chicago North Western and the Milwaukee Road railroads said they will be out of operation if the strike occurs.

"But that's a big if," said Ashley Wilhite of the Milwaukee Road. "We seldom know anything definite until it occurs," he added of railroad strikes in general.

"It's hard to believe the strike will actually take place," Wilhite said. The strike would paralyze all rail service.

"YOUR GUESS is as good as mine," Frank Koval of Chicago North Western said Thursday when asked if the strike will take place.

"One thing in the offering is if President Nixon appoints a presidential aid finding board. That will stop the strike for 60 days," he added.

President Nixon has until midnight tonight to appoint the board and head off the strike temporarily, Koval added.

The situation is in the President's hands, Wilhite agreed. He could offer no consolation to commuters should the strike occur. "We have to be prepared if transportation simply does not run. That is very hard to face," Wilhite added.

A primary concern of the railroads is that perishable goods get to a point where they can be protected while a strike is on, he said.

WILHITE COMPARED the situation yesterday to water rising during a flood. "You can't stop it so you just watch it rise," he said.

The strike threat is being initiated by four shopcraft unions in pursuit of a 10 per cent pay increase.

Since regional, rather than nationwide, service would be halted, according to initial reports, there was doubt that President Nixon would intervene.

Later, developments indicate that rail service would be hampered on a national level and a fine line now exists on which the president must make a decision.

The railroads threatened with the strike Saturday were the Santa Fe, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Erie Lackawanna, Southern, Baltimore and Ohio and Chesapeake and Ohio.

The unions include the International Association of Machinists, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, International Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Blacksmiths and the Sheet Metal Workers."

Vote on Garbage Contract

A formal agreement between Teamsters Local 782, the union which includes garbage collectors in 25 communities in DuPage and Cook counties, and the Chicago and Suburban Scavengers Association was to be voted on by union members late yesterday.

Clair Wilhite, regional director of the Federal Mediation Service, said a tentative agreement has been reached and "we have every reason to believe it will be accepted."

A mediator from the federal service was in on the negotiations between the union and the scavenger companies.

MANY NORTHWEST suburban garbage

collectors refused to go to work Wednesday and Thursday despite a temporary agreement which was supposed to forestall any walkout.

Garbage collection companies that serve Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect were affected by wildcat strikes.

Officials of the union agreed Monday to delay the Oct. 1 strike voted by union members last week. The agreement to hold off the strike was made with the understanding that any final settlement would be made retroactive to Wednesday, the expiration date of the contract between the union and the scavengers' association.

Wilhite said he was surprised to hear of the wildcat strikes in the area. "It's possible that some of the people got antsy," he said.

Unofficial sources reported the strikers were unhappy with the negotiations and "they wanted to force the issue and force it fast." The sources said the members were not happy with the slowness of union officials to get a settlement.

TELEGRAMS WERE sent to members of the local union Tuesday night to tell them the strike had temporarily been called off and to show up for work Wednesday morning. However, some workers struck anyway.

John Baggot, spokesman for the teamsters, said the main demand is a salary increase of $1 per hour across the board for men. The current rate is $3.86 per hour. Other demands such as holiday and vacation pay were also discussed.

Details of the tentative agreement will not be released unless the union membership votes approval of the settlement today.

Election Judges To Get $30 A Day

Election judges in DuPage County will receive $30 a day for all elections they work.

The $30 amount is the maximum allowable by the recently passed state bill.

The DuPage County Board of Supervisors passed the resolution raising the election judges' salaries from $25 to $30 after Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie signed the amendment to the state election code.

As stipulated in the amendment, any county with a population of less than 500,000 can fix the compensation of the judges of elections at not less than $20 nor more than $30 per day.

Lake Park High School is going to make Bison Peanut Butter out of Fenton tomorrow. Fenton is going to be so mangled by the guys from Roselle they will wake up Sunday morning wondering why they are in the same conference.

Now, the TriCounty group is a fairly good one, and I'll concede that Fenton has a better than average squad. But Lake Park is beautiful, and they are going to kill Fenton tomorrow and win the conference title and there won't be a chance for Bisons at all.

We hear Fenton has got a pretty good quarterback, but like the rest of the Bisons, he'll be eating grass in his own backfield when Lake Park's defense punctures the Fenton offensive line, sort of like shooting bullets through glass.

FENTON IS going to get murdered.

The Lancers, of course, play a waiting game. They wisely study opposition defense for the first quarter or so, probing the weak points, finding the keys to victory.

In the meantime, offensive and defensive lines work over the opponent with ease, and when the crucial moment arrives, the hapless team that would dare challenge the Lancers goes down for the count with a single punch.

And then it's all over. Glenn Domato unleashes his magnificent throwing arm, and the ball is all over the field with defensemen scattered about like so many fallen tin soldiers.

Fenton? Hah. When you're playing someone easy like Elmwood Park, you can do nothing but look threatening. The casual observer will note that they try to score early, apparently because they haven't got the staying power for that second round.

FENTON ONLY scored 14 points in the second half last weekend, but Lake Park got 26. It's a different sort of style, but we've seen enough high school football to know that the team that goes nutty on the scoreboard in the second half has got it all over the team that must roll up the points early in the game.

Elmwood Park, for example, didn't do a thing in the first two periods but promptly came up with 16 points after the halftime break.

Domato's throwing arm is something else. He was eight for 12 last weekend, good for 113 yards. Carlos Villarreal was good for four out of nine and 67 yards. Domato is good on the ground, too — last time out he rolled up 199 yards. The lad from Fenton was good for only 70 yards.

Fenton must rely on the rest of its backfield, while Lake Park's defense wipes out backfield. Ridgewood could muster only 99 yards on the ground from four backs other than the quarterback.

FENTON HAS A reasonable attack, and we'll give them three touchdowns. But the Lancers are worth five scores this weekend, and the bet is that Lake Park will defeat Fenton by a score of 33-20.

Fenton is going to get murdered. It's not that they are a lousy team; it's just that Lake Park is better.

See you there.

That formula can mean a lot if you're a designer-draftsman... it can mean a lifetime career in a job you'll like.

Procon has just added 36,000 square feet to its international headquarters in Des Plaines, Illinois. This space contains a new design-drafting section where we're adding facilities and men because our business, already well over $100,000,000 a year, is growing fast. Our growth means good openings for designers and draftsmen, especially those with electrical and mechanical experience. These are permanent jobs... not feast-or-famine slots in a drafting room.

Before we build a refinery like the one underway in Thailand, or the ones just finished in Spain and South Korea, we have to produce about 4,000 linear feet of blueprints. CIVIL DEFENSE volunteers have always worked closely with police in Bensenville, but have been serving in a new capacity during the last month. Due to a shortage of men on the police force, CD workers have aided by riding in patrol cars, helping direct traffic and helping man the switchboard. Here CD worker Herb Tueffel calls into the station from the patrol car of Cpl. Robert Schneider.

$425,000 Loan OK Expected Soon

Approval by the Illinois School Building Commission is expected this month to loan $425,000 to Wood Dale School Dist. 7 to be repaid interest-free over a period of nearly 17 years.

Warren E. Carson, district superintendent, made that evaluation Wednesday following passage of two referendum issues by district voters on Tuesday.

After approving a $250,000 bond issue by a 754 to 397 vote, residents also endorsed the loan by a 609 to 529 margin.

DELIGHTED WITH passage of both issues, which will be used to expand and improve elementary schools in the 1,625-student district, Carson said that canvassing of returns will probably take place at an adjourned school board meeting Monday night.

"I talked to the commission after we knew it passed," Carson said of the loan. He said it was that group's opinion that formal approval would come sometime this month.

In the meantime, the superintendent said, "We're going to push for bids by November, and start work in December. We want the improvements ready when school opens next year."

Improvements at Highland School, a 14-classroom and library addition at Westview School and site improvement at Oakbrook and the junior high are planned. Site acquisition west of Wood Dale Road and north of Irving Park Road is also planned.

IT WAS THE FIRST area school election to be held on a Tuesday, now required by state law. Polls were kept open until 9 p.m. to encourage residents to vote at Highland, Oakbrook and Westview schools. The latter was a new precinct for district elections.

Endorsement of the bond issue was heavy in all three precincts, with Highland area voters turning in a margin of 407 to 223. Oakbrook area residents approved 205 to 119, while Westview gave the highest percentage of approval, 142 to 55.

The loan was not as well received. It lost in the Highland area, 315 to 310, but won in Oakbrook, 179 to 141, and in Westview, 120 to 73.

Loans are only possible under conditions when the district has exhausted its bonding power.

Fiscal responsibility was one of the key factors in the referendum's success, observers felt. The district maintains cash basis operation, and with the exception of bonding is not in debt.

Tomorrow: Gold Rush Days Fun

Final plans have been completed for tomorrow's Gold Rush Days in Bensenville. The day's activities will begin with a Children's Treasure Hunt at 11:30 a.m. at Bensenville Memorial Park.

Later, more than 50 floats and four marching bands will participate in a parade beginning at 12:15 p.m. at Tioga School, S. Addison and Memorial Streets. The parade, which will wind its way through town to the Bensenville Swimming Pool area, is being supported by local businesses, churches and civic groups.

"Bust the Bank" is the name of the game for local merchants who will hand out more than $1,000 worth of prizes as their contribution to the festivities.

BENSENVILLE'S FIRE Department will reverse its role on Saturday and build fires for a steak fry to be held at the Fireman's Hall, 15 N. York Road. They will be serving dinner from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at a cost of $2 per person.

For those who prefer chicken to steak, the Bensenville Community Church will sponsor their annual chicken feast on the church grounds at 101 S. Church Road from noon to 5 p.m. at a cost of $2 for adults, $1.35 for children.

Final event of the day will be a dance at Flick-Reedy Corporation's Auditorium beginning at 8 p.m. Tickets at $2 each will be available at the door to hear the King Jaro Orchestra.

FUNDS RAISED during this 20th annual Gold Rush Days will be used by the Lions Club to aid projects for the blind and visually handicapped, as well as other community activities.

Village Pres. John Varble has endorsed the event saying, "It's not only a way to raise money for a worthy cause but also a chance for people from all over the area to get together for a day of fun."

More than 40 exhibitors, including the Register, will participate in the 3 to 10 p.m. event. Stores, manufacturers, businesses, civic and governmental groups will contribute.

Hank Stone, co-chairman of the project with chamber president Rodney Phillips, said the purpose of the event is to "Let people see Bensenville and acquaint themselves with the commerce, industry and services in the area."

EACH EXHIBITOR will set up a booth displaying his wares or some facet of his business. The Bensenville Police Department will show films and displays of various drugs that are recognizable to the trained eye.

Their Job Is Defense

by JUDY MORRIS

A group of 18 men in Bensenville are quietly serving their town every day.

They are on call at all hours to aid in emergencies and serve at special functions, yet many people do not even know their organization exists.

Civil Defense workers come from all walks of life. They work at a variety of jobs, raise their families and still find time to volunteer more than 15 hours of their time every month.

Their purpose, as defined by Dick Sabatino, assistant director, is "to serve the community." They do that in a number of ways.

AT PRESENT, CD workers have volunteered their time to the Bensenville police force, which is missing three of its men through illness and a return to school. The volunteers ride in squad cars, direct traffic and serve as "extra eyes and ears for our patrolmen," according to Walter Telt, police chief.

This often means a 12-hour day for these men who are assisting the police during their off-work hours. And if you can't find the CD workers in patrol cars, you might be able to find them at the village garage where they are completely overhauling a truck donated to them by the Addison Civil Defense Department.

The truck, a 1964 Ford, will make its first public appearance in Bensenville at tomorrow's Gold Rush parade. Those men who will drive it are just part of the crew who have worked to put the vehicle in running order.

The Bensenville Civil Defense Department was chartered in May, 1968. It now has 18 members, but needs more manpower, according to Sabatino.

THE MEN receive training in first aid, traffic and riot control and will soon undertake a course in airplane emergencies. They come out during electrical storms which have pulled wires and trees down and they direct traffic at carnivals and festivals.

In the case of an extreme emergency, tornadoes or nuclear attacks, they would guide people toward one of the five approved civil defense shelters in Bensenville. These are located at the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., Geils Funeral Home, Foremost Liquors, Tioga School and Green Street School.

One of the biggest problems facing the CD at the present is a lack of funds. They must work through the village, which appropriate a sum of $3,000 annually. With this money, they must maintain present equipment and plan for the future purchase of additional equipment.

There is no salary paid these men. "They do it because they like it. They're a bunch of real dedicated guys," said Trustee Frank Focht, chairman of the Civil Defense Committee.

THE CD workers elected new officers at their Wednesday night meeting. Named as director and assistant director were Ralph Crawford and Dick Sabatino. Also elected were Norman Anderson, shelter director;

Frank Bollinger, fire and rescue director; Pete Bloode, law and order director, and James Bock, communications director.

Other CD members are Paul Matuszak, Ed Froelich, Herb Tuffel, Robert Glassford, Steve Heiko, Kenneth Majeski, John Froelich, Richard Franzen, George Schmidt, Terry Ostfelder and Robert McCown.

These are the men who are on hand to protect their community at any hour of the night or day whenever an emergency might arise.

"We've heard it from our parents," said a man in his 40's.

"Hmmm. What about the Lake Park-Fenton football game back in '69? Now there was an unforgettable day . . ."

"Talk of tension, of drama of excitement, of all the things that used to make up a Hollywood plot, this was it. Yep, it was all there — two undefeated teams, the Milwaukee Bell, a bitter rivalry, a classic showdown . . ."

"Well, what happened?" came a voice from the rear of the crowd as they edged around the old man.

A far-away look in his eyes, the stranger

went on: "Lake Park, they were one of the pre-season favorites that year. Started out kinda slow with a 6-6 tie and then steam-rolled defending champion Mundelein and outscored Ridgewood in a rouser to come into Bensenville that Oct. 4 with a 2-0 conference record."

"AND FENTON? They were the Cinderella team, not mentioned by anyone as a title contender when the year began. But WILBERT NOTKE, mayor of Itasca, was appointed as a member of the committee on international municipal cooperation of the National League of Cities.

In making the appointment, league president Beverly Briley, mayor of Nashville, Tenn., noted that "you will be a member of a three member delegation from your state to represent its municipal interests in this important committee."

Committee chairman is Mayor Victor Shiro of New Orleans, La., and vice chairman is Mayor Milton Graham of Phoenix, Ariz.

The league president said, "To keep city leadership in the forefront of national urban policy development, the committees have three major tasks."

First, a constant search for new concepts which will aid in providing a good life for all urban Americans; second, carefully weighing the national and urban program priorities; and third, more clearly determining the strategies necessary to achieve our goals.

David Buser of Keneyville was chosen Wednesday as chairman of the consolidation study committee of citizens and school board members from Lake Park High School and its five underlying grade school districts.

The group met for the first time armed with some facts and figures to begin work in studying the feasibility of consolidating grade school districts from Roselle, Itasca, Bloomingdale, Keneyville and Medinah with Lake Park High School into a unit district. Any combination of consolidations like between just Roselle and Keneyville, for example, will also be considered.

Committee membership is supposed to be three citizens or school board members from each district. The roster came up short Wednesday.

FROM ROSELLE, board members Donald Bessey and Edwin Peck and citizen Dr. C. F. Nagro were present.

Mrs. Greta Long, Bloomingdale school board member, Mrs. Jean Bonavolenta, PTA member, and Carl Merchut represent Bloomingdale to the committee.

Keneyville members are Mrs. Joan Wacker, Kay Loftus and Bucker.

Itasca is represented by F. Edward Peacock, Dist. 10 board president, Mrs. Mary Hodgins, board secretary, and Raymond

Benson.

The sole representative of Medinah Dist. 11 is Supt. Richard C. Davis. Lake Park was represented by Stanley Wheeler, administrative assistant.

E. W. J. BAGG, Roselle superintendent of schools, began committee discussion with a short review of a state education task force study completed two years ago. The study said quality education can only be obtained by paying for it, he said.

A school district is only as good as its educational leadership, which includes the school board and parents who choose the direction and development, he said. Superintendents should be guides for development, he added, because no one knows all the answers.

Area development, which was predicted as being more dense in 10 years in population due to more high-rise buildings, rapid transportation and other reasons were kicked around as justification for considering the feasibility of consolidation.

PEACOCK CITED three main factors which should be studied by the committee. They were:

—What educational benefits can be obtained which are not now available in individual districts.

—How will financing be affected by consolidation because each district has a different status at present.

—Can practical matters such as building enough "bridges" between the communities be done to make an area-wide acceptance.

He said the achievement of education benefits for district students should be the main concern of why to consolidate, if at all. Financing would be easy to study, he added, and of secondary importance.

HIS THIRD POINT was clarified with an example question.

"Will residents in Bloomingdale, for example, vote to pass a bond issue for a school to be built in the Itasca area?"

The committee must find out if the communities are psychologically ready to be joined into a unit district, he said, which is an extremely difficult thing to evaluate.

Other possible problems may exist, for example, because Roselle is nearly 90 per cent developed and doesn't predict much more need for school. On the other hand, Bloomingdale will soon experience extremely rapid growth.

In a favorable light for consolidation, according to Bessey, is that there is a trend in state aid upward. The state once paid about 25 per cent of the district cost, he said, but now pays nearly 50 per cent. He predicted the day when the state may pay over 50 per cent.

"AS THE STATE pays more of the load cost of education, the individual tax base of each district becomes less important,"

Bessey said. "It also looks like possible state aid formulas resulting from expected constitutional changes will further encourage consolidation for financial benefits."

The committee agreed there would be cost savings with increased use of administrative staff and one superintendent.

Peacock said no superintendent presently working in any of the district would be out of a job as a result of consolidation.

There would be other much needed positions such as curriculum director which could be filled by highly qualified men like Arnold Rusche, Itasca school superintendent, he added.

BUCKER PREDICTED teacher salaries may be increased overall because some districts are lower than others at present.

A standardization of all financial information and district statistics will be made before the next committee meeting Nov. 20 at the Lake Park High School board room. The information sheet will act as a basis and reference chart for further actions from which subcommittees can act.

Committee formation was done Aug. 6 by an informal meeting of representatives from Roselle, Bloomingdale and Keneyville and Lake Park. Consolidation efforts have been underway for over a year.

Train Riders Plan Car Pools

Cautious commuters in the Northwest suburbs are planning their car pools now in face of a nationwide railroad strike threatened for midnight tonight.

Spokesmen from both the Chicago North Western and the Milwaukee Road Railroads said they will be out of operation if the strike occurs.

"But that's a big if," said Ashley Wilhite of the Milwaukee Road. "We seldom know anything definite until it occurs," he added of railroad strikes in general.

"It's hard to believe the strike will actually take place," Wilhite said. The strike would paralyze all rail service.

"YOUR GUESS is as good as mine," Frank Koval of Chicago North Western said Thursday when asked if the strike will take place.

"One thing in the offering is if President Nixon appoints a presidential act finding board. That will stop the strike for 60 days," he added.

President Nixon has until midnight tonight to appoint the board and head off the strike temporarily, Koval added.

The situation is in the President's hands, Wilhite agreed. He could offer no consolation to commuters should the strike occur. "We have to be prepared if transportation simply does not run. That is very hard to face," Wilhite added.

A primary concern of the railroads is that perishable goods get to a point where they can be protected while a strike is on, he said.

WILHITE COMPARED the situation yesterday to water rising during a flood. "You can't stop it so you just watch it rise," he said.

The strike threat is being initiated by four shopcraft unions in pursuit of a 10 per cent pay increase.

Since regional, rather than nationwide, service would be halted, according to initial reports, there was doubt that President Nixon would intervene.

Later developments indicate that rail service would be hampered on a national level and a fine line now exists on which the president must make a decision.

The railroads threatened with the strike Saturday were the Santa Fe, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Erie Lackawanna, Southern, Baltimore and Ohio and Chesapeake and Ohio.

The unions include the International Association of Machinists, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, International Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Blacksmiths and the Sheet Metal Workers.

Vote on Garbage Contract

A formal agreement between Teamsters Local 782, the union which includes garbage collectors in 25 communities in DuPage and Cook counties, and the Chicago and Suburban Scavengers Association was to be voted on by union members late yesterday.

Clair Willreth, regional director of the Federal Mediation Service, said a tentative agreement has been reached and "we have every reason to believe it will be accepted."

A mediator from the federal service was in on the negotiations between the union and the scavenger companies.

MANY NORTHWEST suburban garbage

collectors refused to go to work Wednesday and Thursday despite a temporary agreement which was supposed to forestall any walkout.

Garbage collection companies that serve Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect were affected by wildcat strikes.

Officials of the union agreed Monday to delay the Oct. 1 strike voted by union members last week. The agreement to hold off the strike was made with the understanding that any final settlement would be made retroactive to Wednesday, the expiration date of the contract between the union and the scavengers' association.

Willreth said he was surprised to hear of the wildcat strikes in the area. "It's possible that some of the people got antsy," he said.

Unofficial sources reported the strikers were unhappy with the negotiations and "they wanted to force the issue and force it fast." The sources said the members were not happy with the slowness of union officials to get a settlement.

TELEGRAMS WERE sent to members of the local union Tuesday night to tell them the strike had temporarily been called off and to show up for work Wednesday morning. However, some workers struck anyway.

John Baggot, spokesman for the teamsters, said the main demand is a salary increase of $1 per hour across the board for men. The current rate is $3.86 per hour. Other demands such as holiday and vacation pay were also discussed.

Details of the tentative agreement will not be released unless the union membership votes approval of the settlement today.

good for four out of nine and 67 yards. Domato is good on the ground, too — last time out he rolled up 189 yards. The lad from Fenton was good for only 70 yards.

Fenton must rely on the rest of its backfield, while Lake Park's defense wipes out backfield. Ridgewood could muster only 99 yards on the ground from four backs other than the quarterback.

FENTON HAS A reasonable attack, and we'll give them three touchdowns. But the Lancers are worth five scores this weekend, and the bet is that Lake Park will defeat Fenton by a score of 33-20.

Fenton is going to get murdered. It's not that they are a lousy team; it's just that Lake Park is better. See you there.

Village Beat

Geoffrey Mehl

Lake Park High School is going to make Bison Peanut Butter out of Fenton tomorrow. Fenton is going to be so mangled by the guys from Roselle they will wake up Sunday morning wondering why they are in the same conference.

Now, the TriCounty group is a fairly good one, and I'll concede that Fenton has a better than average squad. But Lake Park is beautiful, and they are going to kill Fenton tomorrow and win the conference title and there won't be a chance for Bisons at all.

We hear Fenton has got a pretty good quarterback, but like the rest of the Bisons, he'll be eating grass in his own backfield when Lake Park's defense punctures the Fenton offensive line, sort of like shooting bullets through glass.

FENTON IS going to get murdered. The Lancers, of course, play a waiting game. They wisely study opposition defense for the first quarter or so, probing the weak points, finding the keys to victory.

In the meantime, offensive and defensive lines work over the opponent with ease, and when the crucial moment arrives, the hapless team that would dare challenge the Lancers goes down for the count with a single punch.

And then it's all over. Glenn Domato unleashes his magnificent throwing arm, and the ball is all over the field with defensemen scattered about like so many fallen tin soldiers.

Fenton? Hah. When you're playing someone easy like Elmwood Park, you can do nothing but look threatening. The casual observer will note that they try to score early, apparently because they haven't got the staying power for that second round.

FENTON ONLY scored 14 points in the second half last weekend, but Lake Park got 26. It's a different sort of style, but we've seen enough high school football to know that the team that goes nutty on the scoreboard in the second half has got it all over the team that must roll up the points early in the game.

Elmwood Park, for example, didn't do a thing in the first two periods but promptly came up with 16 points after the halftime break.

Domato's throwing arm is something else. He was eight for 12 last weekend, good for 113 yards. Carlos Villarreal was

That formula can mean a lot if you're a designer-draftsman... it can mean a lifetime career in a job you'll like.

Procon has just added 36,000 square feet to its international headquarters in Des Plaines, Illinois. This space contains a new design-drafting section where we're adding facilities and men because our business, already well over $100,000,000 a year, is growing fast. Our growth means good openings for designers and draftsmen, especially those with electrical and mechanical experience. These are permanent jobs... not feast-or-famine slots in a drafting room.

Before we build a refinery like the one underway in Thailand, or the ones just finished in Spain and South Korea, we have to produce about 4,000 linear feet of blueprints. CIVIL DEFENSE volunteers have always worked closely with police in Bensenville, but have been serving in a new capacity during the last month. Due to a shortage of men on the police force, CD workers have aided by riding in patrol cars, helping direct traffic and helping man the switchboard. Here CD worker Herb Tueffel calls into the station from the patrol car of Cpl. Robert Schneider.

$425,000 Loan OK Expected Soon

Approval by the Illinois School Building Commission is expected this month to loan $425,000 to Wood Dale School Dist. 7 to be repaid interest-free over a period of nearly 17 years.

Warren B. Carson, district superintendent, made that evaluation Wednesday following passage of two referendum issues by district voters on Tuesday.

After approving a $250,000 bond issue by a 754 to 397 vote, residents also endorsed the loan by a 609 to 529 margin.

DELIGHTED WITH passage of both issues, which will be used to expand and improve elementary schools in the 1,625-student district, Carson said that canvass of returns will probably take place at an adjourned school board meeting Monday night.

"I talked to the commission after we knew it passed," Carson said of the loan. He said it was that group's opinion that formal approval would come sometime this month.

In the meantime, the superintendent said, "We're going to push for bids by November, and start work in December. We want the improvements ready when school opens next year."

Improvements at Highland School, a 14-classroom and library addition at Westview School and site improvement at Oakbrook and the junior high are planned. Site acquisition west of Wood Dale Road and north of Irving Park Road is also planned.

IT WAS THE FIRST area school election to be held on a Tuesday, now required by state law. Polls were kept open until 9 p.m. to encourage residents to vote at Highland, Oakbrook and Westview schools. The latter was a new precinct for district elections.

Endorsement of the bond issue was heavy in all three precincts, with Highland area voters turning in a margin of 407 to 223. Oakbrook area residents approved 205 to 119, while Westview gave the highest percentage of approval, 142 to 55.

The loan was not as well received. It lost in the Highland area, 315 to 310, but won in Oakbrook, 179 to 141, and in Westview, 120 to 73.

Loans are only possible under conditions when the district has exhausted its bonding power.

Fiscal responsibility was one of the key factors in the referendum's success, observers felt. The district maintains cash basis operation, and with the exception of bonding is not in debt.

Tomorrow: Gold Rush Days Fun

Final plans have been completed for tomorrow's Gold Rush Days in Bensenville. The day's activities will begin with a Children's Treasure Hunt at 11:30 a.m. at Bensenville Memorial Park.

Later, more than 50 floats and four marching bands will participate in a parade beginning at 12:15 p.m. at Tioga School, S. Addison and Memorial Streets. The parade, which will wind its way through town to the Bensenville Swimming Pool area, is being supported by local businesses, churches and civic groups.

"Bust the Bank" is the name of the game for local merchants who will hand out more than $1,000 worth of prizes as their contribution to the festivities.

BENSENVILLE'S FIRE Department will reverse its role on Saturday and build fires for a steak fry to be held at the Fireman's Hall, 15 N. York Road. They will be serving dinner from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at a cost of $2 per person.

For those who prefer chicken to steak, the Bensenville Community Church will sponsor their annual chicken feast on the church grounds at 101 S. Church Road from noon to 6 p.m. at a cost of $2 for adults, $1.35 for children.

Final event of the day will be a dance at Flick-Reedy Corporation's Auditorium beginning at 8 p.m. Tickets at $2 each will be available at the door to hear the King Jaros Orchestra.

FUNDS RAISED during this 20th annual Gold Rush Days will be used by the Lions Club to aid projects for the blind and visually handicapped, as well as other community activities.

Village Pres. John Varble has endorsed the event saying, "It's not only a way to raise money for a worthy cause but also a chance for people from all over the area to get together for a day of fun."

Chamber Exhibits

Bensenville's Chamber of Commerce will hold its 7th annual exhibit night Wednesday at the VFW Hall, 25 N. York Road.

More than 40 exhibitors, including the Register, will participate in the 3 to 10 p.m. event. Stores, manufacturers, businesses, civic and governmental groups will contribute.

Hank Stone, co-chairman of the project with chamber president Rodney Phillips, said the purpose of the event is to "Let people see Bensenville and acquaint themselves with the commerce, industry and services in the area."

EACH EXHIBITOR will set up a booth displaying his wares or some facet of his business. The Bensenville Police Department will show films and displays of various drugs that are recognizable to the trained eye.

The park district will have a booth manned by commissioners and new park director Alan Randall. The commissioners have invited visitors to stop by the booth to meet the new director.

Another booth will be manned by representatives and trustees of the Village.

Stone reported that ample parking will be available for visitors. More than 1,500 persons are expected for this year's exhibit.

PART OF THE FUN of the exhibit night is the giving away of numerous little prizes and gifts by participating merchants. Last year, more than 400 different kinds of prizes were distributed.

For those who came hungry, a chicken dinner will be sponsored by the VFW in the basement of the hall. Free coffee and hot chocolate will also be given away by Vending Machines, Inc.

Their Job Is Defense

by JUDY MORRIS

A group of 18 men in Bensenville are quietly serving their town every day.

They are on call at all hours to aid in emergencies and serve at special functions, yet many people do not even know their organization exists.

Civil Defense workers come from all walks of life. They work at a variety of jobs, raise their families and still find time to volunteer more than 15 hours of their time every month.

Their purpose, as defined by Dick Sabatino, assistant director, is "to serve the community." They do that in a number of ways.

AT PRESENT, CD workers have volunteered their time to the Bensenville police force, which is missing three of its men through illness and a return to school. The volunteers ride in squad cars, direct traffic and serve as "extra eyes and ears for our patrolmen," according to Walter Tett, police chief.

This often means a 12-hour day for these men who are assisting the police during their off-work hours. And if you can't find the CD workers in patrol cars, you might be able to find them at the village garage where they are completely overhauling a truck donated to them by the Addison Civil Defense Department.

The truck, a 1964 Ford, will make its first public appearance in Bensenville at tomorrow's Gold Rush parade. Those men who will drive it are just part of the crew who have worked to put the vehicle in running order.

The Bensenville Civil Defense Department was chartered in May, 1968. It now has 18 members, but needs more manpower, according to Sabatino.

THE MEN receive training in first aid, traffic and riot control and will soon undertake a course in airplane emergencies. They come out during electrical storms which have pulled wires and trees down and they direct traffic at carnivals and festivals.

In the case of an extreme emergency, tornadoes or nuclear attacks, they would guide people toward one of the five approved civil defense shelters in Bensenville. These are located at the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., Gork Funeral Home, Foremost Liquors, Tioga School and Green Street School.

One of the biggest problems facing the CD at the present is a lack of funds. They must work through the village, which appropriate a sum of $3,000 annually. With this money, they must maintain present equipment and plan for the future purchase of additional equipment.

There is no salary paid these men. "They do it because they like it. They're a bunch of real dedicated guys," said Trustee Frank Focht, chairman of the Civil Defense Committee.

THE CD workers elected new officers at their Wednesday night meeting. Named as director and assistant director were Ralph Crawford and Dick Sabatino. Also elected were Norman Anderson, shelter director;

Frank Bollinger, fire and rescue director; Pete Bloode, law and order director, and James Bock, communications director.

Other CD members are Paul Matuszak, Ed Froehlich, Herb Tueffel, Robert Glassford, Steve Heike, Kenneth Majeski, John Froelich, Richard Franzen, George Schmidt, Terry Ostfelder and Robert McCown.

These are the men who are on hand to protect their community at any hour of the night or day whenever an emergency might arise.

That Game Back in '69...

by PHIL KURTH

The old man staggered out of the past, from where nobody knew.

It was obvious, though, he had wonderful stories to tell and that he wanted to die with one on his lips as was the tradition in his day.

"Gather 'round," he said feebly, coughing once or twice for effect, "and I'll tell you of that incredible day at Kitty Hawk when..."

"WE'VE READ IT in the history books often enough," responded a rather impudent youngster.

"Well, I'll tell you of the great blizzard of '67..."

"We've heard it from our parents," said a man in his 40's.

"Hmmm. What about the Lake Park-Fenton football game back in '69? Now there was an unforgettable day..."

"Talk of tension, of drama of excitement, of all the things that used to make up a Hollywood plot, this was it. Yep, it was all there — two undefeated teams, the Milwaukee Bell, a bitter rivalry, a classic showdown..."

"Well, what happened?" came a voice from the rear of the crowd as they edged around the old man.

A far-away look in his eyes, the stranger

went on: "Lake Park, they were one of the pre-season favorites that year. Started out kinda slow with a 6-6 tie and then steam-rolled defending champion Mundelein and outscored Ridgewood in a rouser to come into Bensenville that Oct. 4 with a 2-0 conference record.

"AND FENTON? They were the Cinderella team, not mentioned by anyone as a title contender when the year began. But

A Look at Recreation

"When the recreation plan goes into effect..." was the main theme of Wednesday's park district meeting in Bensenville. The commissioners were referring to a recreational budget of nearly $30,000 they will receive next spring as a result of state legislation which provides for the fund.

The commissioners indicated several times that they have two jobs ahead: maintaining the present programs and facilities, and planning for the future when the park district will grow to include a recreational plan.

Included in this general "looking ahead" was the reorganization Wednesday of standing committees. The board has acted upon a recommendation by Park Director Alan Randall that five standing committees be appointed. These are the planning, finance, personnel, special facilities, and program committees.

OTHER ACTION by the board included permission for an easement through Margie Park in Brentwood for the wiring of additional lighting. Board Pres. Donald Carroll pointed out that added lighting in the area would benefit the park.

In other business, the board instructed its attorney to review and recommend changes for an ordinance which prohibits liquor on park district property. The law is no longer valid since the district will now be serving liquor at the White Pines Golf Course under the conditions of House Bill 927.

The park commissioners see the new law as a boon to the district's financial positions.

Paddock Offers Insurance Plan

An accident insurance program is being developed and will be offered to readers of Paddock Publications' Herald and Register newspapers.

Wayne Tate, director of promotions for the newspaper, said the insurance program is the first in a series of announcements involving an extensive program of community services that will be made available to readers. He said an analysis of existing programs throughout the country is being conducted prior to development of a local community services program.

The Readers Accident Insurance Program is being developed in consultation with Washington National Insurance Co. of Evanston.

School Consolidation Committee Begins Work

by RICHARD BARTON

David Buser of Keeneyville was chosen Wednesday as chairman of the consolidation study committee of citizens and school board members from Lake Park High School and its five underlying grade school districts.

The group met for the first time armed with some facts and figures to begin work in studying the feasibility of consolidating grade school districts from Roselle, Itasca, Bloomingdale, Keeneyville and Medinah with Lake Park High School into a unit district. Any combination of consolidation like between just Roselle and Keeneyville, for example, will also be considered.

Committee membership is supposed to be three citizens or school board members from each district. The roster came up short Wednesday.

FROM ROSELLE, board members Donald Bessey and Edwin Peck and citizen Dr. C. F. Nagro were present.

Mrs. Greta Long, Bloomingdale school board member, Mrs. Jean Bonavolonta, PTA member, and Carl Merchut represent Bloomingdale to the committee.

Keeneyville members are Mrs. Joan Wacker, Kay Loftus and Bucker.

Itasca is represented by F. Edward Peacock, Dist. 10 board president, Mrs. Mary Hodgins, board secretary, and Raymond

Benson.

The sole representative of Medinah Dist. 11 is Supt. Richard C. Davis.

Lake Park was represented by Stanley Wheeler, administrative assistant.

E. W. J. BAGG, Roselle superintendent of schools, began committee discussion with a short review of a state education task force study completed two years ago. The study said quality education can only be obtained by paying for it, he said.

A school district is only as good as its educational leadership, which includes the school board and parents who choose the direction and development, he said. Superintendents should be guides for development, he added, because no one knows all the answers.

Area development, which was predicted as being more dense in 10 years in population due to more high-rise buildings, rapid transportation and other reasons were kicked around as justification for considering the feasibility of consolidation.

PEACOCK CITED three main factors which should be studied by the committee. They were:

—What educational benefits can be obtained which are not now available in individual districts.

—How will financing be affected by consolidation because each district has a different status at present.

—Can practical matters such as building enough "bridges" between the communities be done to make an area-wide acceptance.

He said the achievement of education benefits for district students should be the main concern of why to consolidate, if at all. Financing would be easy to study, he added, and of secondary importance.

HIS THIRD POINT was clarified with an example question.

"Will residents in Bloomingdale, for example, vote to pass a bond issue for a school to be built in the Itasca area?"

The committee must find out if the communities are psychologically ready to be joined into a unit district, he said, which is an extremely difficult thing to evaluate.

Other possible problems may exist, for example, because Roselle is nearly 90 per cent developed and doesn't predict much more need for school. On the other hand, Bloomingdale will soon experience extremely rapid growth.

In a favorable light for consolidation, according to Bessey, is that there is a trend in state aid upward. The state once paid about 25 per cent of the district cost, he said, but now pays nearly 50 per cent. He predicted the day when the state may pay over 50 per cent.

"AS THE STATE pays more of the load cost of education, the individual tax base of each district becomes less important,"

Bessey said. "It also looks like possible state aid formulas resulting from expected constitutional changes will further encourage consolidation for financial benefits."

The committee agreed there would be cost savings with increased use of administrative staff and one superintendent.

Peacock said no superintendent presently working in any of the district would be out of a job as a result of consolidation.

There would be other much needed positions such as curriculum director which could be filled by highly qualified men like Arnold Rusche, Itasca school superintendent, he added.

BUCKER PREDICTED teacher salaries may be increased overall because some districts are lower than others at present.

A standardization of all financial information and district statistics will be made before the next committee meeting Nov. 20 at the Lake Park High School board room. The information sheet will act as a basis and reference chart for further actions from which subcommittees can act.

Committee formation was done Aug. 6 by an informal meeting of representatives from Roselle, Bloomingdale and Keeneyville and Lake Park. Consolidation efforts have been underway for over a year.

Train Riders Plan Car Pools

Cautious commuters in the Northwest suburbs are planning their car pools now in face of a nationwide railroad strike threatened for midnight tonight.

Spokesmen from both the Chicago North Western and the Milwaukee Road railroads said they will be out of operation if the strike occurs.

"But that's a big if," said Ashley Wilhite of the Milwaukee Road. "We seldom know anything definite until it occurs," he added of railroad strikes in general.

"It's hard to believe the strike will actually take place," Wilhite said. The strike would paralyze all rail service.

"YOUR GUESS is as good as mine," Frank Koval of Chicago North Western said Thursday when asked if the strike will take place.

"One thing in the offering is if President Nixon appoints a presidential act finding board. That will stop the strike for 60 days," he added.

President Nixon has until midnight tonight to appoint the board and head off the strike temporarily, Koval added.

The situation is in the President's hands, Wilhite agreed. He could offer no consolation to commuters should the strike occur. "We have to be prepared if transportation simply does not run. That is very hard to face," Wilhite added.

A primary concern of the railroads is that perishable goods get to a point where they can be protected while a strike is on, he said.

WILHITE COMPARED the situation yesterday to water rising during a flood. "You can't stop it so you just watch it rise," he said.

The strike threat is being initiated by four shopcraft unions in pursuit of a 10 per cent pay increase.

Since regional, rather than nationwide, service would be halted, according to initial reports, there was doubt that President Nixon would intervene.

Later developments indicate that rail service would be hampered on a national level and a fine line now exists on which the president must make a decision.

The railroads threatened with the strike Saturday were the Santa Fe, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Erie Lackawanna, Southern, Baltimore and Ohio and Chesapeake and Ohio.

The unions include the International Association of Machinists, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, International Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Blacksmiths and the Sheet Metal Workers."

Vote on Garbage Contract

A formal agreement between Teamsters Local 782, the union which includes garbage collectors in 25 communities in DuPage and Cook counties, and the Chicago and Suburban Scavengers Association was to be voted on by union members late yesterday.

Chair Wilhite, regional director of the Federal Mediation Service, said a tentative agreement has been reached and "we have every reason to believe it will be accepted."

A mediator from the federal service was in on the negotiations between the union and the scavenger companies.

MANY NORTHWEST suburban garbage

collectors refused to go to work Wednesday and Thursday despite a temporary agreement which was supposed to forestall any walkout.

Garbage collection companies that serve Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect were affected by wildcat strikes.

Officials of the union agreed Monday to delay the Oct. 1 strike voted by union members last week. The agreement to hold off the strike was made with the understanding that any final settlement would be made retroactive to Wednesday, the expiration date of the contract between the union and the scavengers' association.

Wilhite said he was surprised to hear of the wildcat strikes in the area. "It's possible that some of the people got antsy," he said.

Unofficial sources reported the strikers were unhappy with the negotiations and "they wanted to force the issue and force it fast." The sources said the members were not happy with the slowness of union officials to get a settlement.

TELEGRAMS WERE sent to members of the local union Tuesday night to tell them the strike had temporarily been called off and to show up for work Wednesday morning. However, some workers struck anyway.

John Baggot, spokesman for the teamsters, said the main demand is a salary increase of $1 per hour across the board for men. The current rate is $3.86 per hour. Other demands such as holiday and vacation pay were also discussed.

Details of the tentative agreement will not be released unless the union membership votes approval of the settlement today.

Election Judges To Get $30 A Day

Election judges in DuPage County will receive $30 a day for all elections they work.

The $30 amount is the maximum allowable by the recently passed state bill.

The DuPage County Board of Supervisors passed the resolution raising the election judges' salaries from $25 to $30 after Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie signed the amendment to the state election code.

As stipulated in the amendment, any county with a population of less than 500,000 can fix the compensation of the judges of elections at not less than $20 nor more than $30 per day.

Lake Park High School is going to make Bison Peanut Butter out of Fenton tomorrow. Fenton is going to be so mangled by the guys from Roselle they will wake up Sunday morning wondering why they are in the same conference.

Now, the TriCounty group is a fairly good one, and I'll concede that Fenton has a better than average squad. But Lake Park is beautiful, and they are going to kill Fenton tomorrow and win the conference title and there won't be a chance for Bisons at all.

We hear Fenton has got a pretty good quarterback, but like the rest of the Bisons, he'll be eating grass in his own backfield when Lake Park's defense punctures the Fenton offensive line, sort of like shooting bullets through glass.

FENTON IS going to get murdered. The Lancers, of course, play a waiting game. They wisely study opposition defense for the first quarter or so, probing the weak points, finding the keys to victory.

In the meantime, offensive and defensive lines work over the opponent with ease, and when the crucial moment arrives, the hapless team that would dare challenge the Lancers goes down for the count with a single punch.

And then it's all over. Glenn Domato unleashes his magnificent throwing arm, and the ball is all over the field with defenseless scattered about like so many fallen tin soldiers.

Fenton? Hah. When you're playing someone easy like Elmwood Park, you can do nothing but look threatening. The casual observer will note that they try to score early, apparently because they haven't got the staying power for that second round.

FENTON ONLY scored 14 points in the second half last weekend, but Lake Park got 26. It's a different sort of style, but we've seen enough high school football to know that the team that goes nutty on the scoreboard in the second half has got it all over the team that must roll up the points early in the game.

Elmwood Park, for example, didn't do a thing in the first two periods but promptly came up with 16 points after the halftime break.

Domato's throwing arm is something else. He was eight for 12 last weekend, good for 113 yards. Carlos Villarreal was good for four out of nine and 67 yards. Domato is good on the ground, too — last time out he rolled up 189 yards. The lad from Fenton was good for only 70 yards.

Fenton must rely on the rest of its backfield, while Lake Park's defense wipes out backfield. Ridgewood could muster only 99 yards on the ground from four backs other than the quarterback.

FENTON HAS A reasonable attack, and we'll give them three touchdowns. But the Lancers are worth five scores this weekend, and the bet is that Lake Park will defeat Fenton by a score of 33-20.

Fenton is going to get murdered. It's not that they are a lousy team; it's just that Lake Park is better.

See you there.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — The United States set off an underground nuclear device more powerful than a million tons of TNT yesterday on the Aleutian island of Amchitka.

The Atomic Energy Commission, which ignored last minute pleas to halt the explosion, said the blast went off at 6:06 p.m. EDT at the bottom of a 4,000-shaft.

Spy Helped Kill 30?

SAIGON—The alleged victim in the Green Beret murder case was thought to have given the North Vietnamese Army information that led directly to the deaths of at least 30 allied soldiers, 10 of them Americans, U.S. military sources said Thursday.

The sources said the slain troops were members of Special Forces-Green Berets patrols ambushed within minutes after landing by helicopter or parachuting in Communist territory.

Insurance Plan

An accident insurance program is being developed and will be offered to readers of Paddock Publications' Herald and Register newspapers.

Wayne Tite, director of promotions for the newspaper, said the insurance program is the first in a series of announcements involving an extensive program of community services that will be made available to readers. He said an analysis of existing programs throughout the country is being conducted prior to development of a local community services program.

The Readers Accident Insurance Program is being developed in consultation with Washington National Insurance Co. of Evanston.

Flood Charges Woods

by BARRY SIGALE

The president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) Thursday lashed out at the county police department, charging Sheriff Joseph Woods and other top officials with major harassment of association members and causing low morale within the department.

Sgt. John Flood, 30, of Wheeling, blasted Woods for tactics he said Woods used to intimidate members of the association and prospective members by threatening their jobs and future as policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood said that Woods would probably suspend him from the department and ultimately fire him. He said legal action could be taken if he was fired.

AT A PRESS conference in the Sherman House in Chicago, Flood said, "The morale of the Cook County Police Department, under Sheriff Joseph Woods' administration, has deteriorated to its lowest point since he took over office from now-Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie."

Flood, who heads the executive board of the CCPA, a 750-member group representing 14 municipalities in the county, said

Woods has led a campaign to intimidate association members and has threatened them personally.

Four of the association's top officials have either been transferred or demoted since their involvement with the union, Flood said. Flood himself has been shifted, in two steps, from the Niles Division in northern Cook County to Homewood, which is in southern Cook County, 70 miles round trip from his home in Wheeling.

Flood said that recently Woods, John Kistner, police chief, and the three highest Ministers Swap Lives

by GERRY DeZONNA

The Rev. Thomas Howells just sailed halfway around the world with "his home" to discover America.

Howells, an Australian minister on an exchange program with the Community Presbyterian Church in Mount Prospect, arrived last weekend with his wife and four daughters for a 12-month tour of duty in the United States.

The Howells, who live in a small suburb just outside Melbourne, exchanged churches, houses, and cars with the Rev. Thomas Phillips of the Community Presbyterian Church and his family for the program.

"This is a total exchange program. Rev. Phillips and I just packed up our personal belongings and switched places. We didn't have to worry about finding accommodations or bringing furniture and bedding all the way from Australia. This makes a big difference when you're moving your family thousands of miles," Howells said.

"WE FEEL very much at home here, and the people from the church have done a lot to make us feel comfortable in our new surroundings. Why, when we arrived Saturday, the cupboards had already been prepared and we didn't have to worry about fixing ourselves a meal or getting settled."

Howells explained that there are no basic differences between his community in Australia and Mount Prospect, which explains why the transition has been such a smooth one.

"I live in a small town just 10 miles from Melbourne, a city which has a population of more than two and one-half million people. This is very similar to Mount Prospect and Chicago. The greater cities and the expanding suburbs.

"THE AUSTRALIAN suburbs are very similar to your suburbs and many American features are fast becoming a part of Australia — business trends, city planning and development. I think my year's stay in America will give me a prophetic insight into what will be coming to Australia within the next three or four years," he said.

Howells sees more similarities than differences between the two countries, including size. "I think if you subtract Alaska, Australia is just as big as the United States. Our population is just smaller, but Americans don't realize what a big country Australia really is," he said.

Howells, who's spent 11 years in his Australian parish, was contemplating a change in jobs when it was suggested that he participate in the exchange program for a change of pace.

"THIS IS ONE reason for my interest in the exchange program, but I think that my experiences in Mount Prospect will better help me understand and develop my two main areas of work in the church.

"I'll gain experience in working with team ministries which I think will be adopted in Australia soon. Declining church memberships will force churches to unite in Australia and depend upon team ministries," he said.

"Also, one of my main areas of work in the church is aimed at the relationship between the church and the community. The church has to be relevant to the community because without that relevance, there's no reason to have the church. We need to develop communication or what we call outreach programs."

HOWELLS IS ALSO very interested in Christian education for adults and young adults. "Actually church projects are better programmed for young adults and children because adults would rather not participate.

"Parents think it's more important for their children to participate because it's part of the growing process in an individual. Adults often think they're too old for Christian education programs because they're past the growing and developing stage," he said.

One of the only differences between his church and the Community Presbyterian Church is size. "My church is smaller, but they're both structured along the same lines. The only exception is that my church has the responsibility to administer sports programs where you have a park district for this purpose."

IN AUSTRALIA, Howell sponsored two football teams (soccer), a cricket team, 15 basketball squads plus a tennis and badminton club for members of the church as well as nonmembers.

"Sports are very popular in Australia and a large part of the social life. Australians also watch a considerable amount of television just like the Americans," he said.

Howells said millions of Australians followed Apollo 11's journey to the moon as closely as the Americans. "The moon landing was a magnificent achievement and a tribute to man's ingenuity. I don't think the excitement or significance of the moon landing was cramped by a spirit of nationalism, even though the Americans accomplished it first.

"WE ALL WERE able to share in a moment of history which I think begins a new era in civilization. The unlimited potential of man.

"Millions of Australians witnessed the moon walk, and I think we saw it on television in Australia a second before you did in America."

Elk Grove Homecoming Today

Homecoming activities will culminate this weekend at Elk Grove High School for the third time in the four-year-old school's brief existence.

Voting for the homecoming queen was Thursday with announcement of the queen scheduled for 1 p.m. today at the coronation assembly.

Queen candidates were Denise Augustine, Cathy Ellery, Lynne Leopardo, Carol Maier and Pat Paleczny, all seniors at the high school.

LAST YEAR'S queen, Mary Shea, will highlight homecoming activities with her appearance at the coronation assembly, parade and Saturday's game. Ron Fink, Elk Grove senior, will be her escort.

Escorts for the queen candidates are Jim Camphouse, John Flesch, Gene Pinder, Dennis Rambo and Bill Tewes.

The homecoming parade, featuring 25 decorated cars and the band, will be from 2 to 3:30 p.m. today. The parade route will begin at Elk Grove Boulevard, north to Ridge Avenue, to Charing Cross Road and back to the school.

A BONFIRE at 7 p.m. today will be held along the creek to the south and east of the football field. The Elk Grove Fire Department will be present to supervise.

A mixer following the bonfire will be from 8 to 11 p.m. in the fieldhouse. Music will be provided by the "Charisma" band.

Saturday's schedule will include the football game, queen coronation and homecoming dance. Saturday morning is filled with alumni programs, with 10 a.m. scheduled for a reception and 11 a.m. for a senior girls tea.

Highlight of the afternoon will be the football game at 2 p.m. between the Grenadiers and Fremd High School of Palatine. THE LACK of field lights, which were to have been installed so the game could be played Friday night, forced rescheduling of the game to Saturday afternoon.

Coach Don Schnake's team will be seeking its first victory of the year, having lost in two Mid-Suburban League games and one practice game.

Fremd is 2-0 in conference play and 2-1 for the season. New Trier West defeated Fremd earlier this year for its only loss.

The junior varsity game will be played against Fremd beginning at noon.

THE QUEEN coronation will be between games.

"The Velvet Glove" band will be featured at the homecoming dance between 8 and 11 p.m. Saturday in the gymnasium. Tickets for the dance are $2.50 per couple. The Saturday night program will be sponsored by the high school's Lettermen's Club.

With the close of Saturday's programs "The Little Grenadier" will be out of a job. Vincent Carloti, school counselor, has been roaming school halls in the past couple weeks posing as a grenadier in a band uniform to publicize homecoming and work up school spirit.

Wood Dale's loss is Itasca's gain as Terry Colls joined the Itasca police department this week.

Formerly, he was appointed as a police officer in Wood Dale and was waiting to give notice to his previous employer. In the interim, he decided the atmosphere in Wood Dale wasn't to his liking and sought employment in Itasca.

Colls, 24, is a resident of Wood Dale where he lives with his wife and child. He has been on duty this week at Itasca, working with Patrolman Edward Innis who is "showing him the ropes."

Colls never served on duty in Wood Dale, therefore had to resign from Wood Dale before joining Itasca.

HE WORKED one year as a patrolman investigator for the Illinois Suburban Police Reserve. During four years of study at Columbia College, Chicago, he graduated with specialization in television and photography.

Police departments can always use men with specialization training, Itasca Police Chief Stanley Rossol said Wednesday. Colls' experience in photography and other technical skills will indeed be an asset to this department, he added.

Rossol said the average work week for the eight man department, which includes himself, will be 40 hours. The previous work consisted of about 48 hours of duty per week, he added.

STARTING SALARY for an Itasca police officer is $550 per month. New officers in Wood Dale get $595 per month.

When asked how he felt about Colls' transfer in loyalties, Wood Dale Acting Chief Robert Sample simply said he was sorry to lose him. Further comment wasn't given.

Exhibits

Bensenville's Chamber of Commerce will hold its 7th annual exhibit night Wednesday at the VFW Hall, 25 N. York Road.

More than 40 exhibitors, including the Register, will participate in the 3 to 10 p.m. event. Stores, manufacturers, businesses, civic and governmental groups will contribute.

Hank Stone, co-chairman of the project with chamber president Rodney Phillips, said the purpose of the event is to "Let people see Bensenville and acquaint themselves with the commerce, industry and services in the area."

"Several states have enacted legislation to allow abortion in the case of rape or incest, to preserve the physical or mental health of the mother or if there is a chance that the child will be deformed," she explained.

"However, in all of these states all cases must first be reviewed by a medical review board, which is a time-consuming task. In none of the states where these liberalized laws have been enacted has the number of abortions performed annually gone up. This demonstrates that these re-

"The liberalized abortion laws adopted by several states recently have not worked. The only successful method of dealing with the problem is to repeal all abortion laws in the United States," declared Mrs. S. M. Dart, a member of the Illinois Citizens for the Medical Control of Abortion (ICMCA).

Mrs. Dart spoke Wednesday at a meeting of the Far Acres chapter of Women's American Organization for Rehabilitation Through Training.

Mrs. Dart said that the "many difficulties" surrounding abortion in the United States are due to "highly repressive abortion laws."

"THE ABORTION laws in the United States are about as reactionary as in any country in the world," Mrs. Dart declared.

"As a result, women have sought abortions by two methods, either they attempt to abort themselves or they allow incompetent persons to perform the operation for them. There are one million such illegal abortions in the United States each year."

Flood Charges Woods With Harassment

ranking members below the chief, have held meetings with all police officers on the department and made verbal threats to all of them.

"IN THOSE MEETINGS," Flood said, "Woods told the men that if they were members of the CCPA that he would take away their police powers."

"He told his men that he would make them guards in Cook County Jail, taking away their professional police positions if they were members of the CCPA.

"He also told his men, among other things, that they would no longer be sent or allowed to go to professional police schools if they were members of the CCPA."

"Implied in these statements," Flood said, "is that members of the association will be passed over when promotions are handed out and that men will be transferred at will, as part of these harassment techniques.

"CURRENTLY, THE evaluation system within the department is unfair for promotions. You have to have inter-departmental clout to advance."

"People are constantly getting transferred. All patrolmen in Cook County can't be sure from day to day what their next assignment will be. Transfers are fairly prevalent when people speak out."

Flood said he has borne the brunt of this alleged unfair treatment, being the leader of the association, which includes 80 per cent of the 250 policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood is a veteran of eleven years on the force, heading the detective division and serving as a sergeant for six years.

FLOOD WAS SHIFTED four months ago to the downtown office to perform clerical duties while earning his annual salary of $11,000 per year.

Tuesday he was again shifted to the Bedford Park substation in Homewood, an hour and a half from his Wheeling home, where he functions at a desk job.

Flood said Woods has called him on the carpet several times, threatening to have him indicted, taping all their conversations about the association and refusing to grant Flood a leave of absence so he could attend police administration classes at Harper College in Palatine.

"Anyone in our position who tries to seek recognition would be subjected to what we are being subjected to," Flood said.

"THIS IS NOT a unique thing. I am not a rebel like I have been called. Woods has used obscenities in our conversations and Kistner has slammed on the table. It is because of men like Sheriff Woods that there is so much turmoil in the public employee field."

In his statement, Flood said the association disagreed with policies and actions taken by Woods, including a standing order of "shoot to kill" at major civil disturbances and sending Cook County policemen out of the county to assist other municipalities with their problems, such as when Woods sent men to Gary during a civil disorder.

The association has sought to negotiate for its members regarding salaries, fringe benefits, and working conditions, but Flood said Woods and his administration have refused to negotiate in good faith relative to working conditions.

"WE HAVE A good relationship with the county board (of commissioners), who handle the economic end of it, including salaries and fringe benefits," Flood said, "but any discussions about job conditions must be done with the sheriff."

"Woods has denied to talk in good faith and has an overall anti-labor attitude. But we will continue to address ourselves to these problems as they arise. These conditions exist in every police department."

"There is practically no communication with the sheriff's department," Flood said.

Train Riders Plan Car Pools

Cautious commuters in the Northwest suburbs are planning their car pools now in face of a nationwide railroad strike threatened for midnight tonight.

Spokesmen from both the Chicago North Western and the Milwaukee Road railroads said they will be out of operation if the strike occurs.

"But that's a big if," said Ashley Wilhite of the Milwaukee Road. "We seldom know anything definite until it occurs," he added of railroad strikes in general.

"It's hard to believe the strike will actually take place," Wilhite said. "The strike would paralyze all rail service."

"YOUR GUESS is as good as mine," Frank Koval of Chicago North Western said Thursday when asked if the strike will take place.

"One thing in the offering is if President Nixon appoints a presidential act finding board. That will stop the strike for 60 days," he added.

President Nixon has until midnight tonight to appoint the board and head of the strike temporarily, Koval added.

The situation is in the President's hands, Wilhite agreed. He could offer no consolation to commuters should the strike occur. "We have to be prepared if transportation simply does not run. That is very hard to face," Wilhite added.

A primary concern of the railroads is that perishable goods get to a point where they can be protected while a strike is on, he said.

WILHITE COMPARED the situation yesterday to water rising during a flood. "You can't stop it so you just watch it rise," he said.

The strike threat is being initiated by four shopcraft unions in pursuit of a 10 per cent pay increase.

Since regional, rather than nationwide, service would be halted, according to initial reports, there was doubt that President Nixon would intervene.

Later developments indicate that rail service would be hampered on a national level and a fine line now exists on which the president must make a decision.

The railroads threatened with the strike Saturday were the Santa Fe, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Erie Lackawanna, Southern, Baltimore and Ohio and Chesapeake and Ohio.

The unions include the International Association of Machinists, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, International Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Blacksmiths and the Sheet Metal Workers."

Turns Over Funds

The DuPage County clerk's office will turn over $110,764.13 in earnings for the first half of the 1969 fiscal year to the county's general fund.

Earnings for the second half of the year will be computed and turned over with these funds on Nov. 30.

A recent audit of County Clerk Ray W. MacDonald's office by a private public accounting firm covering the period from Dec. 1, 1968, through May 31, 1969, indicated the surplus. MacDonald's office had total receipts amounting to $201,495.01 and disbursements of $90,730.88.

THE COUNTY CLERK'S office is a fee office, performing administrative duties and charging a certain amount for each function performed.

Disbursements include $50,003.10 for salaries, $38,019.39 for advanced funds which were returned by the DuPage County Board of Supervisors and $2,708.39 for miscellaneous expenses such as postage.

Woods Denies All

Sheriff Joseph Woods yesterday flatly denied a list of harassment allegations made by the president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) saying that he has never threatened anyone.

In an afternoon press conference, Sgt. John Flood, president of CCPA, charged Woods with harassing and intimidating members of the association and causing deterioration of morale within the police department.

Woods said he didn't have time to study all the allegations made by Flood and added that any talk of suspending the 11-year veteran was premature. He said the department would look into civil service laws to determine if there are grounds for suspension.

WOODS CONFIRMED that a special investigator has been studying the activities of the CCPA in the past few months and that he has tape recordings of meetings between him and Flood. Woods said he did so because he wanted a clear understanding of the goals of the CCPA.

"I imagine Flood would like to be fired," Woods said. "What he really wants to be is a full-time union boss. When Police Chief John Kistner returns we will look further into this matter."

Woods stressed that since he has become sheriff the department has improved and the base pay scale for his men has risen from $490 a month to $726 a month.

Woods added that through an attempt to bolster and improve the functioning of the sheriff's department a number of policemen including members of the association have had to be transferred.

Fire Prevention Week Near

Fire Prevention Week will be officially observed Oct. 5 to 11, in Elk Grove Village with activities beginning Sunday.

Fifth graders will receive free rides in a fire truck from 1 to 5 p.m.

To receive a ride, youngsters must have had their parents complete a home fire inspection blank distributed earlier by their teachers.

The inspection blanks, signed by parents, will be turned in at the fire station, 666 Landmeier Road, in return for a ticket to ride in the fire truck.

In addition, firemen will give a smoke mask and snorkel demonstration.

ALSO IN honor of fire prevention week, fire vehicles next Saturday will be driving through the streets of the village and shopping centers beginning at 11 a.m.

Articles written by members of the village fire prevention bureau will also appear in the Herald next week.

In conjunction with the week's activities, Village Pres. Jack Pahl has signed a proclamation officially designating the week as fire prevention week.

In the proclamation, Pahl said preventable fires have taken 12,000 lives during the past year and have caused nearly $2 billion in damage.

"Safety of life and property and conservation of natural resources are of primary importance to every citizen," said Pahl.

HE CALLED upon residents to initiate a year 'round campaign against the waste caused by preventable fires.

"I urge business and labor organizations as well as schools, civic groups, and public information agencies to cooperate in the observance of fire prevention week," Pahl said.

Fire Chief Allen Hulett said fire prevention week is annually observed during the week in which the great Chicago fire took place, Oct. 9, 1871.

It destroyed 17,430 buildings and resulted in the death of 250 persons.

Hulett said a little known fire in Peshigo, Wisc. at that same time also resulted in the death of 1,200 people and destruction of 1,280,000 acres of forest.

HULETT SAID it was not until 40 years later that President Woodrow Wilson issued the nation's first fire prevention proclamation.

President Warren C. Harding proclaimed fire prevention week 11 years later and since that time each year the week in which Oct. 9 falls has been known as fire prevention week.

Firemen Association To Hold Annual Dance

The Elk Grove Firemen's Association will hold its annual dance at 9 p.m. Oct. 17 in the Elmhurst Country Club, near Wood Dale.

Tickets are being sold door-to-door. Admission is $3 a couple.

Proceeds will be used for the teen center under construction in Lions Park and for the purchase of fire department equipment.

Fire Chief Allen Hulett said this is the only fund-raising campaign firemen have during the year.

Vote on Strike Accord

Ballots are in the mail to members of Teamsters Local 782, some of whom are entering their third day of a wildcat strike, for a vote on the proposed settlement between the union and the Chicago and Suburban Scavengers Association.

A representative of the Federal Mediation Service was a part of the negotiations in which the union asked for a $1 an hour increase over the present $3.86 per hour.

Lee Bowen, assistant director of the Federal Mediation Service, said the ballots will be tabulated Wednesday.

WILLIAM BUITEN of the scavengers' association said workers from only two firms in the 25-company association, were out on the unauthorized strike. These two include Laseke Disposal Co. which operates in Arlington Heights and Barrington Trucking Co. which picks up garbage in Rolling Meadows, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Mount Prospect and Palatine. In Elk Grove Village, only industries served by Barrington were affected.

"Everyone else is working," Buiten said.

No information about the proposed settlement will be released until it has been approved by union members.

John Baggot, spokesman for the union, was unavailable yesterday afternoon for comment on the reason for the wildcat strikes.

UNION MEMBERS had previously called a strike for Wednesday, the day their contract with the scavengers' association expired. However, a tentative agreement between the union and the association was supposed to prevent any stoppage of work.

Despite the agreement, workers for the two area disposal companies refused to work Wednesday and were still on strike yesterday.

Adult Aid On Education To Be Offered

Two Harper College representatives will be present at Mark Hopkins School, Elk Grove Village, Monday for adult counseling on college education. Mrs. Leah Cummins, community education director announced Thursday.

In searching for course ideas which would interest adults in the Mark Hopkins area for the lighted schoolhouse program, Mrs. Cummins said she found many people who indicated they would be interested in finishing their college education.

She arranged for the meeting with Harper representatives to outline possibilities existing to help adults finish their education.

Dave Groth, assistant to the dean of evening and continuing education, and Dr. Guerin Fisher, dean of guidance, will be present Monday night to discuss these possibilities with groups or individuals.

The meeting at 8 p.m. will be open to "adults particularly in Dist. 59, but we won't close the doors to others," Mrs. Cummins said.

Must We Pass the Course To Have Our Baby?

by MARK COHEN

Young fathers sat uncomfortably with wives with expanding waistlines as they listened to the nurse lecture on prenatal care at Northwest Community Hospital.

Husbands and wives filled wooden seats as they returned to the classroom to learn of birth and baby care.

They practiced on plastic babies, learning the proper way to hold a newborn infant.

The common method with the unflattering name "football hold" is used for picking up and holding the child. Fathers grasped a tiny doll as they rehearsed their new parental roles.

THE COURSE is held in a screened-off room of the hospital's cafeteria every Tuesday and Wednesday at 7:30 for six weeks. It is a continuing class held throughout the year.

Mrs. Henry Komay, the instructing nurse, talked of problems the new mothers and fathers might soon face.

She warned the pregnant wives not to ignore their husbands.

"Remember," she said, "your children may leave you someday when they grow up but your husbands will be with you for the rest of your life. So be nice to them."

One father, laughing at his own humor asked, "If I fail this course, does that mean that we can't have a baby?"

AS THE CLASSES progressed, students were taken on a tour of the hospital to The instructing nurse projected an inherent motherhood that permeated her lessons. She interspersed facts with personal gain familiarity with the building. They were told to use the front entrance between 7 a.m. and 11 p.m. They strolled into two air-conditioned bedrooms where, they were told, their wives would soon stay.

A father glanced affectionately into a glass-windowed room where babies lay wrapped in pink and blue blankets. Another remarked, as he listened to the cries of the infants, "If I was him I'd ask for another room; there's entirely too much noise in there."

Dads received instructions and mothers gained encouragement as Mrs. Komay spoke.

To the fathers, she said, "Don't stay around the delivery room. You may misinterpret what you hear and take a normal sound for a sign of danger."

"THE MOTHERS WILL be matched up with roommates according to age and method of feeding. And don't forget to take advantage of the time you have with your baby after birth. Visiting can always wait until later."

Pamphlets on everything from baby care to delivery were distributed to the prospective parents. Little red wagons layed with soft mattresses were used to move the newborn babes about the hospital. This, the hospital feels, keeps the infants happy.

Experiences and joked with her students to ease the strain of classroom learning.

"Many of you fathers get 'up tight' and forget your wife's name and age. And don't park the car in the lot before you're sure your wife's all right. It's a long walk to the delivery room for a woman who's in labor," she said.

EARS PERKED UP and eyes stared in-quisitively as the nurse talked of the cost of having a baby.

"It costs about $350 for a four-day stay. There is a $56 charge a day for hospital care of the baby; there's a $50 delivery fee; $15 to $20 for the anesthesiologist," Mrs. Komay said.

But discussion of costs was the only damper of spirits. It wasn't enough to lessen the interest in handling, feeding and bathing the soon-to-be member of the family.

Expectant fathers and mothers practiced with a plastic doll to gain experience in handling a child. According to Mrs. Komay, the more handling a baby receives the more secure he will be later.

She warned mothers-to-be of their responsibilities, telling them it is their job to feed the baby. The "social mother" who forgets her child for a coffee clutch or a movie was criticized as irresponsible.

"PACIFIERS OFTEN are a way for a lazy mother to escape her duties. When a baby cries, he cries for a reason, and sticking a pacifier in his mouth won't solve his problem," Mrs. Komay said.

As she talked of modern advancements that will allow doctors to discover a baby's sex by testing amniotic fluid, she smiled at an unmarried reporter in the room.

"Hey, you know, you're the first single dad I've had in my class," she remarked.

The instruction continued as students bathed plastic babies and listened to facts on infant care.

Lowry Will Visit Air Force Sites

Nelson Lowry, director of noninstructional staffing in High School Dist. 214, has been invited to participate in a three-day "distinguished visitor" tour of the Air Force Command facilities in Georgia and Florida later this month.

Lowry will visit the facilities at Marietta, Ga., at the Arnold Air Force Station in Tennessee, and at Cape Kennedy, Fla., with 20 other men from Illinois on Oct. 20 to 22.

The invitation comes as the result of Lowry's work with the Illinois Aerospace Education Association; he is the group's president.

THE GROUP WILL depart in Air Force aircraft on the morning of Oct. 20 and proceed to the Arnold Engineering Development Center in Tullahoma, Tenn. On Oct. 21 the men will travel to the Dobbins Air Force Base in Georgia, where they will inspect the Lockheed-Georgia Co.

On Oct. 22 they will tour the Air Force Museum, the Cape Kennedy Air Force Station, the Titan III Area and the John F. Kennedy Space Center.

Girls To Wash for Trip

You can have your car washed this Sunday by 70 Harper Junior College girls who are working their way to New York City.

The freshman and sophomore girls, all enrolled in the Dental Hygiene program at the new community college, will supply all of the energy and the labor.

Norman Klotz's Central and State Shell Station, located at 894 S. Arlington Heights Road in Arlington Heights, will supply the facilities from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Funds from the car wash will send from two to four girls to the American Dental Hygienists Association's annual meeting in New York from Oct. 12 to 16.

MISS MARTY HYNES, a Harper student from Des Plaines and president of the college's Junior American Dental Hygienists Association chapter, said the group had earned over $200 recently in a "blind date" raffle held at the college.

"The results of the car wash will determine how many delegates we can send to the New York meeting," she said.

The car wash will cost only $1 and all of the proceeds will go into the meeting fund. "We have even talked about wearing bikinis, weather permitting," Miss Hynes said.

Offers Health Care Plan

Congressional candidate Samuel H. Young has issued a four-point program to strengthen social security laws and mapped a program to improve the nation's health care facilities.

In an address Monday at a meeting of the Elk Grove Regular GOP organization at the Mount Prospect Country Club, Young called for "a comprehensive review" of present social security policies. His program includes:

—Relating social security benefit payments to a "cost-of-living" price index.

—GIVING WIDOWS 100 per cent of monthly benefits instead of the present 82½ per cent payments.

—Increasing the amount of earnings that a participant may receive without being forced to suffer a reduction in his social security payments; and —Establishing a minimum dependent benefit for each child from about $25 to $35 monthly.

Young also urged Congress to review private pensions and general tax laws in his recommended overall study.

OF THE NATION'S health care program, Young said "additional work yet remains to be done" although he commended various existing federal programs. "The increasing cost of medical and hospital care requires continued attention to methods of decreasing such costs without impairing the efficiency of medical care," Young said.

He urged the establishment of neighborhood health centers, increased study in the preventive medicine field and wider availability of health care services. He declared his support for continued financial assistance under the Hill-Burton Act and approved of federal aid to local governments for regional and area hospital planning.

MR. AND MRS. DALLAS Erickson of Palatine practice bathing a baby using a plastic doll at Northwest Community Hospital's prenatal classes. With the concerned attitude of parents-to-be, they carefully wrap the doll in a blanket to protect it from the cold. The six-week course consists of both practical and lecture classes.

Their Job Is Defense

by JUDY MORRIS

A group of 18 men in Bensenville are quietly serving their town every day.

They are on call at all hours to aid in emergencies and serve at special functions, yet many people do not even know their organization exists.

Civil Defense workers come from all walks of life. They work at a variety of jobs, raise their families and still find time to volunteer more than 15 hours of their time every month.

Their purpose, as defined by Dick Sabatino, assistant director, is "to serve the community." They do that in a number of ways.

AT PRESENT, CD workers have volunteered their time to the Bensenville police force, which is missing three of its men through illness and a return to school. The volunteers ride in squad cars, direct traffic and serve as "extra eyes and ears for the patrolmen," according to Walter Tett, police chief.

This often means a 12-hour day for these men who are assisting the police during their off-work hours. And if you can't find the CD workers in patrol cars, you might be able to find them at the village garage where they are completely overhauling a truck donated to them by the Addison Civil Defense Department.

The truck, a 1964 Ford, will make its first public appearance in Bensenville at tomorrow's Gold Rush parade. Those men who will drive it are just part of the crew who have worked to put the vehicle in running order.

The Bensenville Civil Defense Department was chartered in May, 1968. It now has 18 members, but needs more manpower, according to Sabatino.

THE MEN receive training in first aid, traffic and riot control and will soon undertake a course in airplane emergencies. They come out during electrical storms which have pulled wires and trees down and they direct traffic at carnivals and festivals.

In the case of an extreme emergency, tornados or nuclear attacks, they would guide people toward one of the five approved civil defense shelters in Bensenville. These are located at the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., Geis Funeral Home, Foremost Liquors, Tioga School and Green Street School.

One of the biggest problems facing the CD at the present is a lack of funds. They must work through the village, which appropriate a sum of $3,000 annually. With this money, they must maintain present equipment and plan for the future purchase of additional equipment.

There is no salary paid these men. "They do it because they like it. They're a bunch of real dedicated guys," said Trustee Frank Focht, chairman of the Civil Defense Committee.

THE CD workers elected new officers at their Wednesday night meeting. Named as director and assistant director were Ralph Crawford and Dick Sabatino. Also elected were Norman Anderson, shelter director; Frank Bollinger, fire and rescue director; Pete Bloode, law and order director, and James Bock, communications director.

Other CD members are Paul Mahaszak, Ed Froehlich, Herb Tuffel, Robert Glassford, Steve Heike, Kenneth Majeski, John Froelich, Richard Franzen, George Schmidt, Terry Ostfelder and Robert McCown.

These are the men who are on hand to protect their community at any hour of the night or day whenever an emergency might arise.

After-School Teen World Explored

by EDITH FREUND

Who are the kids without wheels? What lures them to hang around downtown areas and unlighted parks late at night when they should be home? And what motivates them to do the things they do?

In this third of a three-part series, staff writer Edith Freund explores the after-school world of children from 10 to 15, the youths without cars, and what makes them tick.

The Mount Prospect youth commission is one village agency that is attempting to do something about what they refer to as "our youths." Whether "our youths" want something done for them is another matter.

The youth commission itself has many deep philosophical discussions concerning young people. One or two kids are represented at its meetings. The discussions are on a high plane, mostly a generation removed from what is happening in the community's streets.

And a strong undercurrent is felt in the discussions, reflecting the political tug-of-war played in Mount Prospect recently by Mayor Robert Teichert and ex-Mayor Dan Congreve. The score, to borrow a tennis term, is love-all, for the kids.

From two years of wrangling and "careful thought and study" have come a greatly reduced commission and two productive suggestions to the village board.

THEIR MOST outstanding accomplishment was to recommend the hiring of Dr. Ronald Duckers, a psychologist, and John Strong, a social worker, for police department work with juveniles.

The second suggestion, for this is just an advisory commission, is that a scholarship program, funded by donation last year, be continued this year by the village. This scholarship would provide $500 toward teacher education. The first scholarship was awarded to a prospective practical arts teacher. The mechanics for selecting the applicant were worked out by the commission.

The youth commission is also aiding youngsters in the community by making plans for a dance for high school students this Christmas. These plans must also be presented to the village board for approval.

If it is forthcoming, the adults on the youth commission may get the surprise of their lives when they look in on the "happening" they helped plan.

FOR THE HIGH school kids of today don't dance. A 14-year-old girl was furious after her first dance at Prospect. Nobody danced. The "group" was marvelous, she said, but everybody just stood around. Some sat on the floor here and there. And there were no refreshments.

"The dances in junior high were better," she said.

Two area churches are planning youth centers. One, at the Peace Reformed Church, is in operation now. It's for junior high students throughout the village who might want to drop by after school.

St. Mark's Lutheran Church is building a large youth center in a centrally located spot. The park district has opened a corner of the country club, hoping to lure the "creek freaks" and their friends into the light.

But often the results of these good intentions by adults, even those informed enough to let the youngsters run things themselves, are that the kids who are attracted are not the ones the community is trying to reach.

THE OTHERS, the ones who are having a hard time with what Strong calls "their dependency struggle," stay out in "the unorganized night," away from their energetic peers.

Youth facilities are often "captured" by a clique or faction who make it their own. The kids who are part of the crowd have a great time, but it's not really the type of place adult sponsors would like to believe they are providing. This type of thing can be done right under the noses of the sponsors.

Some of the problems the Crystal Ship represented was this type of unspoken dichotomy between age levels or political factions of the young people. The difference between an eighth grader and a high school freshman, who is just a month older, may be light years.

THE CAPTURE of the Crystal Ship was most successful. It sank. And it illustrated one of the recurring problems in facilities run by the young people themselves.

They are changing, growing up, and eventually they go away somewhere to school or work. Their interests of last year fade, the fashions of this year's kids are different. What the teenager has worked hard for in his community collapses behind him as he turns to new things.

Some of the most successful programs to keep kids busy are the drum and bugle corps, drill teams and marching bands. These turn unchanneled energy into something productive with the side benefits of a good time with the gang.

The Guardsmen Drum and Bugle Corps offers one such program. Far from "keeping the kids off the streets," it puts them right down the middle every weekend during the spring, summer and fall. On the Fourth of July they may have three or four parades and two exhibitions. The kids go home tired.

THEIR WEEKDAY evenings are spent practicing drill. Summer weekends are spent traveling with the corps, which brings in that necessary "gang" appeal. The corps are separated by sex when traveling. They are housed in "Y's" and schools over night. If there is a pool, they are allowed to swim all night when possible. Pizza and a lot of horseplay give them the feeling it is all a free-wheeling good time. But the chaperones are always there.

"I don't know," said the middle-aged taxpayer over his second martini, "what these kids want. My boy has a five speed bike out there in the garage that I would have given my eye teeth for in the depression, but he won't ride it to high school. There are pools and a library that they abuse. We have a great family room. But where does he go? Out. What does he do? Nothing."

If the middle-aged taxpayer will take another look, he will find that much of his capital investment in the community is locked up after 9 p.m., although curfew extends two or three hours later.

POOLS CLOSE at 9 p.m., even on hot nights. The schools are dark after that hour and school boards are urged to recommend a 10 p.m. time when "everyone should be away from the building."

In summer, if it is cool as summer-1969 was, half the season is not swimming weather. But just as the hot weather gets rolling, Labor Day arrives. It might be possible to use Harper students or kids who will be around in the fall to keep the pools open an extra week or two. But nobody ever did, so nobody does.

How about a 10 p.m. swim for high school kids in the summer? Or a midnight swim for adults only? When the kids are using the park in organized activities there is not much vandalism, say the police. After summer programs close and before the winter ones begin — that's the vandalism gap.

The much-beleaguered library closes at the usual time. Nine o'clock for everybody. It isn't a social club, after all. And who can blame these agencies who have a hard time finding help that they cut short their hours of use?

A 10 P.M. DISCUSSION group for teens at the library? Who would come? A supervised tent-out in Lions Park and Meadows for 11- and 12-year-olds? Who would plan it? That wouldn't cost much, says the middle-aged taxpayer in wonder.

Why don't the kids of today go to the movies like the last generation did? Movies are not better than ever, that's why. There are few movies suitable for kids between 10 and 15. And the ones that do exist, cost too much.

But communities throughout the nation have adopted some facts of the successful Mott plan, developed by a private foundation in Michigan that encourages fuller use of public facilities already in existence. Roller skating at night for junior high kids in the multipurpose room, or the school library shared with a community makes taxpayers increasingly interested in supporting things that are well-used.

Today's 10- to 15-year-old is living in a time of performance, pressure and burgeoning puberty. The kind of imaginative help his community gives him may determine the kind of world we will live in 30 years from now.

IF ADULTS ARE not careful, facilities made available for student dances will be taken over by a clique or faction of kids who make it their own, and often these are not the ones the community is trying to reach.

Jaycee Park Name Opposed

A Jaycee proposal to rename Waverly Park in Rolling Meadows Jaycee Park met with opposition from Dick Martin, a commissioner on the park board.

According to Jaycee Pres. Bill Meyer, the organization contributed all the needed equipment to the redeveloped park area. They were aided by the Junior Womens Club and the Jaycee-ettes.

Martin, disagreeing with the club's proposal, stated, "I would not like to see Waverly Park drop its identity completely. I think we should discuss this before any action is taken."

Martin suggested the placement of a plaque in the park to pay tribute to the Jaycees' efforts.

A compromise suggestion was naming the park Jaycee-Waverly park.

"We want to make it known that we put something into the park and of course we would like to participate in the dedication ceremonies," Meyers stated.

No decisions have been made and the subject remains open for further discussion.

School Menus

The following lunches will be served Monday in area schools where a hot lunch program is provided (subject to change without notice):

Dist. 214: Main dish (one choice): Salisbury steak, cheeseburger in a bun, wiener in a bun. Vegetable (one choice): whipped potatoes, Harvard beets. Released on Bond After 2 Accidents

Larry Diestelow, 18, of 353 Marion Court in Wheeling, was released on $1,000 bond after being arrested Saturday and charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

Wheeling police also charged Diestelow with driving off the roadway and driving too fast for conditions.

Police said Diestelow's car first hit a chain link fence at the home of William McClary, 106 Wayne Place shortly before 9 p.m. Friday.

A few minutes later his car hit a public service utility pole and a state highway information sign on Milwaukee Avenue. The car then hit a house belonging to W. Rutkowski at 85 S. Milwaukee Ave. Damage to the house was minor.

Police said Diestelow left the scene of the second accident on foot, but surrendered to police at 8 a.m. Saturday morning at the police station.

Diestelow is scheduled to appear Oct. 7 in Arlington Heights District Court.

BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

THE HEADLINES in the Sunday paper leaped out at you:

"Southern Cal Racks Up Northwestern, 48-6."

"Powerful Missouri Routs Illinois, 37-6."

"Hawkeyes Grab 44-0 Lead; Rip Cougars, 61-35."

"Michigan Rolls, 45-7."

"Ohio Bobcats Battle to 35-35 Tie With Minnesota."

"Buckeyes Trounce T.C.U., 62-0."

"Florida Outlasts Mississippi State, 42-35."

"Tennessee Survives Auburn Rally, 45-19."

"Texas Wins, 49-7."

"Arkansas Buries Tulsa, 53-0."

There were many defensive football coaches throughout the country who had the same nightmare Saturday evening.

They could see nothing but a referee's arm stretched skyward in the signal of touchdown . . . after touchdown . . . after touchdown . . . after touchdown.

The offensive shows were so consistent throughout the country that somebody should demand an investigation of the game between Kentucky and Mississippi. Only 19 points were scored. A defensive struggle? Must have been a typographical error.

And just what right, on this particular Saturday, did California and Indiana have playing to a mild 17-14 decision?

William & Mary 7, Temple 6. Nonsense. Are they sure it wasn't 47-36??

Now, look at the total yards in some games. Iowa had 696! Some clubs would be happy to get that many in four or five games. And Washington State, the team that Iowa blitzed, had 485 total yards.

Michigan rolled up 581 in its rout, Ohio State had 565, UCLA 435 in the win over Wisconsin. Purdue 414 against a touted Notre Dame defense.

Can't you just picture a newspaperman telling the star halfback that he rushed for 200 yards and the halfback saying, "I can't explain it. I just didn't feel right out there. I'll try to do better next week."

They're scoring points so fast in college football these days that it's rumored the Chicago Bulls of the National Basketball Association are considering hiring Woody Hayes as a consultant to the offense. And Leo Durocher is reportedly interested in attending several college football clinics so he can learn how to score in September.

What's happening this fall isn't unusual in college football. They were racking up points so fast last year that Cincinnati once scored 33 on Houston — and lost by 38!

It isn't too difficult to analyze just what's happening to this game of football. Experimentation with the offense has been the big news of the 1960s.

University of Southern California's John McKay came up with the shifting T offense, or his form of the T, which was the first system that could attack the rush-conscious defense. It spread the field and confused the linebackers.

Until then, the way to win was to power sweep everybody, try to outmuscle them, play defense and wait for a break. McKay's formation led to other variations — and ultimately to what is now referred to as "pro style" college football.

Basically, receivers are split wide — often five receivers go out on a single play — backs can run and quarterbacks can throw and run. All of this has spread defenses too thin.

You also have to consider a gradual erosion of the two-way football rules. There was a wild-card substitution, then two wild cards, then offensive and defensive units and, finally, unlimited specialist-oriented offenses, with unusual emphasis on quarterbacks and receivers.

From the scores last week, it's obvious a remarkable number of these quarterbacks and receivers excel at their specialties.

Quite naturally, all of this is driving the game's coaches goofy.

But they understand what has happened. Due to the pro influence, there are more good pitchers and catchers coming out of high school, more good quarterbacks and receivers. They all want these Joe Namath contracts.

And most colleges use their best athletes on offense, as backs and receivers. That's not necessarily true in the pros where they've got some of their best athletes on defense, especially as cornerbacks.

You spread the defense out in college, you go man-to-man in your coverage. But if the offensive boy — the pass receiver — is a better athlete than the defensive boy, he'll beat him. So you have to go double coverage and that weakens you against the run.

And then there's the quarterback running the option. That can really break you down. If you could just spread your players out and let the quarterback drop back and throw, you could play a consistent defense. But now you've got teams with two split receivers, with runners, with quarter-backers who can run the option as well as throw. This simply generates more offense than any defense can handle.

The triple-option is the newest offense designed to put points on the board with the rapidity of a Rick Mount throwing in jump shots from 25 feet.

Basically, the triple option works this way: the tackle gets optioned instead of blocked.

You make the tackle worry about three things: a give to the runner, a keep by the quarterback or a pitchout. And then, of course, the quarterback can also pass as he goes veering down the line.

Fun. Fun. For the offense. Nightmares for the defense.

The defense can be terribly disarmed. The deep backs have to stay back or get bombed. The cornerbacks have to watch the run and the pass. The ends have to beware of the pass first. The linebackers have to drop off and double cover, or move more quickly than most of them can with a play flowing away from them.

While the defensive coaches go nuts, the fans admittedly love these wide-open games. What's happening is a display of what can develop when several trends in football come together at the same time.

When Grantland Rice sat down at the typewriter after a magnificent Notre Dame Victory over Army in 1924, he authored one of the most famous works in sportswriting history.

"Outlined against a blue-gray October sky," he wrote, "the Four Horsemen rode again. In dramatic lore they are known as Famine, Pestilence, Destruction, and Death. They are only aliases. Their real names are Stuldreher, Miller, Crowley, and Layden."

And Rice wrote this after a 13-7 game. We can imagine how he might write now, today, in a period of such high-powered, explosive football where backs are running up and down the field and scoring more touchdowns than the Four Horsemen could have imagined.

Maybe Grantland Rice would write something like this:

"Outlined against a blue-gray October sky, the Four Rockets rode again. In Houston they're known as Gemini, Mercury, Apollo and Mariner. They are only aliases. Their real names are . . ."

Dramatic Battle Set For Tonight

by KEITH REINHARD

If you catch a green light at Palatine Road, it takes a scant five minutes to drive between Wheeling and Hersey high schools.

Furthermore, the head football coaches of these two schools, Wildcat Jack Liljeberg and Huskie Len Burt, live a brisk five block walk away from one another in Arlington Heights.

Even these small distances will melt away tonight however, along with dozens of other mutual bonds, as grid teams representing these two institutions collide head on for the very first time at the varsity level. The showdown is slated for 8 p.m. at the Wheeling field.

The multitude of close ties would make it an interesting clash to begin with. Items such as Steve Chernicky, Hersey defensive coach, who up until two seasons ago filled the same capacity at Wheeling.

Or the dozens of other teachers, including such coaches as Ken Carter, Harvey Foster and Len Binding who have made the switchover from Wheeling to Hersey since the latter opened up its doors for the first time shortly more than a year ago.

Or the Hersey girls with boyfriends at Wheeling; the Wheeling kids with close chums at Hersey; the people like frosh footballer Jim Bastable and his cheerleader sister Sue preparing to root their Hersey teams past a school where two older brothers set a flock of records in three sports apiece that may live for a long time to come.

Or no less than 26 members of this year's varsity Huskie football squad — nearly two thirds of the roster — who began as freshmen sporting Wildcat uniforms.

All of these ties would have helped tonight's match develop into an interesting struggle. As it is, they only serve to intensify the rivalry. For of paramount importance is that the two clubs meet undefeated in loop play with visions of a title quite within the realm of possibility for tonight's conqueror.

And for just a little more spice . . . tonight is Wheeling's homecoming.

Just what will evolve from such a loaded pairing is difficult to predict. A team always churns up just a little bit of extra spirit for a homecoming game and con-ably echoed a lot of people's sentiments when he said, "There's no question that Hersey has the better running attack, especially if we have to play them without (Dan) Hull." The Wheeling mentor went on to say he felt Hersey has the best set of backs in the league and Burt seconded this adding, "I think our speed, power running ability allow us to lay claim to that distinction — we're quick and any player including our quarterback can go all the way."

Daletski simply said, "Talent is the name of the game in rushing and Hersey has the talent." Schnake, speaking in broader terms, noted, "Hersey has a much more diversified offensive attack and I think Jack (Liljeberg) will have his hands full trying to stop it."

On Passing Attacks — Wheeling probably has the edge in this department primarily because they utilize it more. Daletski for one gave the Wildcats the edge stating, "Hersey hasn't really demonstrated what they can do while I know Liljeberg will do a decent job with it." Schnake didn't care to make a comparison since his Grenadiers played Hersey on a rainy night when neither side was able to go to the air much but even Liljeberg, while feeling his side had the upper hand in passing observed, "Hersey's backs are very good receivers."

Burt on the other hand defended his squad's passing attack: "Our quarterback Dave Powell has a good completion percentage in conference play but because of the ability of our running backs he has been afforded little cause for passing. He's accurate though and continues to impress us in drills."

On Offensive Limits — Daletski felt neither side was overly impressive. Liljeberg thought the Huskies might have an edge although he couldn't be too sure if it was the line opening the holes or the backs making their own openings that made Hersey's line look stout. Observed Schnake, "Wheeling is more standard in their thinking, with the concentration on power. Hersey goes more with technique. The contrast should be interesting, although I don't believe it will favor either side by too much."

Burt's contribution was that Wheeling has the edge in size but his own boys get the nod in quickness. "This increases our chances to break someone into the open," he said.

On Defensive Lines — This should be Wheeling's trump card. Again Burt spoke of his own team's speed and agility. "But size-wise," Burt continued, "Wheeling has the advantage and I'm also impressed with their hitting ability." Daletski too was high on the 'Cat line. "It's very possible they could cause a standoff with Hersey's running game here if they're able to stop everything outside tackle." Liljeberg substantiated that by offering, "Good pitching usually stops good hitting and even though our line is young we feel it gains a little more confidence with each game. Pride should motivate them to stop the home run and determination should help them keep the one base hits to a minimum."

Surprisingly, Schnake took the opposite stance. "We moved the ball better against Wheeling," he noted.

On Pass Defense — Observed Daletski: "It's characteristic of a high school team to be weak on pass defense. I think both teams are vulnerable." Noted Burt: "Every coach has a fear of the home run ball. Our three interceptions lead the league so far and we have improved over last season and continue to do so in my estimation."

Liljeberg said: "Individually I don't think they have a defensive half to rate with our Steve Klop but they do have more speed and depth and I'd rate the two sides about equal."

In General — Burt: "It's their homecoming game and they'll be excited."

Liljeberg: "We'll be excited too."

Burt: "We'll be excited too."

Liljeberg: "We'll be excited too."

Burt: "We'll be excited too."

coming and the peak state of Wheeling's athletes should give them a psychological edge. But the experience of playing together last year along with this season plus our depth, conditioning, lack of injuries thus far and the fact that we platoon quite a bit should give us the overall advantage in this game."

Liljeberg: "It's hard to judge how 16- and 17-year-olds will react in any given situation. All you can do is ask for one hundred per cent and we've already done that with our players. If they come through, we won't worry about the outcome. It will be just a reflection of the best they can put forth."

Daletski: "This game becomes more psychological than physical every year. The team that wants the game the most is the team that will win it and there are hundreds of ways of making the breaks to accomplish that goal. Hersey has the talent and with an emphasis on strategy and conditioning they should be rated the favorites. But Wheeling has had the experience of fighting overwhelming odds and that's a decided advantage in this sort of game. At any rate if the Wildcats lose, they should have no excuses. They will have been beaten by a better team."

Schnake: "On paper it's Hersey's ballgame. But no one should underestimate the intangibles and there are a whole carload of them riding into this one."

'Blacks Want Suburbs'

by MARK COHEN

An employee of Western Electric in Rolling Meadows who recently competed in the Miss Black Chicago contest said she sees a "desire for blacks to escape the congested crime laden cities for a pleasant life in the suburbs."

Jennifer Teer, entered the Miss Chicago contest to "do her thing" for the black populace of the nation.

Funds raised in the contest will be used to aid Operation Bread Basket. This organization, the one-time drama student explained, helps open the doors of business to minority groups and provides funds for the poverty stricken blacks in the south.

WHILE WORKING and shopping in this area, she said "she found most people very warm."

"I have some close white friends at work who I share secrets with, although I am not as forward with my white friends as I would be with blacks," she said.

She said the rising crime rate is often incorrectly blamed on blacks.

"The major crimes are committed by the whites. This is the organized crime. Of course we have our teenage gangs and thefts," she said.

According to Jennifer, most whites exhibit a fear of blacks.

"One time I noticed a white woman walking down the street. When she spotted a group of black youths on the corner she suddenly became frightened, ran into the house, and locked the door," she explained.

"I HAVE THE same fear when I walk through an all white neighborhood. I tense up and look around nervously," she added.

Jennifer joined the beauty contest to make a contribution to her people that a business girls' life had often made difficult.

"Many middle and upper class blacks forget their people once they obtain success. I thought it was about time that I did something. The only way we can solve our problems is for all classes to get together," Jennifer said.

ACCORDING TO Jennifer most blacks remain in the city because they have no conception of suburban life. Some blacks leave the city for the prestige they find in the suburbs, she said, while others are just looking for a place with fresh air and open land.

"There is a way out of the inner cities for anyone who is willing to help himself. I don't want any give-away programs," Jennifer remarked.

Many poor blacks blame their position on the white man and the system of segregation, she said.

"The poor Afro-American often has hostility for the poor white. They feel he has no reason for his position. For white man, they think, there is always a way out. But the black person is always color marked," Jennifer explained.

BEAUTY CONTESTANT in the Miss Black Chicago pageant, Jennifer Teer, discusses the black man and suburbia.

Nottke Is Named To Cities Unit

Wilbert Nottke, mayor of Itasca, was appointed as a member of the committee on international municipal cooperation of the National League of Cities.

In making the appointment, league president Beverly Briley, mayor of Nashville, Tenn., noted that "you will be a member of a three member delegation from your state to represent its municipal interests in this important committee."

Committee chairman is Mayor Victor Shiro of New Orleans, La., and vice chairman is Mayor Milton Graham of Phoenix, Ariz.

The league president said, "To keep city leadership in the forefront of national urban policy development, the committees have three major tasks.

First, a constant search for new concepts which will aid in providing a good life for all urban Americans; second, carefully weighing the national and urban program priorities; and third, more clearly determining the strategies necessary to achieve our goals.

"National Municipal Policy activity is a year-round effort," the Nashville mayor wrote. "I sincerely hope that you will accept this assignment and that you will provide the chairman and the NLC staff with suggestions for either policy or procedural improvements."

Nottke, in accepting the appointment, said "naturally, I'm quite pleased, and I'll do my best to work for the advantage of municipalities and the betterment and encouragement of the league."

HE SAID he got the appointment through the Illinois Municipal League.

Nottke, in addition to duties as mayor of Itasca, is also the president of the DuPage County Mayors and Managers Conference.

WILL NOTTKE, mayor of Itasca, on a new appointment: "I'm pleased, and I'll do my best to work for the advantage of municipalities."

Willard Airport Only Number Two

Willard Airport at the University of Illinois in Champaign is the second busiest airport in Illinois, according to the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

Willard Airport recorded 258,488 operations, takeoffs and landings, during the fiscal year ending July 1. O'Hare International Airport, the world's busiest, recorded 676,849 operations.

Next in Illinois were DuPage Airport near Wheaton, 255,564; Midway in Chicago, 249,670, and Pal-Waukee near Wheeling, 220,484.

Of 326 airport control towers operated by the FAA, the one at Willard rated 56th in the nation in total operations.

HOWEVER, ACCORDING to Dale E. Warner, tower chief, it ranks first in combined station-tower activities. The busier towers handle only operations, with a separate station handling weather information and reports, and other nonoperational communications and tasks. The Chicago

Device Is Exploded

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — The United States set off an underground nuclear device more powerful than a million tons of TNT yesterday on the Aleutian island of Amchitka.

The Atomic Energy Commission, which ignored last minute pleas to halt the explosion, said the blast went off at 6:05 p.m. EDT at the bottom of a 4,000-foot shaft.

Spy Helped Kill 30?

SAIGON—The alleged victim in the Green Beret murder case was thought to have given the North Vietnamese Army information that led directly to the deaths of at least 30 allied soldiers, 10 of them Americans, U.S. military sources said Thursday.

The sources said the slain troops were members of Special Forces-Green Berets patrols ambushed within minutes after landing by helicopter or parachuting in Communist territory.

Paddock Offers Insurance Plan

An accident insurance program is being developed and will be offered to readers of Paddock Publications' Herald and Register newspapers.

Wayne Tite, director of promotions for the newspaper, said the insurance program is the first in a series of announcements involving an extensive program of community services that will be made available to readers. He said an analysis of existing programs throughout the country is being conducted prior to development of a local community services program.

The Readers Accident Insurance Program is being developed in consultation with Washington National Insurance Co. of Evanston.

Car Pools Organized

Cautious commuters in the Northwest suburbs are planning their car pools now in face of a nationwide railroad strike threatened for midnight tonight.

Spokesmen from both the Chicago North Western and the Milwaukee Road railroads said they will be out of operation if the strike occurs.

"But that's a big if," said Ashley Wilhite of the Milwaukee Road. "We seldom know anything definite until it occurs," he added of railroad strikes in general.

"It's hard to believe the strike will actually take place," Wilhite said. The strike would paralyze all rail service.

"YOUR GUESS is as good as mine," Frank Koval of Chicago North Western said Thursday when asked if the strike will take place.

"One thing in the offering is if President Nixon appoints a presidential act finding board. That will stop the strike for 60 days," he added.

President Nixon has until midnight tonight to appoint the board and head off the strike temporarily, Koval added.

The situation is in the President's hands,

Wilhite agreed. He could offer no consolation to commuters should the strike occur. "We have to be prepared if transportation simply does not run. That is very hard to face," Wilhite added.

A primary concern of the railroads is that perishable goods get to a point where they can be protected while a strike is on, he said.

WILHITE COMPARED the situation yesterday to water rising during a flood. "You can't stop it so you just watch it rise," he said.

The strike threat is being initiated by four shopcraft unions in pursuit of a 10 per cent pay increase.

Since regional, rather than nationwide, service would be halted, according to initial reports, there was doubt that President Nixon would intervene.

Later developments indicate that rail service would be hampered on a national level and a fine line now exists on which the president must make a decision.

The railroads threatened with the strike Saturday were the Santa Fe, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Erie Lackawanna, Southern, Baltimore and Ohio and Ches-

Ask Curbside Garbage

A plan asking all Hoffman Estates residents to place garbage at curbside for the duration of a scavenger workers strike was issued Thursday.

In a telephone call to the Herald, Mrs. Laura E. Reedy, village finance officer and an administrative assistant in the clerk's office, asked that all families in the community cooperate with efforts to keep refuse picked up.

"Temporarily, we are asking even those who normally pay for rear door service to place their garbage containers at the curb," Mrs. Reedy explained.

She also asked that residents refrain from discarding large or heavy articles and only dispose of normal household garbage and papers until the strike is settled.

THIS ACTION WAS requested during a public works committee meeting held at the village hall Wednesday evening.

"As of this morning we still have no indication of how long the strike could last," Mrs. Reedy said. She explained also that Barrington Trucking Co., franchised scavengers contracted by the village, communicates with her twice daily regarding the strike and pending negotiations.

Public works department personnel and vehicles went into action in Hoffman Estates early Wednesday morning when the scavenger workers walkout was discovered.

Cause of the work stoppage, which affects about 25 suburban communities, is a $1 per hour wage increase demanded by members of Teamsters Local 782. Their current pay rate is $3.36 per hour and other requests such as holiday and vacation pay are also under discussion.

UNION MEMBERS will vote on a tentative agreement tomorrow which could put workers back on the streets by Saturday, although details of the settlement will not be released until after its approval.

Mrs. Reedy praised the job being done by Kenneth Dean, superintendent of streets, and his crew who are operating two public works department trucks in the village.

She said that these village employees are working diligently in an attempt to prevent garbage collection from getting out of hand.

A LANDMARK at Ida Vogelei Park, the small frame building adjacent to a large barn served as home to two migrant workers families for several summers. The 10-acre site, planned for development as a major park area was recently acquired from Mrs. Ida Vogelei by Hoffman Estates Park District.

Park Land to The District

Ida Vogelei Park officially became the property of Hoffman Estates Park District this week when final negotiations were completed and deeds to the 10-acre site released to Park Atty. Donald Rose.

Title to the parcel of land at Higgins and Jones roads was signed over to the park district Wednesday by Mrs. Ida Vogelei during a brief meeting at Chicago Title and Trust Co.

Also on hand to complete details of the purchase were Park Pres. Robert L.

Schuh, Vice Pres. Bernard M. Bartosch and Treasurer Fred R. Weaver, as well as Mrs. Anne Schuerings, who serves as park secretary.

"I regard this as a milestone in the history of the park district and can only hope it is the start of bigger and better things," Schuh said.

BOUGHT AT A total price of $150,000, the site is scheduled for development into a major recreational area. An existing stone building on the property will serve as an administrative office center for the park district.

Schuh indicated that offices will be moved from the village hall to Vogelei Park before the end of 1969 and said that some repair work has already been completed on the building with more planned for completion during the next several months.

Recently the park board approved the sale of $230,000 in bonds to finance purchase of the property and cover costs of renovation and future expansion.

Fourth 'R' Added at Keller

Eighth grade students at Helen Keller Junior High in Dist. 54 are studying a fourth 'R' in addition to reading, writing and arithmetic this year — real life.

The unions include the International Association of Machinists, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, International Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Blacksmiths and the Sheet Metal Workers.

A "directed studies" program at Keller is designed to expose pupils to vocational roles in the community and the skills required for particular vocations. The pupils also study current events in the program.

Approximately half of the Keller eighth graders are enrolled in six directed studies classes this semester, while the other half take a required art course. In the second semester the pupils will simply switch classes. There is no grade given for the directed studies program.

AMONG THE various vocations represented by Keller classroom visitors to date have been an airline pilot, a nurse, a policeman and a real estate salesman. Other callings will be added as the program continues during the year.

"The directed studies program allows pupils to explore community roles and will hopefully enable them to see a relationship to what they are studying in school," said James Frank, Helen Keller guidance counselor.

"When these pupils get to high school," he added, "they will have to make certain decisions about the type of courses they will be taking. It's not too early to start them thinking in this direction."

"We're not asking the pupil to make a decision about his life's work at this time. Through the directed studies program, vocations of all types will become visible point," Asst. Principal James Oberg said.

"The directed studies program speakers are designed to provide a spectrum of vocational roles for the pupil to think about."

OBERG POINTED OUT that young boys often indicate a desire to be policemen or firemen because they are familiar with those community roles. The policemen and firemen are quite visible to these youngsters.

to Dist. 54 pupils in the persons of community residents. Ted Javor, an airline pilot, was a recent classroom visitor at Helen Keller. Shortly afterward, his wife, who is a registered nurse, spoke to the eighth graders about her career. Vocations appealing to boys mainly will also be represented in the program.

Schaumburg Policeman William Heidt, liaison officer with Dist. 54 junior highs, is in charge of obtaining vocational guests for the program.

Enroll 1,700

Adult classes in the Palatine-Schaumburg High School Dist. 211 continuing education program have a first week enrollment of 1,700 persons, Charles Mueller, program director, has announced.

Although many classes are filled, there are openings in noncredit courses in English art, Typing I and II, Shorthand I and II, Fortran, and business management. Self-improvement and advancement courses, introduction to electronics, welding and mechanical drawing are still open.

Foreign languages, recreation for women, organ and mathematics also have openings, Mueller says.

Counseling for students in the high school diploma program, which begins Sept. 30 at William Fremd High School, will be available from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. in Room 165 at Fremd.

4 Productions Set

Students at Conant High School in Hoffman Estates have the opportunity to participate in four different types of theatrical presentations.

Under the guidance of its faculty adviser, Nancy Saggars, the Conant Drama Club will have eight productions this year. Its first presentation will be in experimental theater, which became a part of the club's activity last year.

"Inherit the Wind" is considered a reader's theater and will be produced Oct. 28 and 29 in the Conant cafeteria. "We try to expose students to different types of experimental drama," Miss Saggars said.

BESIDES experimental theater, the club participates in the all-school production of a musical. "The Music Man" will be a joint venture with the music department which will be produced Nov. 14, 15, 21 and 22.

In December the club will combine art with music to produce a dance-drama show. On Dec. 12 and 13 the Silhouettes, the Conant dance club and the drama club will use a theme of the mechanical age in combining the arts in expressive routines.

The fourth production series will be a children's theater production in February.

"Last year we did 'Cinderella' and entertained about 1,000 school children in three Saturday productions," Miss Saggars said.

Children's and experimental theater productions are unusual in a high school program and Conant is one of the few high schools in the Chicago area to become involved in these areas of drama.

EXPANDING ITS activities this year, the drama club is planning a Christmas variety show for the Blackhawk Grade School and a Valentine's Day presentation for the Fairview PTA.

With 200 members, the school club has regular meetings to discuss current productions, techniques of makeup, set design and construction, publicity and box office operations. In the eight productions scheduled this year, students will have an opportunity to work with acting, singing, dance, makeup, writing, directing and technical aspects of producing a show.

The drama club officers who direct the club's activities are president, Pat Buchenot; vice president, Bonnie Houff; secretary, Terri Mikottis, and historian, Sue Cramer. Technical director for the club's productions is Jay Fox, Conant English teacher.

ACTING IS ONE of the aspects of theater production. Conant High School students will study producing plays and shows. Claire Caprile, Bob Moses, Connie Davis and Pat Cassidy participated in the spring children's theater production "Cinderella" which drew a thousand school children to the Saturday presentation.

Flood Charges Woods With Harassment

by BARRY SIGALE

The president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) Thursday lashed out at the county police department, charging Sheriff Joseph Woods and other top officials with major harassment of association members and causing low morale within the department.

Sgt. John Flood, 30, of Wheeling, blasted Woods for tactics he said Woods used to intimidate members of the association and prospective members by threatening their jobs and future as policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood said that Woods would probably suspend him from the department and ultimately fire him. He said legal action could be taken if he was fired.

AT A PRESS conference in the Sherman House in Chicago, Flood said, "The morale of the Cook County Police Department, under Sheriff Joseph Woods' administration, has deteriorated to its lowest point since he took over office from now-Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie."

Flood, who heads the executive board of the CCPA, a 750-member group representing 14 municipalities in the county, said Woods has led a campaign to intimidate association members and has threatened them personally.

Four of the association's top officials have either been transferred or demoted since their involvement with the union, Flood said. Flood himself has been shifted, in two steps, from the Niles Division in northern Cook County to Homewood, which is in southern Cook County, 70 miles round trip from his home in Wheeling.

Flood said that recently Woods, John Kistner, police chief, and the three highest ranking members below the chief, have held meetings with all police officers on the department and made verbal threats to all of them.

"IN THOSE MEETINGS," Flood said, "Woods told the men that if they were members of the CCPA that he would take away their police powers."

"He told his men that he would make them guards in Cook County Jail, taking away their professional police positions if they were members of the CCPA."

"He also told his men, among other things, that they would no longer be sent or allowed to go to professional police schools if they were members of the CCPA."

"Implied in these statements," Flood said, "is that members of the association will be passed over when promotions are handed out and that men will be transferred at will, as part of these harassment techniques."

"CURRENTLY, THE evaluation system within the department is unfair for promotions. You have to have inter-departmental clout to advance."

"People are constantly getting transferred. All patrolmen in Cook County can't be sure from day to day what their next assignment will be. Transfers are fairly prevalent when people speak out."

Flood said he has borne the brunt of this alleged unfair treatment, being the leader of the association, which includes 80 per cent of the 250 policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood is a veteran of eleven years on the force, heading the detective division and serving as a sergeant for six years.

FLOOD WAS SHIFTED four months ago to the downtown office to perform clerical duties while earning his annual salary of $11,000 per year.

Tuesday he was again shifted to the Bedford Park substation in Homewood, an hour and a half from his Wheeling home, where he functions at a desk job.

Flood said Woods has called him on the carpet several times, threatening to have him indicted, taping all their conversations about the association and refusing to grant Flood a leave of absence so he could attend police administration classes at Harper College in Palatine.

"Anyone in our position who tries to seek recognition would be subjected to what we are being subjected to," Flood said.

"THIS IS NOT a unique thing. I am not a rebel like I have been called. Woods has used obscenities in our conversations and Kistner has slammed on the table. It is because of men like Sheriff Woods that there is so much turmoil in the public employee field."

In his statement, Flood said the association disagreed with policies and actions taken by Woods, including a standing order of "shoot to kill" at major civil disturbances and sending Cook County policemen out of the county to assist other municipalities with their problems, such as when Woods sent men to Gary during a civil disorder.

The association has sought to negotiate for its members regarding salaries, fringe benefits, and working conditions, but Flood said Woods and his administration have refused to negotiate in good faith relative to working conditions.

"WE HAVE a good relationship with the county board (of commissioners), who handle the economic end of it, including salaries and fringe benefits," Flood said, "but any discussions about job conditions must be done with the sheriff."

"Woods has denied to talk in good faith and has an overall anti-labor attitude. But we will continue to address ourselves to these problems as they arise. These conditions exist in every police department."

"There is practically no communication with the sheriff's department," Flood said.

Housing Violations Remain

by ALAN AKERSON

In spite of a plan for corrective action formulated late last winter, building code violations remain in many Strathmore subdivision homes in the Cook County portion of Buffalo Grove.

An investigation conducted jointly by the Better Government Association (BGA) and The Herald revealed that corrective measures in many of the homes whose owners reported violations have not been completed by Levitt and Sons, Inc., the subdivision's builder. Moreover, village authorities have failed to see to it that Levitt is doing the work.

In an interview Aug. 28 Village Pres. Donald Thompson, admitted the corrective work on more than 100 homes in which violations were reported, had not been completed. Thompson realized that the work was not being completed only after checking the village's files during the interview with Herald and BGA representatives.

THIS WEEK, David Ruley, the village's new full-time building commissioner, reported that approximately 250 homeowners had notified the village that code violations existed in their homes.

Ruley said that, of these, Levitt reported corrective work had been completed on about 140. He said however, that because of lack of time, village inspectors had not yet reinspected these homes. Ruley also said that corrective work on about 60 homes was not yet reported complete by the builder.

Corrective work on the remaining 50 has apparently been completed by Levitt, and the homes have been found to be violation-free upon reinspection by village inspectors.

A high-ranking official at Levitt's regional office said Thursday, "Work is being done on the homes, and it's just about complete. More than likely the work will be finished in another month or two. We're getting the work done, and we're more than living up to our obligation."

He added, "This thing has really been blown out of proportion."

Under a plan adopted by the village, each homeowner is required to notify the village that he suspects the existence of at least one code violation in his home. The village is then to reinspect the home and send a list of the necessary corrective work to Levitt. At the same time, the village establishes a file on the home.

Upon receipt of the information, Levitt is to send a letter to each homeowner notifying him that corrective work would start a few weeks after the date on Levitt's letter.

When Levitt completes the repairs on each home, it then notifies the village, which is supposed to reinspect the home.

IF THE HOME is found to be without violations, the village is to notify the homeowner by letter. If violations still exist, Levitt is to be notified by the village and perform the necessary additional work.

That was the plan as it was supposed to work.

However, Thompson admitted that corrective work by Levitt has been lagging, and village reinspections have also been behind schedule.

In the Aug. 28 interview with a BGA investigator, Thompson set Jan. 1, 1970, as the date when Levitt is to have completed all the necessary corrective work. "If all the work is not done by the first of the year, I will exercise all possible pressure on Levitt," Thompson said.

THOMPSON SAID that credit for first revealing the existence of the violations should go to the Strathmore Homeowners Association, (SHA) a civic group formed more than 1½ years ago. Thompson said it was "absolutely true" that if the SHA had not pointed out the existence of widespread violations in the homes, nothing would have been done.

It was the SHA that set up a committee to inspect 45 homes for possible code violations. The SHA then notified both the village and Levitt of the widespread violations in the homes.

In a Feb. 6 letter to Thompson and Arthur B. Ginghold, regional manager for Levitt, Stephen Havens, chairman of the SHA subcommittee on code enforcement, said, "As evidenced by the inspection of a sample of homes, serious code violations exist in virtually all of the homes in the subdivision."

After the existence of violations had been brought to light, the village asked its engineering firm to draw up specifications for what could be done to correct the violations. Because the houses were already completed, it would have been almost impossible to bring them into complete compliance with the code.

THOMPSON TOLD the BGA and the Herald that to attempt to bring the homes into complete compliance with the code would have been "ridiculous." He added, "It was too late; the boat had already been missed."

As a result, the village had its engineering firm, Robert E. Hattis, Inc., draw up a list of certain alternatives to the village's code. These alternatives, although they would not bring the homes into complete compliance with the village's building code, would make them as structurally sound as code compliance would have.

IN MAY the Herald revealed the existence of the widespread violations, as well as the village's plan to correct them.

As a result of that story, the village board passed a resolution in which it stated, "There had been no breakdown in the enforcement of the ordinances."

That resolution also outlined the rein-spection procedure and noted that "some of the reported violations are minor, none are inherently dangerous, and all that is possible is being done to correct those that exist and insure that they do not recur."

The resolution also said, "The cooperation of the builder involved (Levitt) has been extremely good."

Although the resolution passed unanimously, one trustee, Kenneth Felten, questioned a statement in the resolution that said none of the violations were inherently dangerous.

AT THE May 21 meeting when the resolution was passed, Merv Sisson, a representative of the village's engineering firm, noted that the violations he saw in Levitt's homes in the Cook County portion of the Strathmore subdivision were more concentrated than any he had seen before.

Later, at the June 9 village board meeting, the SHA, in a letter to the village board, commended the board on the action it was taking to strengthen its building department. The letter also said, "Contrary to statements by the village president, Mr. Donald Thompson, these problems (code violations) are serious in nature, and their occurrence in a large number of homes represents a breakdown in building code enforcement which must not be allowed to repeat itself."

The letter continued, "Fortunately, Levitt and Sons, Inc., has been cooperative in correcting code violations brought to its attention by individual homeowners."

Schaumburg village fathers are giving voters the responsibility Tuesday to fill a village board vacancy. The next regular village election isn't until April, 1971, and the board could have appointed a trustee for the interim.

Instead the village board decided the choice should belong to the voters and called the special election. Four distinct candidates stepped forth.

The candidates are offering voters a choice with meaning. Last spring residents weren't so fortunate. The three vacancies were filled by a three-man slate that ran unopposed, save for a last minute, ineffective write-in campaign.

THIS TIME it's different. Four men are running for one post.

The Herald hopes voters will participate in this important contest. The new trustee will have only one of six votes, but one vote can be critical. And as Schaumburg continues to become the hub of the northwest, individual members of the village board will continue to play vital parts.

The Herald staff interviewed each of the four candidates.

Martin Ryan impressed us as a one issue candidate overly concerned with water. Yes, Schaumburg should have more water wells, but the village realizes this. Ryan needs more background in government and its interrelationships before he can be considered as a serious candidate.

Oren Breda is also a one issue man concerned with public safety. He is a sincere candidate, but seems to lack the over all concept of community government. He would do well to familiarize himself with it by serving on auxiliary boards and commissions.

Raymond True is the bright star of this election. We agree with True that the village board needs minority representation. The Democrat, who is running as an independent, sees a win for himself as new hope for his party in Schaumburg Township. That's probably so, but True's lack of previous involvement in community affairs prevents us from endorsing him. He has a lot of good ideas to offer and we sincerely hope he becomes an active Schaumburg resident.

SIGWAL THORSEN is the Herald's choice. Of the four, he is best in tune with what's happening in Schaumburg. He has some solid ideas on transportation, youth and Schaumburg's development. He acknowledges that he is the establishment's candidate, having been endorsed by the village board and the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township. But he's also a maverick who puts aside the party label when he doesn't agree. We think Thorsen will bring independent, creative thinking to the village board, and we urge his election Tuesday.

Woods Denies All

Sheriff Joseph Woods yesterday flatly denied a list of harassment allegations made by the president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) saying that he has never threatened anyone.

In an afternoon press conference, Sgt. John Flood, president of CCPA, charged Woods with harassing and intimidating members of the association and causing deterioration of morale within the police department.

Woods said he didn't have time to study all the allegations made by Flood and added that any talk of suspending the 11-year veteran was premature. He said the department would look into civil service laws to determine if there are grounds for suspension.

WOODS CONFIRMED that a special investigator has been studying the activities of the CCPA in the past few months and that he has tape recordings of meetings between him and Flood. Woods said he did so because he wanted a clear understanding of the goals of the CCPA.

"I imagine Flood would like to be fired," Woods said, "What he really wants to be is a full-time union boss. When Police Chief John Kistner returns we will look further into this matter."

Woods stressed that since he has become sheriff the department has improved and the base pay scale for his men has risen from $490 a month to $726 a month.

Woods added that through an attempt to bolster and improve the functioning of the sheriff's department a number of policemen including members of the association have had to be transferred.

Flood Charges Woods With Harassment

by BARRY SIGALE

The president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) Thursday lashed out at the county police department, charging Sheriff Joseph Woods and other top officials with major harassment of association members and causing low morale within the department.

Sgt. John Flood, 30, of Wheeling, blasted Woods for tactics he said Woods used to intimidate members of the association and prospective members by threatening their jobs and future as policemen in the sheriff's department.

Huskies, Wildcats To Battle

by KEITH REINHARD

Shades of Oct. 18, 1968!

That was the last time Wheeling and Hersey met on a football battlefield.

It was just a junior varsity contest but the Hersey Huskies had a varsity caliber team with a varsity coaching staff and quite a bit of momentum behind them at the time. The Wheeling Wildcats bit the dust that fateful day 37-13.

NOW IT'S OCT. 3, 1969. Just about every one of the participants of that clash last year will be on common ground again tonight for a rematch — varsity style.

Admittedly the Huskies still have all that talent. And they have impetus again, with victories in both of their conference confrontations. But this time the Wildcats can counter Hersey's momentum by tossing some of their own into the bubbling cauldron of rivalry expected to overflow tonight. The game is at Wheeling; it's the Wildcat homecoming.

And the 'Cats too are unbeaten in a pair of circuit clashes this fall.

WHEELING HEAD coach Jack Liljeberg thinks it could turn into one whale of a barn burner: "This is one game the kids get up for without me doing a thing," he observed, adding, "And Hersey no doubt feels exactly the same way. A lot of players on each side know each other and they'll all be giving maximum performance hoping to outdo one another."

"We have to be the underdogs in this thing, too," he said. "Which is just one more reason why I know our kids will be trying extra hard for a win."

The hosts will enter the match this evening with a 1-1-1 slate over-all. After being shutout by Maine South in their conference opener, the Wildcats dusted off Elk Grove 22-15.

Last Friday then fended off a hosting Arlington aggregation for a 0-0 tie.

HERSEY IN THE MEANTIME has dumped Prospect and Elk Grove after dropping a non-loop tilt to St. Viator. It will be a different kind of homecoming for a great number of Huskie grid-ders who started their high schooling at Wheeling while Hersey was under construction. The 'Cats will be doing their best to make the welcoming as unpleasant as possible.

Train Riders Plan Car Pools

Cautious commuters in the Northwest suburbs are planning their car pools now in face of a nationwide railroad strike threatened for midnight tonight.

Spokesmen from both the Chicago North Western and the Milwaukee Road railroads said they will be out of operation if the strike occurs.

"But that's a big if," said Ashley Wilhite of the Milwaukee Road. "We seldom know anything definite until it occurs," he added of railroad strikes in general.

"It's hard to believe the strike will actually take place," Wilhite said. The strike would paralyze all rail service.

"YOUR GUESS is as good as mine," Frank Koval of Chicago North Western said Thursday when asked if the strike will take place.

"One thing in the offering is if President Nixon appoints a presidential act finding board. That will stop the strike for 60 days," he added.

President Nixon has until midnight tonight to appoint the board and head off the strike temporarily, Koval added.

The situation is in the President's hands, Wilhite agreed. He could offer no consolation to commuters should the strike occur. "We have to be prepared if transportation simply does not run. That is very hard to face," Wilhite added.

A primary concern of the railroads is that perishable goods get to a point where they can be protected while a strike is on, he said.

WILHITE COMPARED the situation

yesterday to water rising during a flood. "You can't stop it so you just watch it rise," he said.

The strike threat is being initiated by four shopcraft unions in pursuit of a 10 per cent pay increase.

Since regional, rather than nationwide, service would be halted, according to initial reports, there was doubt that President Nixon would intervene.

Later developments indicate that rail service would be hampered on a national level and a fine line now exists on which the president must make a decision.

The railroads threatened with the strike Saturday were the Santa Fe, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Erie Lackawanna, Southern, Baltimore and Ohio and Ches-

Flag Football Season To Begin

The first game of flag football played this season in the Prospect Heights Park District will be held between 10 a.m. and noon Saturday at the MacArthur Jr. High School athletic field in Prospect Heights.

Boys between the ages of 10 and 13 will participate. Coaching the 77 boys already registered will be John Brott, physical education instructor, and Dean Liffert. According to Ronald Greenberg, park director, interested parents are welcome to help coach the boys.

Eight teams will play a seven-game schedule. Trophies will be given to the winning teams at the end of the season.

Abortion Laws Are Called Repressive Trailer Law Is Pondered

"The liberalized abortion laws adopted by several states recently have not worked. The only successful method of dealing with the problem is to repeal all abortion laws in the United States," declared Mrs. S. M. Dart, a member of the Illinois Citizens for the Medical Control of Abortion (ICMCA).

Mrs. Dart spoke Wednesday at a meeting of the Far Acres chapter of Women's American Organization for Rehabilitation Through Training.

Mrs. Dart said that the "many difficulties" surrounding abortion in the United States are due to "highly repressive abortion laws."

"THE ABORTION laws in the United States are about as reactionary as in any country in the world," Mrs. Dart declared. "As a result, women have sought abortions by two methods, either they attempt to abort themselves or they allow incompetent persons to perform the operation for them. There are one million such illegal abortions in the United States each year."

"Several states have enacted legislation to allow abortion in the case of rape or incest, to preserve the physical or mental health of the mother or if there is a chance that the child will be deformed," she explained.

"However, in all of these states all cases must first be reviewed by a medical review board, which is a time-consuming task. In none of the states where these liberalized laws have been enacted has the number of abortions performed annually gone up. This demonstrates that these revised codes have not worked," Mrs. Dart said.

SHE STATED THAT the ICMCA feels that the only answer to the problem is the abolishment of all laws governing abortion in the United States. Ten states introduced legislation this year which would have provided for this, but all were defeated, according to Mrs. Dart.

She added that a bill to abolish abortion laws in Illinois will be introduced into the 1971 session of the state legislature.

Mrs. Dart said that in Illinois an abortion can be granted legally only if three physicians determine that the pregnant woman will die without the operation.

"I HONESTLY believe that if a man-to-man canvass of Illinois voters had been taken, the abortion laws would have been repealed in the last session of the legislature," she declared.

She said she feels the laws were not abolished because "not enough people wrote their legislators in support of their repeal."

"Legislators were frightened away from voting for repeal by pressure groups which favor the laws," declared Mrs.

Dart. "Repeal of abortion laws would not allow all people to perform an abortion. The repeal would simply make it a medical procedure, not a legal question."

Code Violations Still Exist

homes in the Cook County portion of the Strathmore subdivision were more concentrated than any he had seen before.

Later, at the June 9 village board meeting, the SHA, in a letter to the village board, commended the board on the action it was taking to strengthen its building department. The letter also said, "Contrary to statements by the village president, Mr. Donald Thompson, these problems (code violations) are serious in nature, and their occurrence in a large number of homes represents a breakdown in building code enforcement which must not be allowed to repeat itself."

The letter continued, "Fortunately, Levitt and Sons, Inc., has been cooperative in correcting code violations brought to its attention by individual homeowners."

Fire Prevention Week Near

Fire Prevention Week will be officially observed Oct. 5 to 11, in Elk Grove Village with activities beginning Sunday.

Fifth graders will receive free rides in a fire truck from 1 to 5 p.m.

To receive a ride, youngsters must have had their parents complete a home fire inspection blank distributed earlier by their teachers.

The inspection blanks, signed by parents, will be turned in at the fire station, 666 Landmeier Road, in return for a ticket to ride in the fire truck.

In addition, firemen will give a smoke mask and snorkel demonstration.

ALSO IN honor of fire prevention week, fire vehicles next Saturday will be driving through the streets of the village and shopping centers beginning at 11 a.m.

Articles written by members of the village fire prevention bureau will also appear in the Herald next week.

In conjunction with the week's activities, Village Pres. Jack Pahl has signed a proclamation officially designating the week as fire prevention week.

In the proclamation, Pahl said preventable fires have taken 12,000 lives during the past year and have caused nearly $2 billion in damage.

"Safety of life and property and conservation of natural resources are of primary importance to every citizen," said Pahl.

HE CALLED upon residents to initiate a year 'round campaign against the waste caused by preventable fires.

"I urge business and labor organizations as well as schools, civic groups, and public information agencies to cooperate in the observance of fire prevention week," Pahl said.

Fire Chief Allen Hulett said fire prevention week is annually observed during the week in which the great Chicago fire took place, Oct. 9, 1871.

It destroyed 17,430 buildings and resulted in the death of 250 persons.

Hulett said a little known fire in Peshigo, Wisc. at that same time also resulted in the death of 1,200 people and destruction of 1,220,000 acres of forest.

HULETT SAID it was not until 40 years later that President Woodrow Wilson issued the nation's first fire prevention proclamation.

President Warren C. Harding proclaimed fire prevention week 11 years later and since that time each year the week in which Oct. 9 falls has been known as fire prevention week.

Flood Hits Woods' Tactics

of the association, which includes 80 per cent of the 250 policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood is a veteran of eleven years on the force, heading the detective division and serving as a sergeant for six years.

FLOOD WAS SHIFTED four months ago to the downtown office to perform clerical duties while earning his annual salary of $11,000 per year.

Tuesday he was again shifted to the Bedford Park substation in Homewood, an hour and a half from his Wheeling home, where he functions at a desk job.

Flood said Woods has called him on the carpet several times, threatening to have him indicted, taping all their conversations about the association and refusing to grant Flood a leave of absence so he could attend police administration classes at Harper College in Palatine.

"Anyone in our position who tries to seek recognition would be subjected to what we are being subjected to," Flood said.

"THIS IS NOT a unique thing. I am not a rebel like I have been called. Woods has used obscenities in our conversations and Kistner has slammed on the table. It is because of men like Sheriff Woods that there is so much turmoil in the public employe field."

In his statement, Flood said the association disagreed with policies and actions taken by Woods, including a standing order of "shoot to kill" at major civil disturbances and sending Cook County policemen out of the county to assist other municipalities with their problems, such as when Woods sent men to Gary during a civil disorder.

The association has sought to negotiate for its members regarding salaries, fringe benefits, and working conditions, but Flood said Woods and his administration have refused to negotiate in good faith relative to working conditions.

"WE HAVE a good relationship with the county board (of commissioners), who handle the economic end of it, including salaries and fringe benefits," Flood said, "but any discussions about job conditions must be done with the sheriff."

"Woods has denied to talk in good faith and has an overall anti-labor attitude. But we will continue to address ourselves to these problems as they arise. These conditions exist in every police department."

"There is practically no communication with the sheriff's department," Flood said.

High-Rise Battle Brewing

Forces are gathering in Prospect Heights for a last stand against the Cook County Board to keep high-rise buildings from being built at Foundry and River roads in Prospect Heights.

Wednesday, the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals recommended rezoning to the county board of 5.2 acres of farm land at Foundry and River roads for an apartment and business complex.

The county board will vote on the rezoning request Monday. The meeting, which will be held in Room 112 of the County Building in Chicago at 10 a.m., will be open to the public. Residents will be allowed to testify at the board meeting by first making a written request to the Public Service Committee in the county building.

A GROUP OF homeowners living in the area of the controversial parcel of land will present petitions to the county board Monday protesting the rezoning.

A three-fourths majority vote by county board members will be needed to pass the rezoning. The high majority is required because two neighboring villages, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines, made a formal protest against the rezoning.

Four months ago, at the June hearing,

George Doetsch, owner of the 5.2 acres, The continuance will allow Bernstein enough time to submit a mandamus suit.

A MAJOR POINT in the Prospect Heights resident's protest is the limited capability of the Forest River Fire Department.

This factor caused 40 per cent of the firemen to threaten to resign at the time of the hearing, if the rezoning request was granted.

Spokesman for the firemen at the hearing was Trustee Leonard Felke. Upon learning of the zoning board's recommendation Wednesday, however, he refused to comment on the resignation plans.

According to Fire Chief Charles Nick, "Our two pumps can't handle a five-story building; we need at least a snorkel. We would also need another truck with an aerial ladder. Right now we have only maintenance expenses of the fire department, but money for new equipment comes out of funds received from the department's annual dance."

"We can't afford all of the new equipment we would need to fight a five-story fire," said Nick. "We are working from almost nothing in our budget now. The only apparent solution is to call in Mount Prospect or Des Plaines to fight the high-rise fires," said Nick.

The Parkview Homeowners Association with the help of the Northwest Suburban Homeowners Association, a group of nine Prospect Heights homeowners associations, is sending a barrage of letters and petitions to the county board protesting the rezoning.

The Parkview Homeowners Association conducted this weekend. According to Mrs. Holbach, the survey results will determine the actual amount each would have to pay. She said that if 160 homeowners agreed to the donation, the price per homeowner would be about $22.

"THE MONEY WILL be collected from the people and will be turned over to the village in the form of a special donation," Mrs. Holbach said.

The village board will then turn over the funds to the electrical contractor installing streetlights in the village.

Sixteen poles are to be installed in the subdivision. Homeowners prefer the concrete poles primarily for property value and esthetic reasons.

World Track Star To Address PTA

A current world track record holder will be the featured speaker Monday at the first PTA meeting of Eugene Field School, Wheeling. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. at the school.

Tom O'Hara, who holds the world record for running the indoor mile, will speak on "Desire and Motivation."

O'Hara is also the former U.S. record holder of the 1,500 meter run and was a member of the U.S. Olympic Track team in 1964.

A film broadcast on the "Wide World of Sports" television program featuring O'Hara will also be shown.

Students attending Field School and their parents are invited.

2 Residents Teaching At Country School

Two Wheeling residents are new teachers at the North Shore Country Day School in Winnetka.

Roger A. Shipley of 519 S. Milwaukee Rd. will teach shop and be technical director for dramatic productions at the private school. He is a graduate of Oberlin College.

Robert W. Murray of 16 E. Willow Rd. is the school business manager. A graduate of Milwaukee Teachers College, Murray received his masters degree from the University of Wisconsin.

He has served as principal of the Paris American Elementary School in France and of the Milwaukee-Downer Seminary.

Reports Ring Theft

Wheeling Police are investigating the disappearance of rings worth $1,400 from the Union Hotel.

The rings, belonging to Mrs. Victoria Less of 411 W. Willow, Rolling Meadows, were lost Tuesday night after Mrs. Less left them in a restroom at the hotel.

She described them as three rings, soldered together and set with 14 diamonds.

May Get Concrete Light Poles

A determined group of residents in the Ballantree subdivision in Buffalo Grove are probably going to get their concrete streetlight poles.

Plans had called for the installation of wooden poles in the area. But when residents heard of it, they told the village board they wanted concrete ones, instead.

After several weeks of negotiation among themselves and with the village board, residents this weekend will collect money from most of the Ballantree homeowners to pay the extra cost of the concrete poles.

Mrs. John Holbach of 412 Chatham Circle, said, "Monday night, if we have all the money, we'll turn it over to the village board." RECENTLY SIX of the residents in the area polled homeowners on whether they would be willing to donate money toward the extra cost of the concrete light poles.

The homeowners were told that about $35 would be needed from each of them. Total cost of the installation is expected to be about $3,560. The group was anticipating that at least 100 residents would have to agree to pay the extra cost if the plan were to be feasible.

In the survey, 103 homeowners agreed to donate the $35. Another 29 said they would agree if the price were lower. Another 22 said "no" to the donation.

A survey of the remaining homes will be

Camping season is coming to an end but Wheeling's village board is still pondering a recreational trailer ordinance.

The proposed ordinance, as drawn up by Village Planner Thompson Dyke following hearings by the zoning board of appeals, comes up for consideration at the village board Oct. 13.

The regulations, which will limit the sizes of camping trailers and boat trailers allowed in the village and set limits on trailers that may be placed in backyard if screened, are expected to be analyzed in depth at the upcoming meeting.

At the last meeting on the ordinance, discussion was delayed until Dyke could attend and answer residents' and trustees' questions.

THE OLD VILLAGE board room was packed with close to 100 people during public hearings on the ordinance.

Currently all trailers parked within the village are illegal regardless of whether they are stored in buildings or outside. That ordinance is not enforced, however. The proposed ordinance would make trailers and other recreational vehicles legal if they are stored in residential sections of the village only. The proposal also calls for the larger ones to be housed in buildings.

Firemen To Sponsor Fall Dance Saturday

Long Grove Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor its 40th annual fall dance tomorrow at the Long Grove fire station.

Dancing will begin at 9 p.m. Refreshments will be available.

Proceeds from the dance will be used for new equipment.

Tickets may be purchased from members of the department or at the door. Donation is $1.50.

Violations Not Fixed

by ALAN AKERSON

In spite of a plan for corrective action formulated late last winter, building code violations remain in many Strathmore subdivision homes in the Cook County portion of Buffalo Grove.

An investigation conducted jointly by the Better Government Association (BGA) and the Herald revealed that corrective measures in many of the homes whose owners reported violations have not been completed by Levitt and Sons, Inc., the subdivision's builder. Moreover, village authorities have failed to see to it that Levitt is doing the work.

In an interview Aug. 28 Village Pres. Donald Thompson, admitted the corrective work on more than 100 homes in which violations were reported, had not been completed. Thompson realized that the work was not being completed only after checking the village's files during the interview with Herald and BGA representatives.

THIS WEEK, David Ruley, the village's new full-time building commissioner, reported that approximately 250 homeowners had notified the village that code violations existed in their homes.

Ruley said that, of these, Levitt reported corrective work had been completed on about 140. He said however, that because of lack of time, village inspectors had not yet reinspected these homes. Ruley also said that corrective work on about 60 homes was not yet reported complete by the builder.

Corrective work on the remaining 50 has apparently been completed by Levitt, and the homes have been found to be violation-free upon reinspection by village inspectors.

A high-ranking official at Levitt's regional office said Thursday, "Work is being done on the homes, and it's just about complete. More than likely the work will be finished in another month or two. We're getting the work done, and we're more than living up to our obligation."

He added, "This thing has really been blown out of proportion."

Under a plan adopted by the village, each homeowner is required to notify the village that he suspects the existence of at least one code violation in his home. The village is then to reinspect the home and send a list of the necessary corrective work to Levitt. At the same time, the village establishes a file on the home.

Upon receipt of the information, Levitt is to send a letter to each homeowner notifying him that corrective work would start a few weeks after the date on Levitt's letter.

When Levitt completes the repairs on each home, it then notifies the village, which is supposed to reinspect the home.

IF THE HOME is found to be without violations, the village is to notify the homeowner by letter. If violations still exist, Levitt is to be notified by the village and perform the necessary additional work.

That was the plan as it was supposed to work.

However, Thompson admitted that corrective work by Levitt has been lagging, and village reinspections have also been behind schedule.

In the Aug. 28 interview with a BGA investigator, Thompson set Jan. 1, 1970, as the date when Levitt is to have completed all the necessary corrective work. "If all the work is not done by the first of the year, I will exercise all possible pressure on Levitt," Thompson said.

THOMPSON SAID that credit for first revealing the existence of the violations should go to the Strathmore Homeowners Association, (SHA) a civic group formed more than 1½ years ago. Thompson said it was "absolutely true" that if the SHA had not pointed out the existence of widespread violations in the homes, nothing would have been done.

It was the SHA that set up a committee to inspect 45 homes for possible code violations. The SHA then notified both the village and Levitt of the widespread violations in the homes.

In a Feb. 6 letter to Thompson and Arthur B. Gingham, regional manager for Levitt, Stephen Havens, chairman of the SHA subcommittee on code enforcement, said, "as evidenced by the inspection of a sample of homes, serious code violations exist in virtually all of the homes in the subdivision."

After the existence of violations had been brought to light, the village asked its engineering firm to draw up specifications for what could be done to correct the violations. Because the houses were already completed, it would have been almost impossible to bring them into complete compliance with the code.

THOMPSON TOLD the BGA and the Herald that to attempt to bring the homes into complete compliance with the code would have been "ridiculous." He added, "It was too late; the boat had already been missed."

As a result, the village had its engineering firm, Robert E. Hattis, Inc., draw up a list of certain alternatives to the village's code. These alternatives, although they would not bring the homes into complete compliance with the village's building code, would make them as structurally sound as code compliance would have.

IN MAY the Herald revealed the existence of the widespread violations, as well as the village's plan to correct them.

As a result of that story, the village board passed a resolution in which it stated, "There had been no breakdown in the enforcement of the ordinances."

That resolution also outlined the reinspection procedure and noted that "some of the reported violations are minor, none are inherently dangerous, and all that is possible is being done to correct those that exist and insure that they do not recur."

The resolution also said, "The cooperation of the builder involved (Levitt) has been extremely good."

Although the resolution passed unanimously, one trustee, Kenneth Felten, questioned a statement in the resolution that said none of the violations were inherently dangerous.

AT THE May 21 meeting when the resolution was passed, Merv Sisson, a representative of the village's engineering firm, noted that the violations he saw in Levitt's

Sgt. John Flood

Woods Denies All

Sheriff Joseph Woods yesterday flatly denied a list of harassment allegations made by the president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) saying that he has never threatened anyone.

In an afternoon press conference, Sgt. John Flood, president of CCPA, charged Woods with harassing and intimidating members of the association and causing deterioration of morale within the police department.

Woods said he didn't have time to study all the allegations made by Flood and added that any talk of suspending the 11-year veteran was premature. He said the department would look into civil service laws to determine if there are grounds for suspension.

WOODS CONFIRMED that a special investigator has been studying the activities of the CCPA in the past few months and that he has tape recordings of meetings between him and Flood. Woods said he did so because he wanted a clear understanding of the goals of the CCPA.

"I imagine Flood would like to be fired," Woods said. "What he really wants to be is a full-time union boss. When Police Chief John Kistner returns we will look further into this matter."

Woods stressed that since he has become sheriff the department has improved and the base pay scale for his men has risen from $490 a month to $726 a month.

Woods added that through an attempt to bolster and improve the functioning of the sheriff's department a number of policemen including members of the association have had to be transferred.

Flood Charges Woods With Harassment

by BARRY SIGALE

The president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) Thursday lashed out at the county police department, charging Sheriff Joseph Woods and other top officials with major harassment of association members and causing low morale within the department.

Sgt. John Flood, 30, of Wheeling, blasted Woods for tactics he said Woods used to intimidate members of the association and prospective members by threatening their jobs and future as policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood said that Woods would probably suspend him from the department and ultimately fire him. He said legal action could be taken if he was fired.

AT A PRESS conference in the Sherman House in Chicago, Flood said, "The morale of the Cook County Police Department, under Sheriff Joseph Woods' administration, has deteriorated to its lowest point since he took over office from now-Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie."

Flood, who heads the executive board of the CCPA, a 750-member group representing 14 municipalities in the county, said

Woods has led a campaign to intimidate association members and has threatened them personally.

Four of the association's top officials have either been transferred or demoted since their involvement with the union, Flood said. Flood himself has been shifted, in two steps, from the Niles Division in northern Cook County to Homewood, which is in southern Cook County, 70 miles round trip from his home in Wheeling.

Flood said that recently Woods, John Kistner, police chief, and the three highest ranking members below the chief, have held meetings with all police officers on the department and made verbal threats to all of them.

"IN THOSE MEETINGS," Flood said, "Woods told the men that if they were members of the CCPA that he would take away their police powers."

"He told his men that he would make them guards in Cook County Jail, taking away their professional police positions if they were members of the CCPA."

"He also told his men, among other things, that they would no longer be sent or allowed to go to professional police schools if they were members of the CCPA."

"Implied in these statements," Flood said, "is that members of the association will be passed over when promotions are handed out and that men will be transferred at will, as part of these harassment techniques."

"CURRENTLY, THE evaluation system within the department is unfair for promotions. You have to have inter-departmental clout to advance."

"People are constantly getting transferred. All patrolmen in Cook County can't be sure from day to day what their next assignment will be. Transfers are fairly prevalent when people speak out."

Flood said he has borne the brunt of this alleged unfair treatment, being the leader

Huskies, Wildcats To Battle

by KEITH REINHARD

Shades of Oct. 18, 1968! That was the last time Wheeling and Hersey met on a football battlefield.

It was just a junior varsity contest but the Hersey Huskies had a varsity caliber team with a varsity coaching staff and quite a bit of momentum behind them at the time. The Wheeling Wildcats bit the dust that fateful day 37-13.

NOW IT'S OCT. 3, 1969. Just about every one of the participants of that clash last year will be on common ground again tonight for a rematch — varsity style.

Admittedly the Huskies still have all that talent. And they have impetus again, with victories in both of their conference confrontations. But this time the Wildcats can counter Hersey's momentum by tossing some of their own into the bubbling cauldron of rivalry expected to overflow tonight. The game is at Wheeling; it's the Wildcat homecoming.

And the 'Cats too are unbeaten in a pair of circuit clashes this fall.

WHEELING HEAD coach Jack Liljeborg thinks it could turn into one whale of a barn burner. "This is one game the kids get up for without me doing a thing," he observed, adding, "And Hersey no doubt feels exactly the same way. A lot of players on each side know each other and they'll all be giving maximum performances hoping to outdo one another."

"We have to be the underdogs in this thing, too," he said, "Which is just one more reason why I know our kids will be trying extra hard for a win."

The hosts will enter the match this evening with a 1-1-1 slate over-all. After being shutout by Maine South in their conference opener, the Wildcats dusted off Elk Grove 22-15.

Last Friday then fended off a hosting Arlington aggregation for a 0-0 tie.

HERSEY IN THE MEANTIME has dumped Prospect and Elk Grove after dropping a non-loop tilt to St. Viator.

It will be a different kind of homecoming for a great number of Huskie grid-ers who started their high schooling at Wheeling while Hersey was under construction. The 'Cats will be doing their best to make the welcoming as unpleasant as possible.

Train Riders Plan Car Pools

Cautious commuters in the Northwest suburbs are planning their car pools now in face of a nationwide railroad strike threatened for midnight tonight.

Spokesmen from both the Chicago North Western and the Milwaukee Road railroads said they will be out of operation if the strike occurs.

"But that's a big if," said Ashley Wilhite of the Milwaukee Road. "We seldom know anything definite until it occurs," he added of railroad strikes in general.

"It's hard to believe the strike will actually take place," Wilhite said. The strike would paralyze all rail service.

"YOUR GUESS is as good as mine," Frank Koval of Chicago North Western said Thursday when asked if the strike would take place.

"One thing in the offering is if President Nixon appoints a presidential act finding board. That will stop the strike for 60 days," he added.

President Nixon has until midnight tonight to appoint the board and head off the strike temporarily, Koval added.

The situation is in the President's hands, Wilhite agreed. He could offer no consolation to commuters should the strike occur. "We have to be prepared if transportation simply does not run. That is very hard to face," Wilhite added.

A primary concern of the railroads is that perishable goods get to a point where they can be protected while a strike is on, he said.

WILHITE COMPARED the situation

yesterday to water rising during a flood. "You can't stop it so you just watch it rise," he said.

The strike threat is being initiated by four shopcraft unions in pursuit of a 10 per cent pay increase.

Since regional, rather than nationwide, service would be halted, according to initial reports, there was doubt that President Nixon would intervene.

Later developments indicate that rail service would be hampered on a national level and a fine line now exists on which the president must make a decision.

The railroads threatened with the strike Saturday were the Santa Fe, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Erie Lackawanna, Southern, Baltimore and Ohio and Ches-

Flag Football Season To Begin

The first game of flag football played this season in the Prospect Heights Park District will be held between 10 a.m. and noon Saturday at the MacArthur Jr. High School athletic field in Prospect Heights.

Boys between the ages of 10 and 13 will participate. Coaching the 77 boys already registered will be John Brot, physical education instructor, and Dean Littert.

According to Ronald Greenberg, park director, interested parents are welcome to help coach the boys.

Eight teams will play a seven-game schedule. Trophies will be given to the winning teams at the end of the season.

Abortion Laws Are Called Repressive

"The liberalized abortion laws adopted by several states recently have not worked. The only successful method of dealing with the problem is to repeal all abortion laws in the United States," declared Mrs. S. M. Dart, a member of the Illinois Citizens for the Medical Control of Abortion (ICMCA).

Mrs. Dart spoke Wednesday at a meeting of the Far Acres chapter of Women's American Organization for Rehabilitation Through Training.

Mrs. Dart said that the "many difficulties" surrounding abortion in the United States are due to "highly repressive abortion laws."

"THE ABORTION laws in the United States are about as reactionary as in any country in the world," Mrs. Dart declared.

"As a result, women have sought abortions by two methods, either they attempt to abort themselves or they allow incompetent persons to perform the operation for them. There are one million such illegal abortions in the United States each year."

"Several states have enacted legislation to allow abortion in the case of rape or incest, to preserve the physical or mental health of the mother or if there is a chance that the child will be deformed," she explained.

"However, in all of these states all cases must first be reviewed by a medical review board, which is a time-consuming task. In none of the states where these liberalized laws have been enacted has the number of abortions performed annually gone up. This demonstrates that these revised codes have not worked," Mrs. Dart said.

SHE STATED THAT the ICMCA feels that the only answer to the problem is the abolishment of all laws governing abortion in the United States. Ten states introduced legislation this year which would have provided for this, but all were defeated, according to Mrs. Dart.

She added that a bill to abolish abortion laws in Illinois will be introduced into the 1971 session of the state legislature.

Mrs. Dart said that in Illinois an abortion can be granted legally only if three physicians determine that the pregnant woman will die without the operation.

"I HONESTLY believe that if a man-tan canvass of Illinois voters had been taken, the abortion laws would have been repealed in the last session of the legislature," she declared.

She said she feels the laws were not abolished because "not enough people wrote their legislators in support of their repeal."

"Legislators were frightened away from voting for repeal by pressure groups which favor the laws," declared Mrs.

Dart.

"Repeal of abortion laws would not allow all people to perform an abortion. The repeal would simply make it a medical procedure, not a legal question."

Code Violations Still Exist

homes in the Cook County portion of the Strathmore subdivision were more concentrated than any he had seen before.

Later, at the June 9 village board meeting, the SHA, in a letter to the village board, commended the board on the action it was taking to strengthen its building department. The letter also said, "Contrary to statements by the village president, Mr. Donald Thompson, these problems (code violations) are serious in nature, and their occurrence in a large number of homes represents a breakdown in building code enforcement which must not be allowed to repeat itself."

The letter continued, "Fortunately, Levitt and Sons, Inc., has been cooperative in correcting code violations brought to its attention by individual homeowners."

Fire Prevention Week Near

Fire Prevention Week will be officially observed Oct. 5 to 11, in Elk Grove Village with activities beginning Sunday.

Fifth graders will receive free rides in a fire truck from 1 to 5 p.m.

To receive a ride, youngsters must have had their parents complete a home fire inspection blank distributed earlier by their teachers.

The inspection blanks, signed by parents, will be turned in at the fire station, 666 Landmeier Road, in return for a ticket to ride in the fire truck.

In addition, firemen will give a smoke mask and snorkel demonstration.

ALSO IN honor of fire prevention week, fire vehicles next Saturday will be driving through the streets of the village and shopping centers beginning at 11 a.m.

Articles written by members of the village fire prevention bureau will also appear in the Herald next week.

In conjunction with the week's activities, Village Pres. Jack Pahl has signed a proclamation officially designating the week as fire prevention week.

In the proclamation, Pahl said preventable fires have taken 12,000 lives during the past year and have caused nearly $2 billion in damage.

"Safety of life and property and conservation of natural resources are of primary importance to every citizen," said Pahl.

HE CALLED upon residents to initiate a year 'round campaign against the waste caused by preventable fires.

"I urge business and labor organizations as well as schools, civic groups, and public information agencies to cooperate in the observance of fire prevention week," Pahl said.

Fire Chief Allen Hulet said fire prevention week is annually observed during the week in which the great Chicago fire took place, Oct. 9, 1871.

It destroyed 17,430 buildings and resulted in the death of 250 persons.

Hulet said a little known fire in Peshigo, Wis. at that same time also resulted in the death of 1,200 people and destruction of 1,280,000 acres of forest.

HULETT SAID it was not until 40 years later that President Woodrow Wilson issued the nation's first fire prevention proclamation.

President Warren C. Harding proclaimed fire prevention week 11 years later and since that time each year the week in which Oct. 9 falls has been known as fire prevention week.

of the association, which includes 80 per cent of the 250 policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood is a veteran of eleven years on the force, heading the detective division and serving as a sergeant for six years.

FLOOD WAS SHIFTED four months ago to the downtown office to perform clerical duties while earning his annual salary of $11,000 per year.

Tuesday he was again shifted to the Bedford Park substation in Homewood, an hour and a half from his Wheeling home, where he functions at a desk job.

Flood said Woods has called him on the carpet several times, threatening to have him indicted, taping all their conversations about the association and refusing to grant Flood a leave of absence so he could attend police administration classes at Harper College in Palatine.

"Anyone in our position who tries to seek recognition would be subjected to what we are being subjected to," Flood said.

"THIS IS NOT a unique thing. I am not a rebel like I have been called. Woods has used obscenities in our conversations and Kistner has slammed on the table. It is because of men like Sheriff Woods that there is so much turmoil in the public employe field."

In his statement, Flood said the association disagreed with policies and actions taken by Woods, including a standing order of "shoot to kill" at major civil disturbances and sending Cook County policemen out of the county to assist other municipalities with their problems, such as when Woods sent men to Gary during a civil disorder.

The association has sought to negotiate for its members regarding salaries, fringe benefits, and working conditions, but Flood said Woods and his administration have refused to negotiate in good faith relative to working conditions.

"WE HAVE a good relationship with the county board (of commissioners), who handle the economic end of it, including salaries and fringe benefits," Flood said, "but any discussions about job conditions must be done with the sheriff."

"Woods has denied to talk in good faith and has an overall anti-labor attitude. But we will continue to address ourselves to these problems as they arise. These conditions exist in every police department."

"There is practically no communication with the sheriff's department," Flood said.

High-Rise Battle Brewing

Forces are gathering in Prospect Heights for a last stand against the Cook County Board to keep high-rise buildings from being built at Foundry and River roads in Prospect Heights.

Wednesday, the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals recommended rezoning to the county board of 5.2 acres of farm land at Foundry and River roads for an apartment and business complex.

The county board will vote on the rezoning request Monday. The meeting, which will be held in Room 122 of the County Building in Chicago at 10 a.m., will be open to the public. Residents will be allowed to testify at the board meeting by first making a written request to the Public Service Committee in the county building.

A GROUP OF homeowners living in the area of the controversial parcel of land will present petitions to the county board Monday protesting the rezoning.

A three-fourths majority vote by county board members will be needed to pass the rezoning. The high majority is required because two neighboring villages, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines, made a formal protest against the rezoning.

Four months ago, at the June hearing,

George Doetsch, owner of the 5.2 acres, petitioned the zoning board to rezone the land from single-family residences to general service with a special use request.

The rezoning would pave the way for construction of two five-story buildings containing apartments over stores, a professional building and a franchise operation on the corner.

Principal investors in the project are Paul Di Franco, a dentist, two other dentists and a physician. Arthur Hansen is the developer.

HOWARD BERNSTEIN, president of the Parkview Homeowners Association which encompasses the area up for rezoning, told the Herald yesterday that he has been advised that "the only way to fight the rezoning is to file a mandamus suit prohibiting issuance of a building permit."

"I have also been told by Charles Bonk, chairman of the public service committee and a member of the county board, that he will request the other board members to grant a two-week continuance to the case," said Bernstein.

If all of the board members agree to the continuance, they will wait two weeks after hearing the zoning board's recommendation before they make a final decision.

conducted this weekend. According to Mrs. Holbach, the survey results will determine the actual amount each would have to pay. She said that if 160 homeowners agreed to the donation, the price per homeowner would be about $22.

"THE MONEY WILL be collected from the people and will be turned over to the village in the form of a special donation," Mrs. Holbach said.

The village board will then turn over the funds to the electrical contractor installing streetlights in the village.

Sixteen poles are to be installed in the subdivision. Homeowners prefer the concrete poles primarily for property value and esthetic reasons.

World Track Star To Address PTA

A current world track record holder will be the featured speaker Monday at the first PTA meeting of Eugene Field School, Wheeling. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. at the school.

Tom O'Hara, who holds the world record for running the indoor mile, will speak on "Desire and Motivation."

O'Hara is also the former U.S. record holder of the 1,500 meter run and was a member of the U.S. Olympic Track team in 1964.

A film broadcast on the "Wide World of Sports" television program featuring O'Hara will also be shown.

Students attending Field School and their parents are invited.

2 Residents Teaching At Country School

Two Wheeling residents are new teachers at the North Shore Country Day School in Winnetka.

Roger A. Shipley of 519 S. Milwaukee Rd. will teach shop and be technical director for dramatic productions at the private school. He is a graduate of Oberlin College.

Robert W. Murray of 16 E. Willow Rd. is the school business manager. A graduate of Milwaukee Teachers College, Murray received his masters degree from the University of Wisconsin.

He has served as principal of the Paris American Elementary School in France and of the Milwaukee-Downer Seminary.

Reports Ring Theft

Wheeling Police are investigating the disappearance of rings worth $1,400 from the Union Hotel.

The rings, belonging to Mrs. Victoria Less of 411 W. Willow, Rolling Meadows, were lost Tuesday night after Mrs. Less left them in a restroom at the hotel.

She described them as three rings soldered together and set with 14 diamonds.

May Get Concrete Light Poles

A determined group of residents in the Ballantrae subdivision in Buffalo Grove are probably going to get their concrete streetlight poles.

Plans had called for the installation of wooden poles in the area. But when residents heard of it, they told the village board they wanted concrete ones, instead.

After several weeks of negotiation among themselves and with the village board, residents this weekend will collect money from most of the Ballantrae homeowners to pay the extra cost of the concrete poles.

Mrs. John Holbach of 412 Chatham Circle, said, "Monday night, if we have all the money, we'll turn it over to the village board."

RECENTLY SIX of the residents in the area polled homeowners on whether they would be willing to donate money toward the extra cost of the concrete light poles.

The homeowners were told that about $35 would be needed from each of them. Total cost of the installation is expected to be about $3,560. The group was anticipating that at least 100 residents would have to agree to pay the extra cost if the plan were to be feasible.

In the survey, 103 homeowners agreed to agree if the price were lower. Another 22 said "no" to the donation.

A survey of the remaining homes will be

Trailer Law Is Pondered

Camping season is coming to an end but Wheeling's village board is still pondering a recreational trailer ordinance.

The proposed ordinance, as drawn up by Village Planner Thompson Dyke following hearings by the zoning board of appeals, comes up for consideration at the village board Oct. 13.

The regulations, which will limit the sizes of camping trailers and boat trailers allowed in the village and set limits on trailers that may be placed in backyard if screened, are expected to be analyzed in depth at the upcoming meeting.

At the last meeting on the ordinance, discussion was delayed until Dyke could attend and answer residents' and trustees' questions.

THE OLD VILLAGE board room was packed with close to 100 people during public hearings on the ordinance.

Currently all trailers parked within the village are illegal regardless of whether they are stored in buildings or outside. That ordinance is not enforced, however. The proposed ordinance would make trailers and other recreational vehicles legal if they are stored in residential sections of the village only. The proposal also calls for the larger ones to be housed in buildings.

Firemen To Sponsor Fall Dance Saturday

Long Grove Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor its 40th annual fall dance tomorrow at the Long Grove fire station.

Dancing will begin at 9 p.m. Refreshments will be available.

Proceeds from the dance will be used for new equipment.

Tickets may be purchased from members of the department or at the door. Donation is $1.50.

Paddock Offers Insurance Plan

An accident insurance program is being developed and will be offered to readers of Paddock Publications' Herald and Register newspapers.

Wayne Tite, director of promotions for the newspaper, said the insurance program is the first in a series of announcements involving an extensive program of community services that will be made available to readers. He said an analysis of existing programs throughout the country is being conducted prior to development of a local community services program.

The Readers Accident Insurance Program is being developed in consultation with Washington National Insurance Co. of Evanston.

Violations Not Fixed

by ALAN AKERSON

In spite of a plan for corrective action formulated late last winter, building code violations remain in many Strathmore subdivision homes in the Cook County portion of Buffalo Grove.

An investigation conducted jointly by the Better Government Association (BGA) and the Herald revealed that corrective measures in many of the homes whose owners reported violations have not been completed by Levitt and Sons, Inc., the subdivision's builder. Moreover, village authorities have failed to see to it that Levitt is doing the work.

In an interview Aug. 28 Village Pres. Donald Thompson, admitted the corrective work on more than 100 homes in which violations were reported, had not been completed. Thompson realized that the work was not being completed only after checking the village's files during the interview with Herald and BGA representatives.

THIS WEEK, David Ruley, the village's new full-time building commissioner, reported that approximately 250 homeowners had notified the village that code violations existed in their homes.

Ruley said that, of these, Levitt reported corrective work had been completed on about 140. He said however, that because of lack of time, village inspectors had not yet reinspected these homes. Ruley also said that corrective work on about 60 homes was not yet reported complete by the builder.

Corrective work on the remaining 50 has apparently been completed by Levitt, and the homes have been found to be violation-free upon reinspection by village inspectors.

A high-ranking official at Levitt's regional office said Thursday, "Work is being done on the homes, and it's just about complete. More than likely the work will be finished in another month or two. We're getting the work done, and we're more than living up to our obligation."

He added, "This thing has really been blown out of proportion." Under a plan adopted by the village, each homeowner is required to notify the village that he suspects the existence of at least one code violation in his home. The village is then to reinspect the home and send a list of the necessary corrective work to Levitt. At the same time, the village establishes a file on the home.

Upon receipt of the information, Levitt is to send a letter to each homeowner notifying him that corrective work would start a few weeks after the date on Levitt's letter.

When Levitt completes the repairs on each home, it then notifies the village, which is supposed to reinspect the home.

IF THE HOME is found to be without violations, the village is to notify the homeowner by letter. If violations still exist, Levitt is to be notified by the village and perform the necessary additional work.

That was the plan as it was supposed to work.

However, Thompson admitted that corrective work by Levitt has been lagging, and village reinspections have also been behind schedule.

In the Aug. 28 interview with a BGA investigator, Thompson set Jan. 1, 1970, as the date when Levitt is to have completed all the necessary corrective work. "If all the work is not done by the first of the year, I will exercise all possible pressure on Levitt," Thompson said.

THOMPSON SAID that credit for first revealing the existence of the violations should go to the Strathmore Homeowners Association (SHA) a civic group formed more than 1½ years ago. Thompson said it was "absolutely true" that if the SHA had not pointed out the existence of widespread violations in the homes, nothing would have been done.

It was the SHA that set up a committee to inspect 45 homes for possible code violations. The SHA then notified both the village and Levitt of the widespread violations in the homes.

In a Feb. 6 letter to Thompson and Arthur B. Gingham, regional manager for Levitt, Stephen Havens, chairman of the SHA subcommittee on code enforcement, said, "as evidenced by the inspection of a sample of homes, serious code violations exist in virtually all of the homes in the subdivision."

After the existence of violations had been brought to light, the village asked its engineering firm to draw up specifications for what could be done to correct the violations. Because the houses were already completed, it would have been almost impossible to bring them into complete compliance with the code.

THOMPSON TOLD the BGA and the Herald that to attempt to bring the homes into complete compliance with the code would have been "ridiculous." He added, "It was too late; the boat had already been missed."

As a result, the village had its engineering firm, Robert E. Hattis, Inc., draw up a list of certain alternatives to the village's code. These alternatives, although they would not bring the homes into complete compliance with the village's building code, would make them as structurally sound as code compliance would have.

IN MAY the Herald revealed the existence of the widespread violations, as well as the village's plan to correct them.

As a result of that story, the village board passed a resolution in which it stated, "There had been no breakdown in the enforcement of the ordinances."

That resolution also outlined the reinspection procedure and noted that "some of the reported violations are minor, none are inherently dangerous, and all that is possible is being done to correct those that exist and insure that they do not recur."

The resolution also said, "The cooperation of the builder involved (Levitt) has been extremely good."

Although the resolution passed unanimously, one trustee, Kenneth Felten, questioned a statement in the resolution that said none of the violations were inherently dangerous.

AT THE May 21 meeting when the resolution was passed, Merv Sisson, a representative of the village's engineering firm, noted that the violations he saw in Levitt's

Woods Denies All

Sheriff Joseph Woods yesterday flatly denied a list of harassment allegations made by the president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) saying that he has never threatened anyone.

In an afternoon press conference, Sgt. John Flood, president of CCPA, charged Woods with harassing and intimidating members of the association and causing deterioration of morale within the police department.

Woods said he didn't have time to study all the allegations made by Flood and added that any talk of suspending the 11-year veteran was premature. He said the department would look into civil service laws to determine if there are grounds for suspension.

WOODS CONFIRMED that a special investigator has been studying the activities of the CCPA in the past few months and that he has tape recordings of meetings between him and Flood. Woods said he did so because he wanted a clear understanding of the goals of the CCPA.

"I imagine Flood would like to be fired," Woods said, "What he really wants to be is a full-time union boss. When Police Chief John Kistner returns we will look further into this matter."

Woods stressed that since he has become sheriff the department has improved and the base pay scale for his men has risen from $490 a month to $726 a month.

Woods added that through an attempt to bolster and improve the functioning of the sheriff's department a number of policemen including members of the association have had to be transferred.

Flood Charges Woods With Harassment

by BARRY SIGALE

The president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) Thursday lashed out at the county police department, charging Sheriff Joseph Woods and other top officials with major harassment of association members and causing low morale within the department.

Sgt. John Flood, 30, of Wheeling, blasted Woods for tactics he said Woods used to intimidate members of the association and prospective members by threatening their jobs and future as policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood said that Woods would probably suspend him from the department and ultimately fire him. He said legal action could be taken if he was fired.

AT A PRESS conference in the Sherman House in Chicago, Flood said, "The morale of the Cook County Police Department, under Sheriff Joseph Woods' administration, has deteriorated to its lowest point since he took over office from now-Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie."

Flood, who heads the executive board of the CCPA, a 750-member group representing 14 municipalities in the county, said

Woods has led a campaign to intimidate association members and has threatened them personally.

Four of the association's top officials have either been transferred or demoted since their involvement with the union, Flood said. Flood himself has been shifted, in two steps, from the Niles Division in northern Cook County to Homewood, which is in southern Cook County. 70 miles round trip from his home in Wheeling.

Flood said that recently Woods, John Kistner, police chief, and the three highest ranking members below the chief, have held meetings with all police officers on the department and made verbal threats to all of them.

"IN THOSE MEETINGS," Flood said, "Woods told the men that if they were members of the CCPA that he would take away their police powers."

"He told his men that he would make them guards in Cook County Jail, taking away their professional police positions if they were members of the CCPA."

"He also told his men, among other things, that they would no longer be sent or allowed to go to professional police schools if they were members of the CCPA."

"Implied in these statements," Flood said, "is that members of the association will be passed over when promotions are handed out and that men will be transferred at will, as part of these harassment techniques."

"CURRENTLY, THE evaluation system within the department is unfair for promotions. You have to have inter-departmental clout to advance."

"People are constantly getting transferred. All patrolmen in Cook County can't be sure from day to day what their next assignment will be. Transfers are fairly prevalent when people speak out."

Flood said he has borne the brunt of this alleged unfair treatment, being the leader

Huskies, Wildcats To Battle

by KEITH REINHARD

Shades of Oct. 18, 1968! That was the last time Wheeling and Hersey met on a football battlefield.

It was just a junior varsity contest but the Hersey Huskies had a varsity caliber team with a varsity coaching staff and quite a bit of momentum behind them at the time. The Wheeling Wildcats bit the dust that fateful day 37-13.

NOW IT'S OCT. 3, 1969. Just about every one of the participants of that clash last year will be on common ground again tonight for a rematch — varsity style.

Admittedly the Huskies still have all that talent. And they have impetus again, with victories in both of their conference confrontations. But this time the Wildcats can counter Hersey's momentum by tossing some of their own into the bubbling cauldron of rivalry expected to overflow tonight. The game is at Wheeling; it's the Wildcat homecoming.

And the 'Cats too are unbeaten in a pair of circuit clashes this fall.

WHEELING HEAD coach Jack Liljeberg thinks it could turn into one whale of a barn burner: "This is one game the kids get up for without me doing a thing," he observed, adding, "And Hersey no doubt feels exactly the same way. A lot of players on each side know each other and they'll all be giving maximum performance hoping to outdo one another."

"We have to be the underdogs in this thing, too," he said, "Which is just one more reason why I know our kids will be trying extra hard for a win."

The hosts will enter the match this evening with a 1-1-1 slate over-all. After being shutout by Maine South in their conference opener, the Wildcats dusted off Elk Grove 22-15.

Last Friday then fended off a hosting Arlington aggregation for a 0-0 tie.

HERSEY IN THE MEANTIME has dumped Prospect and Elk Grove after dropping a non-loop tilt to St. Viator.

It will be a different kind of homecoming for a great number of Huskie grid-ers who started their high schooling at Wheeling while Hersey was under construction. The 'Cats will be doing their best to make the welcoming as unpleasant as possible.

Train Riders Plan Car Pools

Cautious commuters in the Northwest suburbs are planning their car pools now in face of a nationwide railroad strike threatened for midnight tonight.

Spokesmen from both the Chicago North Western and the Milwaukee Road railroads said they will be out of operation if the strike occurs.

"But that's a big if," said Ashley Wilhite of the Milwaukee Road. "We seldom know anything definite until it occurs," he added of railroad strikes in general.

"It's hard to believe the strike will actually take place," Wilhite said. The strike would paralyze all rail service.

"YOUR GUESS is as good as mine," Frank Koval of Chicago North Western said Thursday when asked if the strike will take place.

"One thing in the offering is if President Nixon appoints a presidential act finding board. That will stop the strike for 60 days," he added.

President Nixon has until midnight tonight to appoint the board and head off the strike temporarily, Koval added.

The situation is in the President's hands, Wilhite agreed. He could offer no consolation to commuters should the strike occur. "We have to be prepared if transportation simply does not run. That is very hard to face," Wilhite added.

A primary concern of the railroads is that perishable goods get to a point where they can be protected while a strike is on, he said.

WILHITE COMPARED the situation

yesterday to water rising during a flood. "You can't stop it so you just watch it rise," he said.

The strike threat is being initiated by four shopcraft unions in pursuit of a 10 per cent pay increase.

Since regional, rather than nationwide, service would be halted, according to initial reports, there was doubt that President Nixon would intervene.

Later developments indicate that rail service would be hampered on a national level and a fine line now exists on which the president must make a decision.

The railroads threatened with the strike Saturday were the Santa Fe, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Erie Lackawanna, Southern, Baltimore and Ohio and Ches-

Flag Football Season To Begin

The first game of flag football played this season in the Prospect Heights Park District will be held between 10 a.m. and noon Saturday at the MacArthur Jr. High School athletic field in Prospect Heights.

Boys between the ages of 10 and 13 will participate. Coaching the 77 boys already registered will be John Brott, physical education instructor, and Dean Littert.

According to Ronald Greenberg, park director, interested parents are welcome to help coach the boys.

Eight teams will play a seven-game schedule. Trophies will be given to the winning teams at the end of the season.

Abortion Laws Are Called Repressive

"The liberalized abortion laws adopted by several states recently have not worked. The only successful method of dealing with the problem is to repeal all abortion laws in the United States," declared Mrs. S. M. Dart, a member of the Illinois Citizens for the Medical Control of Abortion (ICMCA).

Mrs. Dart spoke Wednesday at a meeting of the Far Acres chapter of Women's American Organization for Rehabilitation Through Training.

Mrs. Dart said that the "many difficulties" surrounding abortion in the United States are due to "highly repressive abortion laws."

"THE ABORTION laws in the United States are about as reactionary as in any country in the world," Mrs. Dart declared. "As a result, women have sought abortions by two methods, either they attempt to abort themselves or they allow incompetent persons to perform the operation for them. There are one million such illegal abortions in the United States each year."

"Several states have enacted legislation to allow abortion in the case of rape or incest, to preserve the physical or mental health of the mother or if there is a chance that the child will be deformed," she explained.

"However, in all of these states all cases must first be reviewed by a medical review board, which is a time-consuming task. In none of the states where these liberalized laws have been enacted has the number of abortions performed annually gone up. This demonstrates that these revised codes have not worked," Mrs. Dart said.

SHE STATED THAT the ICMCA feels that the only answer to the problem is the abolishment of all laws governing abortion in the United States. Ten states introduced legislation this year which would have provided for this, but all were defeated, according to Mrs. Dart.

She added that a bill to abolish abortion laws in Illinois will be introduced into the 1971 session of the state legislature.

Mrs. Dart said that in Illinois an abortion can be granted legally only if three physicians determine that the pregnant woman will die without the operation.

"I HONESTLY believe that if a man-to-man canvass of Illinois voters had been taken, the abortion laws would have been repealed in the last session of the legislature," she declared.

She said she feels the laws were not abolished because "not enough people wrote their legislators in support of their repeal."

"Legislators were frightened away from voting for repeal by pressure groups which favor the laws," declared Mrs.

homes in the Cook County portion of the Strathmore subdivision were more concentrated than any he had seen before.

Later, at the June 9 village board meeting, the SHA, in a letter to the village board, commended the board on the action it was taking to strengthen its building department. The letter also said, "Contrary to statements by the village president, Mr. Donald Thompson, these problems (code violations) are serious in nature, and their occurrence in a large number of homes

Dart.

"Repeal of abortion laws would not allow all people to perform an abortion. The repeal would simply make it a medical procedure, not a legal question."

represents a breakdown in building code enforcement which must not be allowed to repeat itself."

The letter continued, "Fortunately, Levitt and Sons, Inc., has been cooperative in correcting code violations brought to its attention by individual homeowners."

Fire Prevention Week Near

Fire Prevention Week will be officially observed Oct. 5 to 11, in Elk Grove Village with activities beginning Sunday.

Fifth graders will receive free rides in a fire truck from 1 to 5 p.m.

To receive a ride, youngsters must have had their parents complete a home fire inspection blank distributed earlier by their teachers.

The inspection blanks, signed by parents, will be turned in at the fire station, 666 Landmeier Road, in return for a ticket to ride in the fire truck.

In addition, firemen will give a smoke mask and snorkel demonstration.

ALSO IN honor of fire prevention week, fire vehicles next Saturday will be driving through the streets of the village and shopping centers beginning at 11 a.m.

Articles written by members of the village fire prevention bureau will also appear in the Herald next week.

In conjunction with the week's activities, Village Pres. Jack Pahl has signed a proclamation officially designating the week as fire prevention week.

In the proclamation, Pahl said preventable fires have taken 12,000 lives during the past year and have caused nearly $2 billion in damage.

"Safety of life and property and conservation of natural resources are of primary importance to every citizen," said Pahl.

HE CALLED upon residents to initiate a year 'round campaign against the waste caused by preventable fires.

"I urge business and labor organizations as well as schools, civic groups, and public information agencies to cooperate in the observance of fire prevention week," Pahl said.

Fire Chief Allen Hulett said fire prevention week is annually observed during the week in which the great Chicago fire took place, Oct. 9, 1871.

It destroyed 17,430 buildings and resulted in the death of 250 persons.

Hulett said a little known fire in Peshigo, Wis., at that same time also resulted in the death of 1,200 people and destruction of 1,280,000 acres of forest.

HULETT SAID it was not until 40 years later that President Woodrow Wilson issued the nation's first fire prevention proclamation.

President Warren C. Harding proclaimed fire prevention week 11 years later and since that time each year the week in which Oct. 9 falls has been known as fire prevention week.

Flood Hits Woods' Tactics

of the association, which includes 80 per cent of the 250 policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood is a veteran of eleven years on the force, heading the detective division and serving as a sergeant for six years.

FLOOD WAS SHIFTED four months ago to the downtown office to perform clerical duties while earning his annual salary of $11,000 per year.

Tuesday he was again shifted to the Bedford Park substation in Homewood, an hour and a half from his Wheeling home, where he functions at a desk job.

Flood said Woods has called him on the carpet several times, threatening to have him indicted, taping all their conversations about the association and refusing to grant Flood a leave of absence so he could attend police administration classes at Harper College in Palatine.

"Anyone in our position who tries to seek recognition would be subjected to what we are being subjected to," Flood said.

"THIS IS NOT a unique thing. I am not a rebel like I have been called. Woods has used obscenities in our conversations and Kistner has slammed on the table. It is because of men like Sheriff Woods that there is so much turmoil in the public employee field."

In his statement, Flood said the association disagreed with policies and actions taken by Woods, including a standing order of "shoot to kill" at major civil disturbances and sending Cook County policemen out of the county to assist other municipalities with their problems, such as when Woods sent men to Gary during a civil disorder.

The association has sought to negotiate for its members regarding salaries, fringe benefits, and working conditions, but Flood said Woods and his administration have refused to negotiate in good faith relative to working conditions.

"WE HAVE A good relationship with the county board (of commissioners), who handle the economic end of it, including salaries and fringe benefits," Flood said, "but any discussions about job conditions must be done with the sheriff."

"Woods has denied to talk in good faith and has an overall anti-labor attitude. But we will continue to address ourselves to these problems as they arise. These conditions exist in every police department."

"There is practically no communication with the sheriff's department," Flood said.

High-Rise Battle Brewing

Forces are gathering in Prospect Heights for a last stand against the Cook County Board to keep high-rise buildings from being built at Foundry and River roads in Prospect Heights.

Wednesday, the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals recommended rezoning to the county board of 5.2 acres of farm land at Foundry and River roads for an apartment and business complex.

The county board will vote on the rezoning request Monday. The meeting, which will be held in Room 1122 of the County Building in Chicago at 10 a.m., will be open to the public. Residents will be allowed to testify at the board meeting by first making a written request to the Public Service Committee in the county building.

A GROUP OF homeowners living in the area of the controversial parcel of land will present petitions to the county board Monday protesting the rezoning.

A three-fourths majority vote by county board members will be needed to pass the rezoning. The high majority is required because two neighboring villages, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines, made a formal protest against the rezoning.

Four months ago, at the June hearing,

George Doetsch, owner of the 5.2 acres, The continuance will allow Bernstein enough time to submit a mandamus suit.

A MAJOR POINT in the Prospect Heights resident's protest is the limited capability of the Forest River Fire Department.

This factor caused 40 per cent of the firemen to threaten to resign at the time of the hearing, if the rezoning request was granted.

Spokesman for the firemen at the hearing was Trustee Leonard Felke. Upon learning of the zoning board's recommendation Wednesday, however, he refused to comment on the resignation plans.

According to Fire Chief Charles Nick, "Our two pumps can't handle a five-story building; we need at least a snorkel. We would also need another truck with an aerial ladder. Right now we have only maintenance expenses of the fire department, but money for new equipment comes out of funds received from the department's annual dance."

"We can't afford all of the new equipment we would need to fight a five-story fire," said Nick. "We are working from almost nothing in our budget now. The only apparent solution is to call in Mount Prospect or Des Plaines to fight the high-rise fires," said Nick.

The Parkview Homeowners Association with the help of the Northwest Suburban Homeowners Association, a group of nine Prospect Heights homeowners associations, is sending a barrage of letters and petitions to the county board protesting the rezoning.

conducted this weekend. According to Mrs. Holbach, the survey results will determine the actual amount each would have to pay. She said that if 150 homeowners agreed to the donation, the price per homeowner would be about $22.

"THE MONEY WILL be collected from the people and will be turned over to the village in the form of a special donation," Mrs. Holbach said.

The village board will then turn over the funds to the electrical contractor installing streetlights in the village.

Sixteen poles are to be installed in the subdivision. Homeowners prefer the concrete poles primarily for property value and esthetic reasons.

Trailer Law Is Pondered

Camping season is coming to an end but Wheeling's village board is still pondering a recreational trailer ordinance.

The proposed ordinance, as drawn up by Village Planner Thompson Dyke following hearings by the zoning board of appeals, comes up for consideration at the village board Oct. 13.

The regulations, which will limit the sizes of camping trailers and boat trailers allowed in the village and set limits on trailers that may be placed in backyard if screened, are expected to be analyzed in depth at the upcoming meeting.

At the last meeting on the ordinance, discussion was delayed until Dyke could attend and answer residents' and trustees' questions.

THE OLD VILLAGE board room was packed with close to 100 people during public hearings on the ordinance.

Currently all trailers parked within the village are illegal regardless of whether they are stored in buildings or outside. That ordinance is not enforced, however. The proposed ordinance would make trailers and other recreational vehicles legal if they are stored in residential sections of the village only. The proposal also calls for the larger ones to be housed in buildings.

Firemen To Sponsor Fall Dance Saturday

Long Grove Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor its 40th annual fall dance tomorrow at the Long Grove fire station.

Dancing will begin at 9 p.m. Refreshments will be available.

Proceeds from the dance will be used for new equipment.

Tickets may be purchased from members of the department or at the door. Donation is $1.50.

Reports Ring Theft

Wheeling Police are investigating the disappearance of rings worth $1,400 from the Union Hotel.

The rings, belonging to Mrs. Victoria Less of 411 W. Willow, Rolling Meadows, were lost Tuesday night after Mrs. Less left them in a restroom at the hotel.

She described them as three rings soldered together and set with 14 diamonds.

May Get Concrete Light Poles

A determined group of residents in the Ballantrae subdivision in Buffalo Grove are probably going to get their concrete streetlight poles.

Plans had called for the installation of wooden poles in the area. But when residents heard of it, they told the village board they wanted concrete ones, instead.

After several weeks of negotiation among themselves and with the village board, residents this weekend will collect money from most of the Ballantrae homeowners to pay the extra cost of the concrete poles.

Mrs. John Holbach of 412 Chatham Circle, said, "Monday night, if we have all the money, we'll turn it over to the village board."

RECENTLY SIX of the residents in the area polled homeowners on whether they would be willing to donate money toward the extra cost of the concrete light poles.

The homeowners were told that about $35 would be needed from each of them. Total cost of the installation is expected to be about $3,500. The group was anticipating that at least 100 residents would have to agree to pay the extra cost if the plan were to be feasible.

In the survey, 103 homeowners agreed to donate the $35. Another 29 said they would agree if the price were lower. Another 22 said "no" to the donation.

A survey of the remaining homes will be

Paddock Offers Insurance Plan

An accident insurance program is being developed and will be offered to readers of Paddock Publications' Herald and Register newspapers.

Wayne Tite, director of promotions for the newspaper, said the insurance program is the first in a series of announcements involving an extensive program of community services that will be made available to readers. He said an analysis of existing programs throughout the country is being conducted prior to development of a local community services program.

The Readers Accident Insurance Program is being developed in consultation with Washington National Insurance Co. of Evanston.

Track Annex in Stretch

Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, Inc. (CTE), is leading in the homestretch in its attempt to get its annexation agreement with the Village of Arlington Heights approved.

Wednesday night, the plan commission voted 9-2 to recommend passage of the rezoning requested upon annexation to the village board.

The vote came at 11:45 p.m. and followed nearly three hours of questions, charges and exasperated sighs by various plan commissioners.

MRS. ALICE HARNIS, a commissioner, helped to begin things by saying, "Will the developer, at his own expense, submit a traffic study when he comes in with his planned development?"

Newton Mandell, of the Gulf and Western Land Development Corp., replied, "A traffic study takes a lot of time and work but this is the only way we're going to develop anything."

"We will do everything we can to provide a good traffic flow and our findings will be available to the plan commission," Gulf and Western is the parent company of CTE.

Harold Klingner, lawyer and BOLI member, told the commission, "The school district will be put to the expense of busing any children on this property to area schools."

THERE WAS NO reply to Klingner's charge until the superintendent of School Dist. 15, E.S. Castor, said, "There is no room in Rolling Meadows schools for the children at the race track property."

The current school building program does not make room for these added children and the result will be that these children will be bused over a 36-square-mile area.

"I hope you don't lose sight that these children must be educated, and, to be educated, they must have a school!"

Mandell, who has declined to dedicate land on the track site for a school, replied, "At some time, we will come before the plan commission and, having studied the school situation, we will provide a solution to it."

"IF A SCHOOL is needed, we will negotiate with the plan commission and the school district for what is best for all concerned."

When Klingner mentioned that Gulf and Western's sales were down, Mandell quickly said, "We are a publicly held corporation and G & W only holds 30 per cent."

"Philip J. Levin is our controlling stockholder and we will stand on our two feet, no matter what G & W does."

Jim Ryan, a commissioner, seemed annoyed at the commission's attempt to change the annexation agreement, and said, "Our job is not to try to rewrite this agreement."

John Langhenry, one of the newer commissioners answered, "We are just trying to question the contract."

Mrs. Harnis agreed and said, "I think every one of us has the responsibility to go before the village board Monday night and raise our questions and objections."

A MEMBER OF the audience asked the commission, "What is really behind the marriage of the racetrack and the village?"

Klingner asked Mandell to answer the question and the G & W representative said, "To set the record straight, the village came to us."

"There are a great many little advantages such as police and fire protection that will result in lower insurance rates. Sooner or later, one of the local villages would have annexed us and they may have been able to do it involuntarily."

"To put it bluntly, we would rather be annexed by Arlington Heights."

IT WAS ALREADY past 11:30 p.m. and before a motion could be made, Victor Beisler said, "It's a sad commentary that more people wouldn't take a few hours out to attend a meeting of this proportion."

Finally Russell Colvin made the long motion to approve the rezoning to B-3 general services district. He added that land should be donated for a school site as required and that the commission's recommendation does not reflect approval of any planned development at this time.

Beisler added an amendment that the petitioner should only receive the lower B-2 zoning and not the requested B-3. The amendment was defeated 7-4 and Colvin's motion was approved by everyone but Beisler and Langhenry.

The village board will have another meeting on the annexation agreement Oct. 6.

Uses Absentee Campaign

by MARTHA MOSER
and ED MURNANE

A massive absentee ballot campaign is being waged by 13th Congressional District candidate Philip M. Crane to insure that Crane supporters who will be out of the district next Tuesday are not disenfranchised.

Acting on a complaint of possible vote fraud, the Herald learned yesterday that 70 absentee ballots have been mailed to only four receiving addresses — all on the fringe of the district.

The four receiving addresses apparently were used to allow Crane voters to avoid a restriction imposed by Cook County Clerk Edward Barrett that absentee ballots must not be sent to Cook County addresses.

TWO OF THE ADDRESSES are in Lake Zurich in Lake County, one is in St. Charles in Kendall County and the fourth is in Glen Ellyn in DuPage County.

"It's unfortunate, but this is the only way it can be done," said Roland Franzen of Arlington Heights, a Crane campaign worker.

Franzen told Herald reporters Thursday night that Crane supporters who would be away from their voting district next Tuesday were urged to apply for absentee ballots and have them sent to a Lake Zurich address.

The voters then cast their ballots and returned them to Crane headquarters, which in turn delivered them to Barrett's office, Franzen said.

Other candidates contacted by the Herald agreed that Barrett does not send absentee ballots to Cook County addresses, but said they had not provided a central receiving address for absentee ballots. They questioned the wisdom of the practice.

BARRETT'S RULING apparently is meant to insure that persons requesting absentee ballots are indeed out of the district on election day. However, it does not make provision for voters who will be out of the district only on election day, and not at an out-of-town address when the ballots would be mailed.

Several of the homes to which ballots had been sent were reluctant to explain why or for which candidate they were serving as a clearing house.

Barrett told the Herald it is not unusual for persons to request absentee ballots mailed to an address other than their home as many are on vacation or traveling during an election. Clerks in the election office, when pulling files and matching addresses where ballots were being mailed, did express surprise at the limited number of receiving addresses.

Clerks said they had no guess if the number of absentee ballots for this election is larger than usual since they had no precedent for a special election during their terms of service.

A spokesman for Barrett said there is a legal check against any possible double voting and is handled by election judges. He said judges, either deliberately or innocently, could fail to go through this watchdog action.

"UNFORTUNATELY, judges sometimes don't read through the literature we send out," the spokesman said. "We're having difficulty getting election judges," he said of the 13th District race. We get one or two unexperienced ones and the others could run the show," he acknowledged.

Usual procedure is for both parties to provide two judges at each poll. It is up to the parties to staff the polls.

Barrett said absentee ballots returned to his office are sent with the voter's affidavit to their precinct during the election. When the polls close, absentee ballots are pulled from the envelopes and dropped in the ballot box. The name on the absentee ballot envelope is then checked against the binder used to note the voters that day. Sometimes these checks are "spot" or random sampling.

"Ordinarily, they would not catch this in a ballot canvass," he said, noting a canvass only catches numbers of votes cast.

Train Riders Plan Car Pools

Cautious commuters in the Northwest suburbs are planning their car pools now in face of a nationwide railroad strike threatened for midnight tonight.

GOP Is Planning Swing-Out Dance

Republicans in Palatine Township will have the opportunity to "swing out" tomorrow night at the Party's annual dinner dance.

Endorsed candidates of the local regular Republican Organization for Con-Con and the 13th Congressional District race have been invited and are expected to attend.

Called the "Love-in," the evening will begin with cocktails at 6:30 p.m. in the Roundtable Room of the Arlington Carousell. The Sue Burk Duo will entertain.

Dinner will be served at 8 p.m. followed by a program presented by the Sing-Out Palatine group.

Then, local Republicans will dance to the music of the Henderson Smith Orchestra.

Ticket chairman for the event is Herb Grassley who said reservations still are available.

Spokesmen from both the Chicago North Western and the Milwaukee Road railroads said they will be out of operation if the strike occurs.

"But that's a big if," said Ashley Wilhite of the Milwaukee Road. "We seldom know anything definite until it occurs," he added of railroad strikes in general.

"It's hard to believe the strike will actually take place," Wilhite said. The strike would paralyze all rail service.

"YOUR GUESS is as good as mine," Frank Koval of Chicago North Western said Thursday when asked if the strike will take place.

"One thing in the offering is if President Nixon appoints a presidential act finding board. That will stop the strike for 60 days," he added.

President Nixon has until midnight tonight to appoint the board and head off the strike temporarily, Koval added.

The situation is in the President's hands, Wilhite agreed. He could offer no consolation to commuters should the strike occur. "We have to be prepared if transportation simply does not run. That is very hard to face," Wilhite added.

A primary concern of the railroads is that perishable goods get to a point where they can be protected while a strike is on, he said.

WILHITE COMPARED the situation yesterday to water rising during a flood.

ACTING IS ONE of the aspects of theater production Conant High School students will study producing plays and shows. Claire Caprile, Bob Moses, Connie Davis and Pat Cassidy participated in the spring children's theater production "Cinderella" which drew a thousand school children to the Saturday presentation.

4 Productions Set

Students at Conant High School in Hoffman Estates have the opportunity to participate in four different types of theatrical presentations.

Under the guidance of its faculty adviser, Nancy Saggars, the Conant Drama Club will have eight productions this year. Its first presentation will be in experimental theater, which became a part of the club's activity last year.

"Inherit the Wind" is considered a reader's theater and will be produced Oct. 23 and 29 in the Conant cafeteria. "We try to expose students to different types of experimental drama," Miss Saggars said.

BESIDES experimental theater, the club participates in the all-school production of a musical. "The Music Man" will be a joint venture with the music department which will be produced Nov. 14, 15, 21 and 22.

In December the club will combine art with music to produce a dance-drama show. On Dec. 12 and 13 the Silhouettes, the Conant dance club and the drama club will use a theme of the mechanical age in combining the arts in expressive routines.

The fourth production series will be a children's theater production in February. "Last year we did 'Cinderella' and entertained about 1,000 school children in three Saturday productions," Miss Saggars said.

Children's and experimental theater productions are unusual in a high school program and Conant is one of the few high schools in the Chicago area to become involved in these areas of drama.

EXPANDING ITS activities this year, the drama club is planning a Christmas variety show for the Blackhawk Grade School and a Valentine's Day presentation for the Fairview PTA.

With 200 members, the school club has regular meetings to discuss current productions, techniques of makeup, set design and construction, publicity and box office operations. In the eight productions scheduled this year, students will have an opportunity to work with acting, singing, dance, makeup, writing, directing and technical aspects of producing a show.

The drama club officers who direct the club's activities are president, Pat Buchanot; vice president, Bonnie Houff; secretary, Terri Mikottis; and historian, Jay Cramer. Technical director for the club's productions is Jay Fox, Conant English teacher.

Church Choir To Cut Record

A stereo recording of the Easter cantata sung by the choir at the First Baptist Church of Palatine will be cut Sunday, Oct. 5, for a record album.

Theodore Dubois' "The Seven Last Words of Christ" will be recorded by five microphones. Soloists will be Mrs. Dorothy Lea, soprano, Fred Dennis, tenor, and Jack Abraham, baritone. Orville Bang is choir conductor, Mrs. Helen Borchers, organist, and Mrs. Anna Lee Reynolds, pianist.

Record Albums will be available to members and friends of the church who contact the church, 1023 E. Palatine Rd.

Speak Out

Democrats Weak?

(Suggestions and comments on local issues appearing every Friday in Speak Out are welcome and may be made by calling Marianne Bretsnyder at 394-2300.)

by MARIANNE BRETSNYDER

The Democratic organization in Palatine Township has been in the news lately, with announcement of a contest for township committee in next March's primary election.

Richard A. Mugalian of Palatine will be opposing incumbent committeeman Peter J. Gerling for the post. The election has been described as a battle for the Democratic leadership of Palatine Township, which focuses attention on the situation of the Democratic Party in this township.

Where the party stands now and where it will be in the future are some of the questions asked in this week's Speak Out.

"Certainly there is a point to the party. That is a part of the system of checks and balances," said Charles E. Skillman, 124 Pleasant Hill Blvd., Palatine.

"The two parties need to be balanced, we don't want all the Republicans out here and all the Democrats in the city," he said.

"They're relatively weak now, but they're making efforts to grow." There is a definite link with Chicago, and the party has to be affiliated with the city, he said.

"It may do them a degree of harm, but they have to be linked to others," Skillman said. It depends on what happens nationally if the party in Palatine Township will grow stronger, he continued.

"I think they have a chance to become stronger. They work harder and take it more seriously. They are good at getting out and hustling."

Skillman thinks the party is becoming more conservative. "They still talk liberal, but in many ways are becoming conservative, like in the South."

He said he had heard that the organization is working in the township to become stronger, "but they will have very little influence on the coming 13th District congressional race," he added.

A Rolling Meadows resident who didn't want to be identified said she didn't know too much about the party in this township, but is interested in it and wants to find out more.

She added it would be better for the township to have a strong Democratic Party. She was also interested in knowing how many people in this area would be concerned with the Democrats.

Palatine resident Frances Kelly, 353 S. Hale St., said he's a Republican, but he didn't think the Democrats were strong enough. He would rather see a stronger party in the township.

"On the surface, there's no apparent growth," he said. "However, it's much better to have a strong party. Two parties are needed in a democracy."

He said the party has to be affiliated with Chicago, but it would help to make it closer to Palatine Township.

"It is a fine organization, but they just don't have the people," he said. "People coming out from the city tend to be Republican, so this doesn't help the party."

With dedicated work, the party could become stronger, he said. Former committeeman Oliver C. Dilks worked carefully and cultivated the party, he said.

Dilks, he said, made a respectable showing for the party, but added that he doesn't know anyone now who has as much dedication.

"The trouble is, most of us have to earn a living, and don't have the time or energy to devote. What they need is someone who has nothing else to do but work for the party," Kelly said.

Wuerch Has Interests of People

For the present, the main interests of Merrill Wuerch, newly appointed alderman on the Rolling Meadows city council, are the interests of the people in his ward, and the betterment of the city.

Before becoming alderman, Wuerch served three years on the board of health, and part of that time as president of the board.

"I'm new on the issues, right now I'm listening," he said. He became interested in city government through the board of health, and then became active in other aspects.

"I am proud of Rolling Meadows as a city, and I would like to see more participation as far as the residents," he said.

WUERCH WANTS to hear from residents, and hopes they will express their views to him, "this is the way I can effectively operate as an alderman," he said.

"I want to know what they're thinking, as their representative I will take into consideration their feelings," he said.

He sees the job as "a challenge, it's quite a responsibility. My decisions will have an effect on a large number of people now and in the future," he said.

Wuerch said he feels very strongly about representing the people. As for his job as alderman, he said, "I'm going to love it. I enjoy being involved."

The newest member on the city council said "I can't sit at home with nothing to do. This way you become aware of the things around you," he said.

HE IS BECOMING AWARE of the way city government functions by visiting committee meetings, and acquainting himself with procedures.

"This is what I'm most impressed with. This is where solutions are found and the thrashing out is done in committee," he said.

"Anything before the council interests me," he said. "I haven't totally seen all the facets of city government yet," he added.

On the board of health, Wuerch said their job was making the public aware of health hazards. Improving conditions, the enforcement of ordinances and proposing new ordinances.

Wuerch applied for the job when a vacancy was left by James Watson. Watson left to take the job of city manager. The other alderman from the first ward is Thomas Scanlan.

WUERCH SAID HE AND Scanlan should be working together to achieve all that's possible. Of prime concern now in the ward is flooding. He said he is very interested in this and will do what he can to get the situation back to normal.

He encourages new industry in the city, and hopes more industry will come to Rolling Meadows. "However, I can't say I'm too enthused about apartment buildings," he said.

"I'll try to do the best job I possibly can," he said. His family is pleased about his job in the community.

"My children thought it was unusual, they are the only ones in their school with a father as an alderman," he said. He lives at 3203 W. Fremont St. with his wife Audrey and his two children, Scott and Laurie.

"We love it here. This is the best out of all the communities we've lived in," he said. Wuerch has lived in Janesville, Wis., and previous to that lived in Milwaukee.

He is employed by Western Electric, as supervisor of installation contract estimating.

Vote on Strike Accord

Ballots are in the mail to members of Teamsters Local 782, some of whom are entering their third day of a wildcat strike, for a vote on the proposed settlement between the union and the Chicago and Suburban Scavengers Association.

A representative of the Federal Mediation Service was a part of the negotiations in which the union asked for a $1 an hour increase over the present $3.36 per hour.

Lee Bowen, assistant director of the Federal Mediation Service, said the ballots will be tabulated Wednesday.

WILLIAM BUITEN of the scavengers' association said workers from only two firms in the 25-company association, were out on the unauthorized strike. These two include Laseke Disposal Co. which operates in Arlington Heights and Barrington Trucking Co. which picks up garbage in Rolling Meadows, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Mount Prospect and Palatine. In Elk Grove Village, only industries served by Barrington were affected.

"Everyone else is working," Buiten said.

No information about the proposed settlement will be released until it has been approved by union members.

John Baggot, spokesman for the union, was unavailable yesterday afternoon for comment on the reason for the wildcat strikes.

UNION MEMBERS had previously called a strike for Wednesday, the day their contract with the scavengers' association expired. However, a tentative agreement between the union and the association was supposed to prevent any stoppage of work.

Two Harper College representatives will be present at Mark Hopkins School, Elk Grove Village, Monday for adult counseling on college education, Mrs. Leah Cummins, community education director announced Thursday.

In searching for course ideas which would interest adults in the Mark Hopkins area for the lighted schoolhouse program, Mrs. Cummins said she found many people who indicated they would be interested in finishing their college education.

She arranged for the meeting with Harper representatives to outline possibilities existing to help adults finish their education.

Dave Groth, assistant to the dean of evening and continuing education, and Dr. Guerin Fisher, dean of guidance, will be present Monday night to discuss these possibilities with groups or individuals.

The meeting at 8 p.m. will be open to "adults particularly in Dist. 59, but we won't close the doors to others," Mrs. Cummins said.

The association disagreed with policies and actions taken by Woods, including a standing order of "shoot to kill" at major civil disturbances and sending Cook County policemen out of the county to assist other municipalities with their problems, such as when Woods sent men to Gary during a civil disorder.

The association has sought to negotiate for its members regarding salaries, fringe benefits, and working conditions, but Flood said Woods and his administration have refused to negotiate in good faith relative to working conditions.

"WE HAVE A good relationship with the county board (of commissioners), who handle the economic end of it, including salaries and fringe benefits," Flood said, "but any discussions about job conditions must be done with the sheriff."

"Woods has denied to talk in good faith and has an overall anti-labor attitude. But we will continue to address ourselves to these problems as they arise. These conditions exist in every police department."

"There is practically no communication with the sheriff's department," Flood said.

Flood is a veteran of eleven years on the force, heading the detective division and serving as a sergeant for six years.

FLOOD WAS SHIFTED four months ago to the downtown office to perform clerical duties while earning his annual salary of $11,000 per year.

Tuesday he was again shifted to the Bedford Park substation in Homewood, an hour and a half from his Wheeling home, where he functions at a desk job.

Flood said Woods has called him on the carpet several times, threatening to have him indicted, taping all their conversations about the association and refusing to grant Flood a leave of absence so he could attend police administration classes at Harper College in Palatine.

"Anyone in our position who tries to seek recognition would be subjected to what we are being subjected to," Flood said.

"THIS IS NOT a unique thing. I am not a rebel like I have been called. Woods has

About 600 Boy Scouts from Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows are expected to attend the annual fall camporee this weekend sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Council's Sauk Woods District.

The "Grab Bag Camporee" will be held at the council's Lakota Scout Reservation, eight miles northwest of Woodstock on U.S. Highway 14. The three-day outing will draw Scouts and about 150 adult leaders.

Joe Faloon, 2025 E. Eastman Court, Arlington Heights, is general chairman of the event.

EACH OF THE Northwest suburban district's 25 Scout troops will select a project or demonstration from a grab bag when

Consider Center Tot Lot

Rolling Meadows Park commissioners may consider the possibility of installing a tot lot playground in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center area.

The possibility was suggested by Commissioner Ronald Reese, who is also proprietor of the Ron-Mel Card Shop in the shopping center. During an informal session, Reese said a playground, designed for preschoolers, might help attract shoppers to the center.

"The kids would say, 'O.K. mom, let's get the car and go shopping,'" director Dean Hallerud said.

ALTHOUGH NO formal action has been considered, the board thought the idea should be brought before the public. To obtain civic opinion, they will enter a question on this topic in a survey to be conducted by the Rolling Meadows Jaycees.

The project would require a cooperative effort between the park district and the shopping center.

The new proposal may be faced with problems, however, as commissioners questioned, "Would patrons be willing to pay a token fee?" and "Would residents use it if it was unsupervised or would they only use a supervised area?"

Commissioners agreed that the proposed tot lot should be enclosed and separated from the center's traffic.

Discussion of the project will await the findings of the Jaycees' survey.

Uniforms to be sold should be delivered on a hanger, with the price and size marked. A self-addressed, stamped envelope should be pinned to the uniform.

When the uniform is sold, the money will be placed in an envelope and mailed.

"I THINK THIS method is a lot more convenient for people," Mrs. Hoffman said. She added anyone having a uniform to be sold should bring it over because more uniforms are needed.

Under the old system, a chairman would have the names of people who wanted to sell uniforms. Mrs. Hoffman said this wasn't very accurate, and they never knew for sure who had uniforms.

Used uniforms cost about half as much as new ones, she said. All types of scout uniforms will be sold.

The sale will last from noon to 4 p.m.

A current world track record holder will be the featured speaker Monday at the first PTA meeting of Eugene Field School, Wheeling. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. at the school.

Tom O'Hara, who holds the world record for running the indoor mile, will speak on "Desire and Motivation."

O'Hara is also the former U.S. record holder of the 1,500 meter run and was a member of the U.S. Olympic Track team in 1964.

A film broadcast on the "Wide World of Sports" television program featuring O'Hara will also be shown.

Urge Home Fire Prevention

During National Fire Prevention Week Oct. 5 through 11, Palatine residents are encouraged to carry out a home fire prevention inspection.

"With only one man in the fire department. I can't get around to homes for inspections," Orville Helms, Palatine Fire Chief, said Palatine has a 32-man volunteer fire department.

"I will be making inspections of the schools and have fire prevention literature to give primary elementary school kids next week."

The village board has budgeted salaries for two additional full-time men in the department, but the Fire and Police Commission has not yet filled the positions. One assistant will serve as drill master for the volunteer department and equipment engineer. The other will be responsible for fire prevention.

"WE HAD HOPED to have our new snorkel equipment here and have demonstrations for people during fire prevention week," Helms says. The equipment is scheduled to arrive anytime in the next two weeks.

In the literature children will take home, families are advised to set up a five-point escape plan. A floor plan of the home with doors, windows, stairways, and porches marked should be drawn up first.

Families should then find two ways to reach the ground from each room, particularly each bedroom. Windows which jam and porches and window sills which could be used as a jumping off point should also be discussed.

The third point emphasized in a family escape plan is the need to practice. Families should familiarize themselves with what to do if fire breaks out and should remember to move quickly. A closed door should be felt for heat before being opened. If it feels hot, do not open it.

ASSISTANCE FOR invalids, elderly and small children should also be worked out in advance. Specific directions as to who will help who is important in an emergency.

Finally, a family should select an assembly point outside the house where the family can regroup and be accounted for.

"I encourage people to stop and think about fire prevention during National Fire Prevention Week," Chief Helms says.

"Until we obtain the personnel to operate an effective program, the residents must do it themselves."

Each member of the family should know how to call the fire department. The department number, 358-2121, should be learned. A noisemaker kept in a well known place to warn persons in the house of an emergency is also suggested for a family fire prevention plan.

If fire does break out in your home, make sure all members of the family are out of the house and then call the fire department. Residents should not try to go back for possessions until help arrives.

Flood Charges Woods With Harassment

by BARRY SIGALE

The president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) Thursday lashed out at the county police department, charging Sheriff Joseph Woods and other top officials with major harassment of association members and causing low morale within the department.

Sgt. John Flood, 30, of Wheeling, blasted Woods for tactics he said Woods used to intimidate members of the association and prospective members by threatening their jobs and future as policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood said that Woods would probably suspend him from the department and ultimately fire him. He said legal action could be taken if he was fired.

AT A PRESS conference in the Sherman House in Chicago, Flood said, "The morale of the Cook County Police Department, under Sheriff Joseph Woods' administration, has deteriorated to its lowest point since he took over office from now-Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie."

Flood, who heads the executive board of the CCPA, a 750-member group representing 14 municipalities in the county, said

Woods has led a campaign to intimidate association members and has threatened them personally.

Four of the association's top officials have either been transferred or demoted since their involvement with the union, Flood said. Flood himself has been shifted, in two steps, from the Niles Division in northern Cook County to Homewood, which is in southern Cook County, 70 miles round trip from his home in Wheeling.

Flood said that recently Woods, John Kistner, police chief, and the three highest ranking members below the chief, have held meetings with all police officers on the department and made verbal threats to all of them.

"IN THOSE MEETINGS," Flood said, "Woods told the men that if they were members of the CCPA that he would take away their police powers."

"He told his men that he would make them guards in Cook County Jail, taking away their professional police positions if they were members of the CCPA."

"He also told his men, among other things, that they would no longer be sent or allowed to go to professional police schools if they were members of the CCPA.

"Implied in these statements," Flood said, "is that members of the association will be passed over when promotions are handed out and that men will be transferred at will, as part of these harassment techniques."

"CURRENTLY, THE evaluation system within the department is unfair for promotions. You have to have inter-departmental clout to advance."

"People are constantly getting transferred. All patrolmen in Cook County can't be sure from day to day what their next assignment will be. Transfers are fairly prevalent when people speak out."

Flood said he has borne the brunt of this alleged unfair treatment, being the leader of the association, which includes 80 per cent of the 250 policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood is a veteran of eleven years on the force, heading the detective division and serving as a sergeant for six years.

FLOOD WAS SHIFTED four months ago to the downtown office to perform clerical duties while earning his annual salary of $11,000 per year.

Tuesday he was again shifted to the Bedford Park substation in Homewood, an hour and a half from his Wheeling home, where he functions at a desk job.

Flood said Woods has called him on the carpet several times, threatening to have him indicted, taping all their conversations about the association and refusing to grant Flood a leave of absence so he could attend police administration classes at Harper College in Palatine.

"Anyone in our position who tries to seek recognition would be subjected to what we are being subjected to," Flood said.

Woods Denies All

Sheriff Joseph Woods yesterday flatly denied a list of harassment allegations made by the president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) saying that he has never threatened anyone.

In an afternoon press conference, Sgt. John Flood, president of CCPA, charged Woods with harassing and intimidating members of the association and causing deterioration of morale within the police department.

Woods said he didn't have time to study all the allegations made by Flood and added that any talk of suspending the 11-year veteran was premature. He said the department would look into civil service laws to determine if there are grounds for suspension.

WOODS CONFIRMED that a special investigator has been studying the activities of the CCPA in the past few months and that he has tape recordings of meetings between him and Flood. Woods said he did so because he wanted a clear understanding of the goals of the CCPA.

"I imagine Flood would like to be fired," Woods said. "What he really wants to be is a full-time union boss. When Police Chief John Kistner returns we will look further into this matter."

Woods stressed that since he has become sheriff the department has improved and the base pay scale for his men has risen from $490 a month to $726 a month.

Woods added that through an attempt to bolster and improve the functioning of the sheriff's department a number of policemen including members of the association have had to be transferred.

Device Is Exploded

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — The United States set off an underground nuclear device more powerful than a million tons of TNT yesterday on the Aleutian island of Amchitka.

The Atomic Energy Commission, which ignored last minute pleas to halt the explosion, said the blast went off at 6:06 p.m. EDT at the bottom of a 4,000-foot shaft.

Spy Helped Kill 30?

SAIGON—The alleged victim in the Green Beret murder case was thought to have given the North Vietnamese Army information that led directly to the deaths of at least 30 allied soldiers, 10 of them Americans, U.S. military sources said Thursday.

The sources said the slain troops were members of Special Forces-Green Berets patrols ambushed within minutes after landing by helicopter or parachuting in Communist territory.

Paddock Offers Insurance Plan

An accident insurance program is being developed and will be offered to readers of Paddock Publications' Herald and Register newspapers.

Wayne Tite, director of promotions for the newspaper, said the insurance program is the first in a series of announcements involving an extensive program of community services that will be made available to readers. He said an analysis of existing programs throughout the country is being conducted prior to development of a local community services program.

The Readers Accident Insurance Program is being developed in consultation with Washington National Insurance Co. of Evanston.

Track Annex in Stretch

Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, Inc. (CTE), is leading in the homestretch in its attempt to get its annexation agreement with the Village of Arlington Heights approved.

Wednesday night, the plan commission voted 9-2 to recommend passage of the rezoning requested upon annexation to the village board.

The vote came at 11:45 p.m. and followed nearly three hours of questions, charges and exasperated sighs by various plan commissioners.

MRS. ALICE HARMS, a commissioner, helped to begin things by saying, "Will the developer, at his own expense, submit a traffic study when he comes in with his planned development?"

Newton Mandell, of the Gulf and Western Land Development Corp., replied, "A traffic study takes a lot of time and work but this is the only way we're going to develop anything."

"We will do everything we can to provide a good traffic flow and our findings will be available to the plan commission," Gulf and Western is the parent company of CTE.

Harold Klingner, lawyer and BOLI member, told the commission, "The school district will be put to the expense of bus-ing any children on this property to area schools."

THERE WAS NO reply to Klingner's charge until the superintendent of School Dist. 15, E.S. Castor, said, "There is no room in Rolling Meadows schools for the children at the race track property."

The current school building program does not make room for these added children and the result will be that these children will be bused over a 36-square-mile area.

"I hope you don't lose sight that these children must be educated, and to be educated, they must have a school!"

Mandell, who has declined to dedicate land on the track site for a school, replied, "At some time, we will come before the plan commission and, having studied the school situation, we will provide a solution to it."

"IF A SCHOOL is needed, we will negotiate with the plan commission and the school district for what is best for all concerned."

When Klingner mentioned that Gulf and Western's sales were down, Mandell quickly said, "We are a publicly held corporation and G & W only holds 30 per cent."

"Philip J. Levin is our controlling stockholder and we will stand on our two feet, no matter what G & W does."

Jim Ryan, a commissioner, seemed annoyed at the commission's attempt to change the annexation agreement, and said, "Our job is not to try to rewrite this agreement."

John Langhenry, one of the newer commissioners answered, "We are just trying to question the contract."

Mrs. Harms agreed and said, "I think every one of us has the responsibility to go before the village board Monday night and raise our questions and objections."

A MEMBER OF the audience asked the commission, "What is really behind the marriage of the racetrack and the village?"

Klingner asked Mandell to answer the question and the G & W representative said, "To set the record straight, the village came to us."

"There are a great many little advantages such as police and fire protection that will result in lower insurance rates. Sooner or later, one of the local villages would have annexed us and they may have been able to do it involuntarily."

"To put it bluntly, we would rather be annexed by Arlington Heights."

IT WAS ALREADY past 11:30 p.m. and before a motion could be made, Victor Beisler said, "It's a sad commentary that more people wouldn't take a few hours out to attend a meeting of this proportion."

Finally Russell Colvin made the long motion to approve the rezoning to B-3 general services district. He added that land should be donated for a school site as required and that the commission's recommendation does not reflect approval of any planned development at this time.

Beisler added an amendment that the petitioner should only receive the lower B-2 zoning and not the requested B-3. The amendment was defeated 7-4 and Colvin's motion was approved by everyone but Beisler and Langhenry.

The village board will have another meeting on the annexation agreement Oct. 6.

ACTING IS ONE of the aspects of theater production. Conant High School students will study producing plays and shows. Claire Caprile, Bob Moses, Connie Davis and Pat Cassidy participated in the spring children's theater production "Cinderella" which drew a thousand school children to the Saturday presentation.

Uses Absentee Campaign

by MARTHA MOSER
and ED MURNANE

A massive absentee ballot campaign is being waged by 13th Congressional District candidate Philip M. Crane to insure that Crane supporters who will be out of the district next Tuesday are not disenfranchised.

Acting on a complaint of possible vote fraud, the Herald learned yesterday that 70 absentee ballots have been mailed to only four receiving addresses — all on the fringe of the district.

The four receiving addresses apparently were used to allow Crane voters to avoid a restriction imposed by Cook County Clerk Edward Barrett that absentee ballots must not be sent to Cook County addresses.

TWO OF THE ADDRESSES are in Lake Zurich in Lake County, one is in St. Charles in Kendall County and the fourth is in Glen Ellyn in DuPage County.

"It's unfortunate, but this is the only way it can be done," said Roland Franzen of Arlington Heights, a Crane campaign worker.

Franzen told Herald reporters Thursday night that Crane supporters who would be away from their voting district next Tuesday were urged to apply for absentee ballots and have them sent to a Lake Zurich address.

The voters then cast their ballots and returned them to Crane headquarters, which in turn delivered them to Barrett's office, Franzen said.

Other candidates contacted by the Herald agreed that Barrett does not send absentee ballots to Cook County addresses, but said they had not provided a central receiving address for absentee ballots. They questioned the wisdom of the practice.

BARRETT'S RULING apparently is meant to insure that persons requesting absentee ballots are indeed out of the district on election day. However, it does not make provision for voters who will be out of the district only on election day, and not at an out-of-town address when the ballots would be mailed.

Several of the homes to which ballots had been sent were reluctant to explain why or for which candidate they were serving as a clearing house.

Barrett told the Herald it is not unusual for persons to request absentee ballots mailed to an address other than their home as many are on vacation or travelling during an election. Clerks in the election office, when pulling files and matching addresses where ballots were being mailed, did express surprise at the limited number of receiving addresses.

Clerks said they had no guess if the number of absentee ballots for this election is larger than usual since they had no precedent for a special election during their terms of service.

A spokesman for Barrett said there is a legal check against any possible double voting and is handled by election judges. He said judges, either deliberately or innocently, could fail to go through this watchdog action.

"UNFORTUNATELY, judges sometimes don't read through the literature we send out," the spokesman said. "We're having difficulty getting election judges," he said of the 13th District race. We get one or two unexperienced ones and the others could run the show," he acknowledged.

Usual procedure is for both parties to provide two judges at each poll. It is up to the parties to staff the polls.

Barrett said absentee ballots returned to his office are sent with the voter's affidavit to their precinct during the election. When the polls close, absentee ballots are pulled from the envelopes and dropped in the ballot box. The name on the absentee ballot envelope is then checked against the binder used to note the voters that day. Sometimes these checks are "spot" or random sampling.

"Ordinarily, they would not catch this in a ballot canvass," he said, noting a canvass only catches numbers of votes cast.

Train Riders Plan Car Pools

Cautious commuters in the Northwest Western and the Milwaukee Road railroads said they will be out of operation if the strike occurs.

"But that's a big if," said Ashley White of the Milwaukee Road. "We seldom know anything definite until it occurs," he added of railroad strikes in general.

"It's hard to believe the strike will actually take place," White said. The strike would paralyze all rail service.

"YOUR GUESS is as good as mine," Frank Koval of Chicago North Western said Thursday when asked if the strike will take place.

"One thing in the offering is if President Nixon appoints a presidential aid finding board. That will stop the strike for 60 days," he added.

President Nixon has until midnight tonight to appoint the board and head off the strike temporarily, Koval added.

The situation is in the President's hands, White agreed. He could offer no consolation to commuters should the strike occur. "We have to be prepared if transportation simply does not run. That is very hard to face," White added.

A primary concern of the railroads is that perishable goods get to a point where they can be protected while a strike is on, he said.

4 Productions Set

Students at Conant High School in Hoffman Estates have the opportunity to participate in four different types of theatrical presentations.

Under the guidance of its faculty adviser, Nancy Saggars, the Conant Drama Club will have eight productions this year. Its first presentation will be in experimental theater, which became a part of the club's activity last year.

"Inherit the Wind" is considered a reader's theater and will be produced Oct. 28 and 29 in the Conant cafeteria. "We try to expose students to different types of experimental drama," Miss Saggars said.

BESIDES experimental theater, the club participates in the all-school production of a musical. "The Music Man" will be a joint venture with the music department which will be produced Nov. 14, 15, 21 and 22.

In December the club will combine art with music to produce a dance-drama show. On Dec. 12 and 13 the Silhouettes, the Conant dance club and the drama club will use a theme of the mechanical age in combining the arts in expressive routines.

The fourth production series will be a children's theater production in February. "Last year we did 'Cinderella' and entertained about 1,000 school children in three Saturday productions," Miss Saggars said.

Children's and experimental theater productions are unusual in a high school program and Conant is one of the few high schools in the Chicago area to become involved in these areas of drama.

EXPANDING ITS activities this year, the drama club is planning a Christmas variety show for the Blackhawk Grade School and a Valentine's Day presentation for the Fairview PTA.

With 200 members, the school club has regular meetings to discuss current productions, techniques of makeup, set design and construction, publicity and box office operations. In the eight productions scheduled this year, students will have an opportunity to work with acting, singing, dance, makeup, writing, directing and technical aspects of producing a show.

The drama club officers who direct the club's activities are president, Pat Buchenot; vice president, Bonnie Houff; secretary, Terri Mikottis, and historian, Sue Cramer. Technical director for the club's productions is Jay Fox, Conant English teacher.

Church Choir To Cut Record

A stereo recording of the Easter cantata sung by the choir at the First Baptist Church of Palatine will be cut Sunday, Oct. 5, for a record album.

Theodore Dubois' "The Seven Last Words of Christ" will be recorded by five microphones. Soloists will be Mrs. Dorothy Lea, soprano, Fred Dennis, tenor, and Jack Abraham, baritone. Orville Bang is choir conductor, Mrs. Helen Borchers, organist, and Mrs. Anna Lee Reynolds, pianist.

CHOIR MEMBERS include sopranos Virginia Allen, Velma Bird, Lillie Mae Causey, Claudie Crawford, Joy Green, Wilma McKown; Altoes, Wilma Bang, Dorothy Bennett, Pat Dennis, Eva Wasem; Tenors, Paul McKown, James Reynolds; bass, Stewart Bird, Sidney Bennett, Edwin Borchers.

Record Albums will be available to members and friends of the church who contact the church, 1023 E. Palatine Rd.

Speak Out

Democrats Weak?

(Suggestions and comments on local issues appearing every Friday in Speak Out are welcome and may be made by calling Marianne Bretsnyder at 391-2300.)

by MARIANNE BRETSNYDER

The Democratic organization in Palatine Township has been in the news lately, with announcement of a contest for township committeeman in next March's primary election.

Richard A. Mugalian of Palatine will be opposing incumbent committeeman Peter J. Gerling for the post. The election has been described as a battle for the Democratic leadership of Palatine Township, which focuses attention on the situation of the Democratic Party in this township.

Where the party stands now and where it will be in the future are some of the questions asked in this week's Speak Out.

"Certainly there is a point to the party. That is a part of the system of checks and balances," said Charles E. Skillman, 124 Pleasant Hill Blvd., Palatine.

"The two parties need to be balanced, we don't want all the Republicans out here and all the Democrats in the city," he said.

"They're relatively weak now, but they're making efforts to grow." There is a definite link with Chicago, and the party has to be affiliated with the city, he said.

"It may do them a degree of harm, but they have to be linked to others," Skillman said. It depends on what happens nationally if the party in Palatine Township will grow stronger, he continued.

"I think they have a chance to become stronger, they work harder and take it more seriously. They are good at getting out and hustling."

Skillman thinks the party is becoming more conservative. "They still talk liberal, but in many ways are becoming conservative, like in the South."

He said he had heard that the organization is working in the township to become stronger, "but they will have very little influence on the coming 13th District congressional race," he added.

A Rolling Meadows resident who didn't want to be identified said she didn't know too much about the party in this township, but is interested in it and wants to find out more.

She added it would be better for the township to have a strong Democratic Party. She was also interested in knowing how many people in this area would be concerned with the Democrats.

Palatine resident Frances Kelly, 353 S. Hale St., said he's a Republican, but he didn't think the Democrats were strong enough. He would rather see a stronger party in the township.

"On the surface, there's no apparent growth," he said. "However, it's much better to have a strong party. Two parties are needed in a democracy."

He said the party has to be affiliated with Chicago, but it would help make it closer to Palatine Township.

"It is a fine organization, but they just don't have the people," he said. "People coming out from the city tend to be Republican, so this doesn't help the party."

With dedicated work, the party could become stronger, he said. Former committeeman Oliver C. Dilks worked carefully and cultivated the party, he said.

Dilks, he said, made a respectable showing for the party, but added that he doesn't know anyone now who has as much dedication.

"The trouble is, most of us have to earn a living, and don't have the time or energy to devote. What they need is someone who has nothing else to do but work for the party," Kelly said.

Wuerch Has Interests of People

For the present, the main interests of Merrill Wuerch, newly appointed alderman on the Rolling Meadows city council, are the interests of the people in his ward, and the betterment of the city.

Before becoming alderman, Wuerch served three years on the board of health, and part of that time as president of the board.

"I'm new on the issues, right now I'm listening," he said. He became interested in city government through the board of health, and then became active in other aspects.

"I am proud of Rolling Meadows as a city, and I would like to see more participation as far as the residents," he said.

WUERCH WANTS TO hear from residents, and hopes they will express their views to him, "this is the way I can effectively operate as an alderman," he said.

"I want to know what they're thinking, as their representative I will take into consideration their feelings," he said.

He sees the job as "a challenge, it's quite a responsibility. My decisions will have an effect on a large number of people now and in the future," he said.

Wuerch said he feels very strongly about representing the people. As for his job as alderman, he said, "I'm going to love it. I enjoy being involved."

The newest member on the city council said "I can't sit at home with nothing to do. This way you become aware of the things around you," he said.

HE IS BECOMING AWARE of the way city government functions by visiting committee meetings, and acquainting himself with procedures.

"This is what I'm most impressed with. This is where solutions are found and the thrashing out is done in committee," he said.

"Anything before the council interests me," he said. "I haven't totally seen all the facets of city government yet," he added.

On the board of health, Wuerch said their job was making the public aware of health hazards. Improving conditions, the enforcement of ordinances and proposing new ordinances.

Wuerch applied for the job when a vacancy was left by James Watson. Watson left to take the job of city manager. The other alderman from the first ward is Thomas Scanlan.

WUERCH SAID HE AND Scanlan should be working together to achieve all that's possible. Of prime concern now in the ward is flooding. He said he is very interested in this and will do what he can to get the situation back to normal.

He encourages new industry in the city, and hopes more industry will come to Rolling Meadows. "However, I can't say I'm too enthused about apartment buildings," he said.

"I'll try to do the best job I possibly can," he said. His family is pleased about his job in the community.

"My children thought it was unusual, they are the only ones in their school with a father as an alderman," he said. He lives at 3203 W. Fremont St. with his wife Audrey and his two children, Scott and Laurie.

"We love it here. This is the best out of all the communities we've lived in," he said. Wuerch has lived in Janesville, Wis., and previous to that lived in Milwaukee.

He is employed by Western Electric, as supervisor of installation contract estimating.

Vote on Strike Accord

Ballots are in the mail to members of Teamsters Local 782, some of whom are entering their third day of a wildcat strike, for a vote on the proposed settlement between the union and the Chicago and Suburban Scavengers Association.

A representative of the Federal Mediation Service was a part of the negotiations in which the union asked for a $1 an hour increase over the present $3.86 per hour.

Lee Bowen, assistant director of the Federal Mediation Service, said the ballots will be tabulated Wednesday.

WILLIAM BUTTEN of the scavengers' association said workers from only two firms in the 25-company association, were out on the unauthorized strike. These two include Laseke Disposal Co. which operates in Arlington Heights and Barrington Trucking Co. which picks up garbage in Rolling Meadows, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Mount Prospect and Palatine. In Elk Grove Village, only industries served by Barrington were affected.

"Everyone else is working," Butten said.

No information about the proposed settlement will be released until it has been approved by union members.

John Baggot, spokesman for the union, was unavailable yesterday afternoon for comment on the reason for the wildcat strikes.

UNION MEMBERS had previously called a strike for Wednesday, the day their contract with the scavengers' association expired. However, a tentative agreement between the union and the association was supposed to prevent any stoppage of work.

Consider Center Tot Lot

Rolling Meadows Park commissioners may consider the possibility of installing a tot lot playground in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center area.

The possibility was suggested by Commissioner Ronald Reese, who is also proprietor of the Ron-Mel Card Shop in the shopping center. During an informal session, Reese said a playground, designed for preschoolers, might help attract shoppers to the center.

"The kids would say, 'O.K. mom, let's get the car and go shopping,'" director Dean Hallerud said.

ALTHOUGH NO formal action has been considered, the board thought the idea should be brought before the public. To obtain civic opinion, they will enter a question on this topic in a survey to be conducted by the Rolling Meadows Jaycees.

The project would require a cooperative effort between the park district and the shopping center.

The new proposal may be faced with problems, however, as commissioners questioned, "Would patrons be willing to pay a token fee?" and "Would residents use it if it was unsupervised or would they only use a supervised area?"

Commissioners agreed that the proposed tot lot should be enclosed and separated from the center's traffic.

Discussion of the project will await the findings of the Jaycees' survey.

Urge Home Fire Prevention

During National Fire Prevention Week Oct. 5 through 11, Palatine residents are encouraged to carry out a home fire prevention inspection.

"With only one man in the fire department, I can't get around to homes for inspections," Orville Helms, Palatine Fire Chief, said Palatine has a 32-man volunteer fire department.

"I will be making inspections of the schools and have fire prevention literature to give primary elementary school kids next week."

The village board has budgeted salaries for two additional full-time men in the department, but the Fire and Police Commission has not yet filled the positions. One assistant will serve as drill master for the volunteer department and equipment engineer. The other will be responsible for fire prevention.

"WE HAD HOPED to have our new snorkel equipment here and have demonstrations for people during fire prevention week," Helms says. The equipment is scheduled to arrive anytime in the next two weeks.

In the literature children will take home, families are advised to set up a five-point escape plan. A floor plan of the home with doors, windows, stairways, and porches marked should be drawn up first.

Families should then find two ways to reach the ground from each room, particularly each bedroom. Windows which jam and porches and window sills which could be used as a jumping off point should also be discussed.

The third point emphasized in a family escape plan is the need to practice. Families should familiarize themselves with what to do if fire breaks out and should remember to move quickly. A closed door should be felt for heat before being opened. If it feels hot, do not open it.

ASSISTANCE FOR invalids, elderly and small children should also be worked out in advance. Specific directions as to who will help who is important in an emergency.

Finally, a family should select an assembly point outside the house where the family can regroup and be accounted for.

"I encourage people to stop and think about fire prevention during National Fire Prevention Week," Chief Helms says. "Until we obtain the personnel to operate an effective program, the residents must do it themselves."

Each member of the family should know how to call the fire department. The department number, 358-2121, should be learned. A noisemaker kept in a well known place to warn persons in the house of an emergency is also suggested for a family fire prevention plan.

If fire does break out in your home, make sure all members of the family are out of the house and then call the fire department. Residents should not try to go back for possessions until help arrives.

Flood Charges Woods With Harassment

by BARRY SIGALE

The president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) Thursday lashed out at the county police department, charging Sheriff Joseph Woods and other top officials with major harassment of association members and causing low morale within the department.

Sgt. John Flood, 30, of Wheeling, blasted Woods for tactics he said Woods used to intimidate members of the association and prospective members by threatening their jobs and future as policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood said that Woods would probably suspend him from the department and ultimately fire him. He said legal action could be taken if he was fired.

AT A PRESS conference in the Sherman House in Chicago, Flood said, "The morale of the Cook County Police Department, under Sheriff Joseph Woods' administration, has deteriorated to its lowest point since he took over office from now-Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie."

Flood, who heads the executive board of the CCPA, a 750-member group representing 14 municipalities in the county, said

Woods has led a campaign to intimidate association members and has threatened them personally.

Four of the association's top officials have either been transferred or demoted since their involvement with the union, Flood said. Flood himself has been shifted, in two steps, from the Niles Division in northern Cook County to Homewood, which is in southern Cook County, 70 miles round trip from his home in Wheeling.

Flood said that recently Woods, John Kistner, police chief, and the three highest ranking members below the chief, have held meetings with all police officers on the department and made verbal threats to all of them.

"IN THOSE MEETINGS," Flood said, "Woods told the men that if they were members of the CCPA that he would take away their police powers."

"He told his men that he would make them guards in Cook County Jail, taking away their professional police positions if they were members of the CCPA."

"He also told his men, among other things, that they would no longer be sent or allowed to go to professional police schools if they were members of the CCPA."

"Implied in these statements," Flood said, "is that members of the association will be passed over when promotions are handed out and that men will be transferred at will, as part of these harassment techniques."

"CURRENTLY, THE evaluation system within the department is unfair for promotions. You have to have inter-departmental clout to advance."

"People are constantly getting transferred. All patrolmen in Cook County can't be sure from day to day what their next assignment will be. Transfers are fairly prevalent when people speak out."

Flood said he has borne the brunt of this alleged unfair treatment, being the leader of the association, which includes 80 per cent of the 250 policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood is a veteran of eleven years on the force, heading the detective division and serving as a sergeant for six years.

FLOOD WAS SHIFTED four months ago to the downtown office to perform clerical duties while earning his annual salary of $11,000 per year.

Tuesday he was again shifted to the Bedford Park substation in Homewood, an hour and a half from his Wheeling home, where he functions at a desk job.

Flood said Woods has called him on the carpet several times, threatening to have him indicted, taping all their conversations about the association and refusing to grant Flood a leave of absence so he could attend police administration classes at Harper College in Palatine.

"Anyone in our position who tries to seek recognition would be subjected to what we are being subjected to," Flood said.

"THIS IS NOT a unique thing. I am not a rebel like I have been called. Woods has used obscenities in our conversations and Kistner has slammed on the table. It is because of men like Sheriff Woods that there is so much turmoil in the public employee field."

In his statement, Flood said the association disagreed with policies and actions taken by Woods, including a standing order of "shoot to kill" at major civil disturbances and sending Cook County policemen out of the county to assist other municipalities with their problems, such as when Woods sent men to Gary during a civil disorder.

The association has sought to negotiate for its members regarding salaries, fringe benefits, and working conditions, but Flood said Woods and his administration have refused to negotiate in good faith relative to working conditions.

"WE HAVE A good relationship with the county board (of commissioners), who handle the economic end of it, including salaries and fringe benefits," Flood said, "but any discussions about job conditions must be done with the sheriff."

"Woods has denied to talk in good faith and has an overall anti-labor attitude. But we will continue to address ourselves to these problems as they arise. These conditions exist in every police department."

"There is practically no communication with the sheriff's department," Flood said.

'Grab Bag Camporee' Set

About 600 Boy Scouts from Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows are expected to attend the annual fall camporee this weekend sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Council's Sauk Woods District.

The "Grab Bag Camporee" will be held at the council's Lakota Scout Reservation, eight miles northwest of Woodstock on U.S. Highway 14. The three-day outing will draw Scouts and about 150 adult leaders.

Joe Faloon, 2025 E. Eastman Court, Arlington Heights, is general chairman of the event.

EACH OF THE Northwest suburban district's 25 Scout troops will select a project or demonstration from a grab bag when they arrive at the reservation Friday night, Faloon said. After preparation and rehearsal, the troops will exhibit or demonstrate their assigned events to the entire Scout group.

Each of the projects in the grab bag will be centered around a scouting skill, including first aid, signaling, cooking, hiking and map reading. The boys' performances will be judged on the basis of competence, showmanship, neatness and originality.

Assisting Faloon in the planning of the outing is James Lindsey, who is in charge of registration, and the district commissioner's staff headed by John Southard.

Explorer Scouts from Post 56 in Arlington Heights will assist the adult leaders.

Garage Sale To Be Oct. 11 For Uniforms

A new way to sell used girl scout uniforms is in effect in Rolling Meadows.

On Oct. 11, a garage sale will be held at the home of Mrs. Barbara Hoffman, 3105 Dove Court.

Uniforms to be sold should be delivered on a hanger, with the price and size marked. A self-addressed, stamped envelope should be pinned to the uniform.

When the uniform is sold, the money will be placed in an envelope and mailed.

"I THINK THIS method is a lot more convenient for people," Mrs. Hoffman said. She added anyone having a uniform to be sold should bring it over because more uniforms are needed.

Under the old system, a chairman would have the names of people who wanted to sell uniforms. Mrs. Hoffman said this wasn't very accurate, and they never knew for sure who had uniforms.

Used uniforms cost about half as much as new ones, she said. All types of scout uniforms will be sold.

The sale will last from noon to 4 p.m.

World Track Star To Address PTA

A current world track record holder will be the featured speaker Monday at the first PTA meeting of Eugene Field School, Wheeling. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. at the school.

Tom O'Hara, who holds the world record for running the indoor mile, will speak on "Desire and Motivation."

O'Hara is also the former U.S. record holder of the 1,500 meter run and was a member of the U.S. Olympic Track team in 1964.

A film broadcast on the "Wide World of Sports" television program featuring O'Hara will also be shown.

Students attending Field School and their parents are invited.

Firemen To Sponsor Fall Dance Saturday

Long Grove Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor its 40th annual fall dance tomorrow at the Long Grove fire station.

Dancing will begin at 9 p.m. Refreshments will be available.

Proceeds from the dance will be used for new equipment.

Tickets may be purchased from members of the department or at the door. Donation is $1.50.

Woods Denies All

Sheriff Joseph Woods yesterday flatly denied a list of harassment allegations made by the president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) saying that he has never threatened anyone.

In an afternoon press conference, Sgt. John Flood, president of CCPA, charged Woods with harassing and intimidating members of the association and causing deterioration of morale within the police department.

Woods said he didn't have time to study all the allegations made by Flood and added that any talk of suspending the 11-year veteran was premature. He said the department would look into civil service laws to determine if there are grounds for suspension.

WOODS CONFIRMED that a special investigator has been studying the activities of the CCPA in the past few months and that he has tape recordings of meetings between him and Flood. Woods said he did so because he wanted a clear understanding of the goals of the CCPA.

"I imagine Flood would like to be fired," Woods said. "What he really wants to be is a full-time union boss. When Police Chief John Kistner returns we will look further into this matter."

Woods stressed that since he has become sheriff the department has improved and the base pay scale for his men has risen from $490 a month to $728 a month.

Woods added that through an attempt to bolster and improve the functioning of the sheriff's department a number of policemen including members of the association have had to be transferred.

Device Is Exploded

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — The United States set off an underground nuclear device more powerful than a million tons of TNT yesterday on the Aleutian island of Amchitka.

The Atomic Energy Commission, which ignored last minute pleas to halt the explosion, said the blast went off at 6:06 p.m. EDT at the bottom of a 4,000-shaft.

Spy Helped Kill 30?

SAIGON—The alleged victim in the Green Beret murder case was thought to have given the North Vietnamese Army information that led directly to the deaths of at least 30 allied soldiers, 10 of them Americans, U.S. military sources said Thursday.

The sources said the slain troops were members of Special Forces-Green Beret patrols ambushed within minutes after landing by helicopter or parachuting in Communist territory.

Paddock Offers Insurance Plan

An accident insurance program is being developed and will be offered to readers of Paddock Publications' Herald and Register newspapers.

Wayne Tite, director of promotions for the newspaper, said the insurance program is the first in a series of announcements involving an extensive program of community services that will be made available to readers. He said an analysis of existing programs throughout the country is being conducted prior to development of a local community services program.

The Readers Accident Insurance Program is being developed in consultation with Washington National Insurance Co. of Evanston.

Flood Charges Woods

by BARRY SIGALE

The president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) Thursday lashed out at the county police department, charging Sheriff Joseph Woods and other top officials with major harassment of association members and causing low morale within the department.

Sgt. John Flood, 30, of Wheeling, blasted Woods for tactics he said Woods used to intimidate members of the association and prospective members by threatening their jobs and future as policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood said that Woods would probably suspend him from the department and ultimately fire him. He said legal action could be taken if he was fired.

AT A PRESS conference in the Sherman House in Chicago, Flood said, "The morale of the Cook County Police Department, under Sheriff Joseph Woods' administration, has deteriorated to its lowest point since he took over office from now-Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie."

Flood, who heads the executive board of the CCPA, a 750-member group representing 14 municipalities in the county, said Woods has led a campaign to intimidate association members and has threatened them personally.

Four of the association's top officials have either been transferred or demoted since their involvement with the union, Flood said. Flood himself has been shifted, in two steps, from the Niles Division in northern Cook County to Homewood, which is in southern Cook County, 70 miles round trip from his home in Wheeling.

Flood said that recently Woods, John Kistner, police chief, and the three highest ranking members below the chief, have held meetings with all police officers on the department and made verbal threats to all of them.

"IN THOSE MEETINGS," Flood said, "Woods told the men that if they were members of the CCPA that he would take away their police powers."

"He told his men that he would make them guards in Cook County Jail, taking away their professional police positions if they were members of the CCPA."

"He also told his men, among other things, that they would no longer be sent or allowed to go to professional police schools if they were members of the CCPA."

"Implied in these statements," Flood said, "is that members of the association will be passed over when promotions are handed out and that men will be transferred at will, as part of these harassment techniques."

"CURRENTLY, THE evaluation system within the department is unfair for promotions. You have to have inter-departmental clout to advance."

"People are constantly getting transferred. All patrolmen in Cook County can't be sure from day to day what their next assignment will be. Transfers are fairly prevalent when people speak out."

Flood said he has borne the brunt of this alleged unfair treatment, being the leader of the association, which includes 80 per cent of the 250 policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood is a veteran of eleven years on the force, heading the detective division and serving as a sergeant for six years.

FLOOD WAS SHIFTED four months ago to the downtown office to perform clerical duties while earning his annual salary of $11,000 per year.

Tuesday he was again shifted to the Bodford Park substation in Homewood, an hour and a half from his Wheeling home, where he functions at a desk job.

Flood said Woods has called him on the carpet several times, threatening to have him indicted, taping all their conversations about the association and refusing to grant Flood a leave of absence so he could attend police administration classes at Harper College in Palatine.

"Anyone in our position who tries to seek recognition would be subjected to what we are being subjected to," Flood said.

"THIS IS NOT a unique thing. I am not a rebel like I have been called. Woods has used obscenities in our conversations and Kistner has slammed on the table. It is because of men like Sheriff Woods that there is so much turmoil in the public employee field."

In his statement, Flood said the association disagreed with policies and actions taken by Woods, including a standing order of "shoot to kill" at major civil disturbances and sending Cook County policemen out of the county to assist other municipalities with their problems, such as when Woods sent men to Gary during a civil disorder.

The association has sought to negotiate for its members regarding salaries, fringe benefits, and working conditions, but Flood said Woods and his administration have refused to negotiate in good faith relative to working conditions.

The Rev. Thomas Howells just sailed halfway around the world with "his harvest" to discover America.

Howells, an Australian minister on an exchange program with the Community Presbyterian Church in Mount Prospect, arrived last weekend with his wife and four daughters for a 12-month tour of duty in the United States.

The Howells, who live in a small suburb just outside Melbourne, exchanged churches, houses, and cars with the Rev. Thomas Phillips of the Community Presbyterian Church and his family for the program.

"This is a total exchange program. Rev.

Phillips and I just packed up our personal belongings and switched places. We didn't have to worry about finding accommodations or bringing furniture and bedding all the way from Australia. This makes a big difference when you're moving your family thousands of miles,"

Uses Absentee Campaign

by MARTHA MOSER
and ED MURNANE

A massive absentee ballot campaign is being waged by 13th Congressional District candidate Philip M. Crane to insure that Crane supporters who will be out of the district next Tuesday are not disenfranchised.

Acting on a complaint of possible vote fraud, the Herald learned yesterday that 70 absentee ballots have been mailed to only four receiving addresses — all on the fringe of the district.

The four receiving addresses apparently were used to allow Crane voters to avoid a restriction imposed by Cook County Clerk Edward Barrett that absentee ballots must not be sent to Cook County addresses.

TWO OF THE ADDRESSES are in Lake Zurich in Lake County, one is in St.

Charles in Kendall County and the fourth is in Glen Ellyn in DuPage County.

"It's unfortunate, but this is the only way it can be done," said Rolland Franzen of Arlington Heights, a Crane campaign worker.

Franzen told Herald reporters Thursday night that Crane supporters who would be away from their voting district next Tuesday were urged to apply for absentee ballots and have them sent to a Lake Zurich address.

The voters then cast their ballots and returned them to Crane headquarters, which in turn delivered them to Barrett's office, Franzen said.

Other candidates contacted by the Herald agreed that Barrett does not send absentee ballots to Cook County addresses, but said they had not provided a central receiving address for absentee ballots. They questioned the wisdom of the practice.

BARRETT'S RULING apparently is meant to insure that persons requesting absentee ballots are indeed out of the district on election day. However, it does not make provision for voters who will be out of the district only on election day, and not at an out-of-town address when the ballots would be mailed.

Several of the homes to which ballots had been sent were reluctant to explain why or for which candidate they were serving as a clearing house.

Barrett told the Herald it is not unusual for persons to request absentee ballots mailed to an address other than their home as many are on vacation or travelling during an election. Clerks in the election office, when pulling files and matching addresses where ballots were being mailed, did express surprise at the limited number of receiving addresses.

Clerks said they had no guess if the number of absentee ballots for this election is larger than usual since they had no precedent for a special election during their terms of service.

A spokesman for Barrett said there is a legal check against any possible double voting and is handled by election judges. He said judges, either deliberately or innocently, could fail to go through this watchdog action.

"UNFORTUNATELY, judges sometimes don't read through the literature we send out," the spokesman said. "We're having difficulty getting election judges," he said of the 13th District race. We get one or two inexperienced ones and the others could run the show," he acknowledged.

Usual procedure is for both parties to provide two judges at each poll. It is up to the parties to staff the polls.

Barrett said absentee ballots returned to his office are sent with the voter's affidavit to their precinct during the election. When the polls close, absentee ballots are pulled from the envelopes and dropped in the ballot box. The name on the absentee ballot envelope is then checked against the binder used to note the voters that day. Sometimes these checks are "spot" or random sampling.

"Ordinarily, they would not catch this in a ballot canvass," he said, noting a canvass only catches numbers of votes cast.

Hearing Set Oct. 17

For Zoning Variation

A public hearing for a zoning variation on 8½ acres in Elk Grove Township will be held Oct. 17 at 2 p.m. in the Chicago Civic Center.

Petitioner A. Jerome Moos is requesting a variation to reduce the rear yard lot requirements for construction of multiple family dwellings and attached garages.

The tract, on the north side of Dempster Street, about 550 feet east of Linneman Road, is presently zoned R-5 (general residence district).

Who Will Fill Board Post?

A lot of residents are wondering who will fill the vacancy left by Earl Lewis on the Mount Prospect village board.

In fact, rumors and speculations have been bouncing around town this week like a billiard ball, the most widespread of which is that ex-mayor Dan Congreve may be appointed to the post.

And besides Congreve, three other names have emerged as possible candidates. They are Larry Osling, Congreve's campaign manager during last April's village election and chairman of the police and fire commission; Frank Bergen, a member of the plan commission and High School Dist. 214 school board; and Bob Moore, former village manager of Mount Prospect.

LEWIS, WHO was elected to serve a four-year term in 1967, resigned from office last week because of a conflict between his job and his position as a village trustee. Lewis was also chairman of the village board's judiciary committee.

Last Saturday village trustees voted to fill the vacancy by appointment rather than special election.

Trustee George Reiter, when asked who he thought might be nominated for the appointment, said, "No names have been tossed into the ring yet, but there are four or five strong candidates for the job."

When asked if he thought Congreve might be in the running, he said, "Yes, in fact I can't imagine who would be better qualified than Dan. But there's some others who are well qualified for the job too, such as Bergen, Moore and Osling."

REITER SAID the post should be filled by appointment because if a special election were held "it's timing would be very bad. We've just had the con-con election and now the 13th District primary is Tuesday."

Mayor Robert Teichert said Village Atty. John Zimmerman will report to the board Tuesday on what the procedure should be to make the appointment.

Howells said.

"WE FEEL very much at home here, and the people from the church have done a lot to make us feel comfortable in our new surroundings. Why, when we arrived Saturday, the cupboards had already been prepared and we didn't have to worry about fixing ourselves a meal or getting settled."

Howells explained that there are no basic differences between his community in Australia and Mount Prospect, which explains why the transition has been such a smooth one.

"I live in a small town just 10 miles from Melbourne, a city which has a population of more than two and one-half million people. This is very similar to Mount Prospect and Chicago. The greater cities and the expanding suburbs."

"THE AUSTRALIAN suburbs are very similar to your suburbs and many American features are fast becoming a part of Australia — business trends, city planning and development. I think my year's stay in America will give me a prophetic insight into what will be coming to Australia within the next three or four years," he said.

Howells sees more similarities than differences between the two countries, including size. "I think if you subtract Alaska, Australia is just as big as the United States. Our population is just smaller, but Americans don't realize what a big country Australia really is," he said.

Howells, who's spent 11 years in his Australian parish, was contemplating a change in jobs when it was suggested that he participate in the exchange program for a change of pace.

"THIS IS ONE reason for my interest in the exchange program, but I think that my experiences in Mount Prospect will better help me understand and develop my two main areas of work in the church."

"I'll gain experience in working with team ministries which I think will be adopted in Australia soon. Declining church memberships will force churches to unite in Australia and depend upon team ministries," he said.

"Also, one of my main areas of work in the church is aimed at the relationship between the church and the community. The church has to be relevant to the community because without that relevance, there's no reason to have the church. We need to develop communication or what we call outreach programs."

HOWELLS IS ALSO very interested in Christian education for adults and young adults. "Actually church projects are better programmed for young adults and children because adults would rather not participate."

"Parents think it's more important for their children to participate because it's part of the growing process in an individual. Adults often think they're too old for Christian education programs because they're past the growing and developing stage," he said.

One of the only differences between his church and the Community Presbyterian Church is size. "My church is smaller, but they're both structured along the same lines. The only exception is that my church has the responsibility to administer sports programs where you have a park district for this purpose."

IN AUSTRALIA, Howell sponsored two football teams (soccer), a cricket team, 15 basketball squads plus a tennis and badminton club for members of the church as well as nonmembers.

"Sports are very popular in Australia and a large part of the social life. Australians also watch a considerable amount of television just like the Americans," he said.

Howells said millions of Australians followed Apollo 11's journey to the moon as closely as the Americans. "The moon landing was a magnificent achievement and a tribute to man's ingenuity. I don't think the excitement or significance of the moon landing was cramped by a spirit of nationalism, even though the Americans accomplished it first."

"WE ALL WERE able to share in a moment of history which I think begins a new era in civilization. The unlimited potential of man."

"Millions of Australians witnessed the moon walk, and I think we saw it on television in Australia a second before you did in America."

"but any discussions about job conditions must be done with the sheriff."

"Woods has denied to talk in good faith and has an overall anti-labor attitude. But we will continue to address ourselves to these problems as they arise. These conditions exist in every police department."

"There is practically no communication with the sheriff's department," Flood said.

Woods Denies All

Sheriff Joseph Woods yesterday flatly denied a list of harassment allegation made by the president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) saying that he has never threatened anyone.

In an afternoon press conference, Sgt. John Flood, president of CCPA, charged Woods with harassing and intimidating members of the association and causing deterioration of morale within the police department.

Woods said he didn't have time to study all the allegations made by Flood and added that any talk of suspending the 11-year veteran was premature. He said the department would look into civil service laws to determine if there are grounds for suspension.

WOODS CONFIRMED that a special investigator has been studying the activities of the CCPA in the past few months and that he has tape recordings of meetings between him and Flood. Woods said he did so because he wanted a clear understanding of the goals of the CCPA.

"I imagine Flood would like to be fired," Woods said. "What he really wants to be is a full-time union boss. When Police Chief John Kistner returns we will look further into this matter."

Woods stressed that since he has become sheriff the department has improved and the base pay scale for his men has risen from $490 a month to $726 a month.

Woods added that through an attempt to bolster and improve the functioning of the sheriff's department a number of policemen including members of the association have had to be transferred.

Synagogue Lists New Schedule

The Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 8800 Ballard Road, Des Plaines, will hold three Sabbath Services Oct. 10 and 11.

A family Sabbath eve Hebrew and English service will usher in the Jewish Sabbath Friday at 8:30 p.m. Rabbi Jay Karzen will conduct the service and deliver the sermon. A social hour (Oneg Shabbat) will follow the one-hour service.

SATURDAY PRAYERS will begin at 9:30 a.m. During this service Irvin Wagner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kurt J. Wagner of Des Plaines, will celebrate his Bar Mitzvah.

The junior congregation will join the adult congregation at 11 a.m. for the blessing of the new Hebrew month (Cheshvan). Rabbi Karzen will also bless the September-October birthday youngsters.

Dennis Drucker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Drucker of Des Plaines, will observe his Bar Mitzvah at Mincha-Maariv services Saturday afternoon at 6 p.m.

Twice daily religious services are recited in the MTJC Bet Midrash Chapel at 7:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. on Saturday and 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Wants Abortion Laws Repeal

"The liberalized abortion laws adopted by several states recently have not worked. The only successful method of dealing with the problem is to repeal all abortion laws in the United States," declared Mrs. S. M. Dart, a member of the Illinois Citizens for the Medical Control of Abortion (ICMCA).

Mrs. Dart spoke Wednesday at a meeting of the Far Acres chapter of Women's American Organization for Rehabilitation Through Training.

Mrs. Dart said that the "many difficulties" surrounding abortion in the United States are due to "highly repressive abortion laws."

"THE ABORTION laws in the United States are about as reactionary as in any country in the world," Mrs. Dart declared. "As a result, women have sought abortions by two methods, either they attempt to abort themselves or they allow incompetent persons to perform the operation for them. There are one million such illegal abortions in the United States each year."

"Several states have enacted legislation to allow abortion in the case of rape or incest, to preserve the physical or mental health of the mother or if there is a chance that the child will be deformed," she explained.

"However, in all of these states all cases must first be reviewed by a medical review board, which is a time-consuming task. In none of the states where these liberalized laws have been enacted has the number of abortions performed annually gone up. This demonstrates that these revised codes have not worked," Mrs. Dart said.

SHE STATED THAT the ICMCA feels that the only answer to the problem is the abolishment of all laws governing abortion in the United States. Ten states introduced legislation this year which would have provided for this, but all were defeated, according to Mrs. Dart.

She added that a bill to abolish abortion laws in Illinois will be introduced into the 1971 session of the state legislature.

Mrs. Dart said that in Illinois an abortion can be granted legally only if three physicians determine that the pregnant woman will die without the operation.

"I HONESTLY believe that if a nian-to-man canvass of Illinois voters had been taken, the abortion laws would have been repealed in the last session of the legislature," she declared.

She said she feels the laws were not abolished because "not enough people wrote their legislators in support of their repeal."

"Legislators were frightened away from voting for repeal by pressure groups which favor the laws," declared Mrs. Dart.

"Repeal of abortion laws would not allow all people to perform an abortion. The repeal would simply make it a medical procedure, not a legal question."

High-Rise Battle Brewing

Forces are gathering in Prospect Heights for a last stand against the Cook County Board to keep high-rise buildings from being built at Foundry and River roads in Prospect Heights.

Wednesday, the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals recommended rezoning to the county board of 5.2 acres of farm land at Foundry and River roads for an apartment and business complex.

The county board will vote on the rezoning request Monday. The meeting, which will be held in Room 1122 of the County Building in Chicago at 10 a.m., will be open to the public. Residents will be allowed to testify at the board meeting by first making a written request to the Public Service Committee in the county building.

A GROUP OF homeowners living in the area of the controversial parcel of land will present petitions to the county board Monday protesting the rezoning.

A three-fourths majority vote by county board members will be needed to pass the rezoning. The high majority is required because two neighboring villages, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines, made a formal protest against the rezoning.

Four months ago, at the June hearing, George Doetsch, owner of the 5.2 acres, petitioned the zoning board to rezone the land from single-family residences to general service with a special use request.

The rezoning would pave the way for construction of two five-story buildings containing apartments over stores, a professional building and a franchise operation on the corner.

Principal investors in the project are Paul Di Franco, a dentist, two other dentists and a physician. Arthur Hansen is the developer.

HOWARD BERNSTEIN, president of the

Parkview Homeowners Association which encompasses the area up for rezoning, told the Herald yesterday that he has been advised that "the only way to fight the rezoning is to file a mandamus suit prohibiting issuance of a building permit."

"I have also been told by Charles Bonk, chairman of the public service committee and a member of the county board, that he will request the other board members to grant a two-week continuance to the case," said Bernstein.

If all of the board members agree to the continuance, they will wait two weeks after hearing the zoning board's recommendation before they make a final decision. The continuance will allow Bernstein enough time to submit a mandamus suit.

A MAJOR POINT in the Prospect Heights resident's protest is the limited capability of the Forest River Fire Department.

This factor caused 40 per cent of the firemen to threaten to resign at the time of the hearing, if the rezoning request was granted.

Spokesman for the firemen at the hearing was Trustee Leonard Felke. Upon learning of the zoning board's recommendation Wednesday, however, he refused to comment on the resignation plans.

According to Fire Chief Charles Nick, "Our two pumpers can't handle a five-story building; we need at least a snorkel. We would also need another truck with an aerial ladder. Right now we have only maintenance expenses of the fire department, but money for new equipment comes out of funds received from the department's annual dance."

"We can't afford all of the new equipment we would need to fight a five-story fire," said Nick. "We are working from almost nothing in our budget now. The

Train Riders Plan Car Pools

Cautious commuters in the Northwest suburbs are planning their car pools now in face of a nationwide railroad strike threatened for midnight tonight.

Spokesmen from both the Chicago North Western and the Milwaukee Road railroads said they will be out of operation if the strike occurs.

"But that's a big if," said Ashley Wilhite of the Milwaukee Road. "We seldom know anything definite until it occurs," he added of railroad strikes in general.

"It's hard to believe the strike will actually take place," Wilhite said. The strike would paralyze all rail service.

"YOUR GUESS is as good as mine," Frank Koval of Chicago North Western said Thursday when asked if the strike will take place.

"One thing in the offering is if President Nixon appoints a presidential act finding board. That will stop the strike for 60 days," he added.

President Nixon has until midnight tonight to appoint the board and head off the strike temporarily, Koval added.

The situation is in the President's hands, Wilhite agreed. He could offer no consolation to commuters should the strike occur. "We have to be prepared if transportation simply does not run. That is very hard to face," Wilhite added.

A primary concern of the railroads is that perishable goods get to a point where they can be protected while a strike is on, he said.

WILHITE COMPARED the situation yesterday to water rising during a flood. "You can't stop it so you just watch it rise," he said.

The strike threat is being initiated by four shopcraft unions in pursuit of a 10 per cent pay increase.

Since regional, rather than nationwide, service would be halted, according to initial reports, there was doubt that President Nixon would intervene.

Later developments indicate that rail service would be hampered on a national level and a fine line now exists on which the president must make a decision.

The railroads threatened with the strike Saturday were the Santa Fe, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Erie Lackawanna, Southern, Baltimore and Ohio and Ches-

Flood Charges Woods

by BARRY SIGALE

The president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) Thursday lashed out at the county police department, charging Sheriff Joseph Woods and other top officials with major harassment of association members and causing low morale within the department.

Sgt. John Flood, 30, of Wheeling, blasted Woods for tactics he said Woods used to intimidate members of the association and prospective members by threatening their jobs and future as policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood said that Woods would probably suspend him from the department and ultimately fire him. He said legal action could be taken if he was fired.

AT A PRESS conference in the Sherman House in Chicago, Flood said, "The morale of the Cook County Police Department, under Sheriff Joseph Woods' administration, has deteriorated to its lowest point since he took over office from now-Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie."

Flood, who heads the executive board of the CCPA, a 750-member group representing 14 municipalities in the county, said Woods has led a campaign to intimidate association members and has threatened them personally.

Four of the association's top officials have either been transferred or demoted since their involvement with the union, Flood said. Flood himself has been shifted, in two steps, from the Nites Division in northern Cook County to Homewood, which is in southern Cook County, 70 miles round trip from his home in Wheeling.

Flood said that recently Woods, John Kistner, police chief, and the three highest ranking members below the chief, have held meetings with all police officers on the department and made verbal threats to all of them.

"IN THOSE MEETINGS," Flood said, "Woods told the men that if they were members of the CCPA that he would take away their police powers."

"He told his men that he would make them guards in Cook County Jail, taking away their professional police positions if they were members of the CCPA."

"He also told his men, among other things, that they would no longer be sent or allowed to go to professional police schools if they were members of the CCPA."

"Implied in these statements," Flood said, "is that members of the association will be passed over when promotions are handed out and that men will be transferred at will, as part of these harassment techniques."

"CURRENTLY, THE evaluation system within the department is unfair for promotions. You have to have inter-departmental clout to advance."

"People are constantly getting transferred. All patrolmen in Cook County can't be sure from day to day what their next assignment will be. Transfers are fairly prevalent when people speak out."

Flood said he has borne the brunt of this alleged unfair treatment, being the leader of the association, which includes 80 per cent of the 250 policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood is a veteran of eleven years on the force, heading the detective division and serving as a sergeant for six years.

FLOOD WAS SHIFTED four months ago to the downtown office to perform clerical duties while earning his annual salary of $11,000 per year.

Tuesday he was again shifted to the Bedford Park substation in Homewood, an hour and a half from his Wheeling home, where he functions at a desk job.

Flood said Woods has called him on the carpet several times, threatening to have him indicted, taping all their conversations about the association and refusing to grant Flood a leave of absence so he could attend police administration classes at Harper College in Palatine.

"Anyone in our position who tries to seek recognition would be subjected to what we are being subjected to," Flood said.

"THIS IS NOT a unique thing. I am not a rebel like I have been called. Woods has used obscenities in our conversations and Kistner has slammed on the table. It is because of men like Sheriff Woods that there is so much turmoil in the public employee field."

In his statement, Flood said the association disagreed with policies and actions taken by Woods, including a standing order of "shoot to kill" at major civil disturbances and sending Cook County policemen out of the county to assist other municipalities with their problems, such as when Woods sent men to Gary during a civil disorder.

The association has sought to negotiate for its members regarding salaries, fringe benefits, and working conditions, but Flood said Woods and his administration have refused to negotiate in good faith relative to working conditions.

"WE HAVE A good relationship with the

The Rev. Thomas Howells just sailed halfway around the world with "his harmonium" to discover America.

Howells, an Australian minister on an exchange program with the Community Presbyterian Church in Mount Prospect, arrived last weekend with his wife and four daughters for a 12-month tour of duty in the United States.

The Howells, who live in a small suburb just outside Melbourne, exchanged churches, houses, and cars with the Rev. Thomas Phillips of the Community Presbyterian Church and his family for the program.

"This is a total exchange program. Rev.

Phillips and I just packed up our personal belongings and switched places. We didn't have to worry about finding accommodations or bringing furniture and bedding all the way from Australia. This makes a big difference when you're moving your family thousands of miles."

Uses Absentee Campaign

by MARTHA MOSER
and ED MURNANE

A massive absentee ballot campaign is being waged by 13th Congressional District candidate Philip M. Crane to insure that Crane supporters who will be out of the district next Tuesday are not disenfranchised.

Acting on a complaint of possible vote fraud, the Herald learned yesterday that 70 absentee ballots have been mailed to only four receiving addresses — all on the fringe of the district.

The four receiving addresses apparently were used to allow Crane voters to avoid a restriction imposed by Cook County Clerk Edward Barrett that absentee ballots must not be sent to Cook County addresses.

TWO OF THE ADDRESSES are in Lake Zurich in Lake County, one is in St.

Charles in Kendall County and the fourth is in Glen Ellyn in DuPage County.

"It's unfortunate, but this is the only way it can be done," said Roland Franzen of Arlington Heights, a Crane campaign worker.

Franzen told Herald reporters Thursday night that Crane supporters who would be away from their voting district next Tuesday were urged to apply for absentee ballots and have them sent to a Lake Zurich address.

The voters then cast their ballots and returned them to Crane headquarters, which in turn delivered them to Barrett's office, Franzen said.

Other candidates contacted by the Herald agreed that Barrett does not send absentee ballots to Cook County addresses, but said they had not provided a central receiving address for absentee ballots. They questioned the wisdom of the practice.

BARRETT'S RULING apparently is meant to insure that persons requesting absentee ballots are indeed out of the district on election day. However, it does not make provision for voters who will be out of the district only on election day, and not at an out-of-town address when the ballots would be mailed.

Several of the homes to which ballots had been sent were reluctant to explain why or for which candidate they were serving as a clearing house.

Barrett told the Herald it is not unusual for persons to request absentee ballots mailed to an address other than their home as many are on vacation or traveling during an election. Clerks in the election office, when pulling files and matching addresses where ballots were being mailed, did express surprise at the limited number of receiving addresses.

Clerks said they had no guess if the number of absentee ballots for this election is larger than usual since they had no precedent for a special election during their terms of service.

A spokesman for Barrett said there is a legal check against any possible double voting and is handled by election judges. He said judges, either deliberately or innocently, could fail to go through this watchdog action.

"UNFORTUNATELY, judges sometimes don't read through the literature we send out," the spokesman said. "We're having difficulty getting election judges," he said of the 13th District race. We get one or two unexperienced ones and the others could run the show," he acknowledged.

Usual procedure is for both parties to provide two judges at each poll. It is up to the parties to staff the polls.

Barrett said absentee ballots returned to his office are sent with the voter's affidavit, to their precinct during the election. When the polls close, absentee ballots are pulled from the envelopes and dropped in the ballot box. The name on the absentee ballot envelope is then checked against the binder used to note the voters that day. Sometimes these checks are "spot" or random sampling.

"Ordinarily, they would not catch this in a ballot canvass," he said, noting a canvass only catches numbers of votes cast.

Hearing Set Oct. 17
For Zoning Variation

A public hearing for a zoning variation on 8½ acres in Elk Grove Township will be held Oct. 17 at 2 p.m. in the Chicago Civic Center.

Petitioner A. Jerome Moos is requesting a variation to reduce the rear yard lot requirements for construction of multiple family dwellings and attached garages.

The tract, on the north side of Dempster Street, about 550 feet east of Linneman Road, is presently zoned R-5 (general residence district).

Who Will Fill Board Post?

A lot of residents are wondering who will fill the vacancy left by Earl Lewis on the Mount Prospect village board.

In fact, rumors and speculations have been bouncing around town this week like a billiard ball, the most widespread of which is that ex-mayor Dan Congreve may be appointed to the post.

And besides Congreve, three other names have emerged as possible candidates. They are Larry Ostling, Congreve's campaign manager during last April's village election and chairman of the police and fire commission; Frank Bergen, a member of the plan commission and High School Dist. 214 school board; and Bob Moore, former village manager of Mount Prospect.

LEWIS, WHO was elected to serve a four-year term in 1967, resigned from office last week because of a conflict between his job and his position as a village trustee. Lewis was also chairman of the village board's judiciary committee.

Last Saturday village trustees voted to fill the vacancy by appointment rather than special election.

Trustee George Reiter, when asked who he thought might be nominated for the appointment, said, "No names have been tossed into the ring yet, but there are four or five strong candidates for the job."

When asked if he thought Congreve might be in the running, he said, "Yes, in fact I can't imagine who would be better qualified than Dan. But there's some others who are well qualified for the job too, such as Bergen, Moore and Ostling."

REITER SAID the post should be filled by appointment because if a special election were held "it's timing would be very bad. We've just had the con-con election and now the 13th District primary is Tuesday."

Mayor Robert Teichert said Village Atty. John Zimmerman will report to the board Tuesday on what the procedure should be to make the appointment.

WON'T SOMEBODY Haul Me Away? — This abandoned car, located on Northwest Highway just west of Central in Mount Prospect, has been sitting in the same spot now for a week. A car is considered abandoned if it sits in one spot along a street or highway for a period of 72 hours or more, under local ordinance. Penalty for car owners found violating the ordinance can be a fine up to $500.

Howells said.

"WE FEEL very much at home here, and the people from the church have done a lot to make us feel comfortable in our new surroundings. Why, when we arrived Saturday, the cupboards had already been prepared and we didn't have to worry about fixing ourselves a meal or getting settled."

Howells explained that there are no basic differences between his community in Australia and Mount Prospect, which explains why the transition has been such a smooth one.

"I live in a small town just 10 miles from Melbourne, a city which has a population of more than two and one-half million people. This is very similar to Mount Prospect and Chicago. The greater cities and the expanding suburbs.

"THE AUSTRALIAN suburbs are very similar to your suburbs and many American features are fast becoming a part of Australia — business trends, city planning and development. I think my year's stay in America will give me a prophetic insight into what will be coming to Australia within the next three or four years," he said.

Howells sees more similarities than differences between the two countries, including size. "I think if you subtract Alaska, Australia is just as big as the United States. Our population is just smaller, but Americans don't realize what a big country Australia really is," he said.

Howells, who's spent 11 years in his Australian parish, was contemplating a change in jobs when it was suggested that he participate in the exchange program for a change of pace.

"THIS IS ONE reason for my interest in the exchange program, but I think that my experiences in Mount Prospect will better help me understand and develop my two main areas of work in the church.

"I'll gain experience in working with team ministries which I think will be adopted in Australia soon. Declining church memberships will force churches to unite in Australia and depend upon team ministries," he said.

"Also, one of my main areas of work in the church is aimed at the relationship between the church and the community. The church has to be relevant to the community because without that relevance, there's no reason to have the church. We need to develop communication or what we call outreach programs."

HOWELLS IS ALSO very interested in Christian education for adults and young adults. "Actually church projects are better programmed for young adults and children because adults would rather not participate.

"Parents think it's more important for their children to participate because it's part of the growing process in an individual. Adults often think they're too old for Christian education programs because they're past the growing and developing stage," he said.

One of the only differences between his church and the Community Presbyterian Church is size. "My church is smaller, but they're both structured along the same lines. The only exception is that my church has the responsibility to administer sports programs where you have a park district for this purpose."

IN AUSTRALIA, Howell sponsored two football teams (soccer), a cricket team, 15 basketball squads plus a tennis and badminton club for members of the church as well as nonmembers.

"Sports are very popular in Australia and a large part of the social life. Australians also watch a considerable amount of television just like the Americans," he said.

Howells said millions of Australians followed Apollo 11's journey to the moon as closely as the Americans. "The moon landing was a magnificent achievement and a tribute to man's ingenuity. I don't think the excitement or significance of the moon landing was cramped by a spirit of nationalism, even though the Americans accomplished it first.

"WE ALL WERE able to share in a moment of history which I think begins a new era in civilization. The unlimited potential of man.

"Millions of Australians witnessed the moon walk, and I think we saw it on television in Australia a second before you did in America."

Laden In Thailand

Airman L.C. Thomas C. Laden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Laden, 311 S. George St., Mount Prospect, is on duty at Korat Royal Thai AFB, Thailand.

Airman Laden, a materiel specialist, is serving with a unit of the Pacific Air Forces. Before his arrival in Thailand, he was assigned to Travis AFB, Calif.

The airman is a 1964 graduate of Prospect High School. He has attended Wright Junior College, Chicago, Western Illinois University and Southern Illinois University.

Woods Denies All

Sheriff Joseph Woods yesterday flatly denied a list of harassment allegation made by the president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) saying that he has never threatened anyone.

In an afternoon press conference, Sgt. John Flood, president of CCPA, charged Woods with harassing and intimidating members of the association and causing deterioration of morale within the police department.

Woods said he didn't have time to study all the allegations made by Flood and added that any talk of suspending the 11-year veteran was premature. He said the department would look into civil service laws to determine if there are grounds for suspension.

WOODS CONFIRMED that a special investigator has been studying the activities of the CCPA in the past few months and that he has tape recordings of meetings between him and Flood. Woods said he did so because he wanted a clear understanding of the goals of the CCPA.

"I imagine Flood would like to be fired," Woods said. "What he really wants to be is a full-time union boss. When Police Chief John Kistner returns we will look further into this matter."

Woods stressed that since he has become sheriff the department has improved and the base pay scale for his men has risen from $490 a month to $726 a month.

Woods added that through an attempt to bolster and improve the functioning of the sheriff's department a number of policemen including members of the association have had to be transferred.

Synagogue Lists New Schedule

The Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 8800 Ballard Road, Des Plaines, will hold three Sabbath Services Oct. 10 and 11.

A family Sabbath eve Hebrew and English service will usher in the Jewish Sabbath Friday at 8:30 p.m. Rabbi Jay Karzen will conduct the service and deliver the sermon. A social hour (Oneg Shabbat) will follow the one-hour service.

SATURDAY PRAYERS will begin at 9:30 a.m. During this service Irvin Wagner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kurt J. Wagner of Des Plaines, will celebrate his Bar Mitzvah.

we will continue to address ourselves to these problems as they arise. These conditions exist in every police department.

"There is practically no communication with the sheriff's department," Flood said.

The junior congregation will join the adult congregation at 11 a.m. for the blessing of the new Hebrew month (Cheshvan). Rabbi Karzen will also bless the September-October birthday youngsters.

Dennis Drucker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Drucker of Des Plaines, will observe his Bar Mitzvah at Mincha-Maariv services Saturday afternoon at 6 p.m.

Twice daily religious services are recited in the MTJC Bet Midrash Chapel at 7:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. on Saturday and 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Guiding the Frosh

Three area students, upperclassmen at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, are helping orient freshmen and transfer students during SIU's new student week.

Ralph James of 4 N. Regency Drive, Arlington Heights, Frank DeMore of 320 Azalea Court, Hoffman Estates, and Barbara Burke of 600 S. School St., Mount Prospect, are helping integrate the newcomers into the campus community.

Wants Abortion Laws Repeal

"The liberalized abortion laws adopted by several states recently have not worked. The only successful method of dealing with the problem is to repeal all abortion laws in the United States," declared Mrs. S. M. Dart, a member of the Illinois Citizens for the Medical Control of Abortion (ICMCA).

Mrs. Dart spoke Wednesday at a meeting of the Far Acres chapter of Women's American Organization for Rehabilitation Through Training.

Mrs. Dart said that the "many difficulties" surrounding abortion in the United States are due to "highly repressive abortion laws."

"THE ABORTION laws in the United States are about as reactionary as in any country in the world," Mrs. Dart declared. "As a result, women have sought abortions by two methods, either they attempt to abort themselves or they allow incompetent persons to perform the operation for them. There are one million such illegal abortions in the United States each year."

"Several states have enacted legislation to allow abortion in the case of rape or incest, to preserve the physical or mental health of the mother or if there is a chance that the child will be deformed," she explained.

"However, in all of these states all cases must first be reviewed by a medical review board, which is a time-consuming task. In none of the states where these liberalized laws have been enacted has the number of abortions performed annually gone up. This demonstrates that these revised codes have not worked," Mrs. Dart said.

SHE STATED THAT the ICMCA feels that the only answer to the problem is the abolishment of all laws governing abortion in the United States. Ten states introduced legislation this year which would have provided for this, but all were defeated, according to Mrs. Dart.

She added that a bill to abolish abortion laws in Illinois will be introduced into the 1971 session of the state legislature.

Mrs. Dart said that in Illinois an abortion can be granted legally only if three physicians determine that the pregnant woman will die without the operation.

"I HONESTLY believe that if a man-to-man canvass of Illinois voters had been taken, the abortion laws would have been repealed in the last session of the legislature," she declared.

She said she feels the laws were not abolished because "not enough people wrote their legislators in support of their repeal."

"Legislators were frightened away from

High-Rise Battle Brewing

Forces are gathering in Prospect Heights for a last stand against the Cook County Board to keep high-rise buildings from being built at Foundry and River roads in Prospect Heights.

Wednesday, the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals recommended rezoning to the county board of 5.2 acres of farm land at Foundry and River roads for an apartment and business complex.

The county board will vote on the rezoning request Monday. The meeting, which will be held in Room 1122 of the County Building in Chicago at 10 a.m., will be open to the public. Residents will be allowed to testify at the board meeting by first making a written request to the Public Service Committee in the county building.

A GROUP OF homeowners living in the area of the controversial parcel of land will present petitions to the county board Monday protesting the rezoning.

A three-fourths majority vote by county board members will be needed to pass the rezoning. The high majority is required because two neighboring villages, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines, made a formal protest against the rezoning.

Four months ago, at the June hearing, George Doetsch, owner of the 5.2 acres, petitioned the zoning board to rezone the land from single-family residences to general service with a special use request.

The rezoning would pave the way for construction of two five-story buildings containing apartments over stores, a professional building and a franchise operation on the corner.

Principal investors in the project are Paul Di Franco, a dentist, two other dentists and a physician. Arthur Hansen is the developer.

HOWARD BERNSTEIN, president of the

Parkview Homeowners Association which encompasses the area up for rezoning, told the Herald yesterday that he has been advised that "the only way to fight the rezoning is to file a mandamus suit prohibiting issuance of a building permit."

"I have also been told by Charles Bonk, chairman of the public service committee and a member of the county board, that he will request the other board members to grant a two-week continuance to the case," said Bernstein.

If all of the board members agree to the continuance, they will wait two weeks after hearing the zoning board's recommendation before they make a final decision. The continuance will allow Bernstein enough time to submit a mandamus suit.

A MAJOR POINT in the Prospect Heights resident's protest is the limited capability of the Forest River Fire Department.

This factor caused 40 per cent of the firemen to threaten to resign at the time of the hearing, if the rezoning request was granted.

Spokesman for the firemen at the hearing was Trustee Leonard Felke. Upon learning of the zoning board's recommendation Wednesday, however, he refused to comment on the resignation plans.

According to Fire Chief Charles Nick, "Our two pumpers can't handle a five-story building; we need at least a snorkel. We would also need another truck with an aerial ladder. Right now we have only maintenance expenses of the fire department, but money for new equipment comes out of funds received from the department's annual dance.

"We can't afford all of the new equipment we would need to fight a five-story fire," said Nick. "We are working from almost nothing in our budget now. The only apparent solution is to call in Mount Prospect or Des Plaines to fight the high-rise fires," said Nick.

The Parkview Homeowners Association with the help of the Northwest Suburban Homeowners Association, a group of nine Prospect Heights homeowners associations, is sending a barrage of letters and petitions to the county board protesting the rezoning.

"But that's a big if," said Ashley Wilhite of the Milwaukee Road. "We seldom know anything definite until it occurs," he added of railroad strikes in general.

"It's hard to believe the strike will actually take place," Wilhite said. The strike would paralyze all rail service.

"YOUR GUESS is as good as mine," Frank Koval of Chicago North Western said Thursday when asked if the strike will take place.

"One thing in the offering is if President Nixon appoints a presidential act finding board. That will stop the strike for 60 days," he added.

Train Riders Plan Car Pools

Cautious commuters in the Northwest suburbs are planning their car pools now in face of a nationwide railroad strike threatened for midnight tonight.

Spokesmen from both the Chicago North Western and the Milwaukee Road railroads said they will be out of operation if the strike occurs.

"But that's a big if," said Ashley Wilhite of the Milwaukee Road. "We seldom know anything definite until it occurs," he added of railroad strikes in general.

"It's hard to believe the strike will actually take place," Wilhite said. The strike would paralyze all rail service.

"YOUR GUESS is as good as mine," Frank Koval of Chicago North Western said Thursday when asked if the strike will take place.

"One thing in the offering is if President Nixon appoints a presidential act finding board. That will stop the strike for 60 days," he added.

President Nixon has until midnight tonight to appoint the board and head off the strike temporarily, Koval added.

The situation is in the President's hands, Wilhite agreed. He could offer no consolation to commuters should the strike occur. "We have to be prepared if transportation simply does not run. That is very hard to face," Wilhite added.

A primary concern of the railroads is that perishable goods get to a point where they can be protected while a strike is on, he said.

WILHITE COMPARED the situation yesterday to water rising during a flood. "You can't stop it so you just watch it rise," he said.

The strike threat is being initiated by four shopcraft unions in pursuit of a 10 per cent pay increase.

Since regional, rather than nationwide, service would be halted, according to initial reports, there was doubt that President Nixon would intervene.

Later developments indicate that rail service would be hampered on a national level and a fine line now exists on which the president must make a decision.

The railroads threatened with the strike Saturday were the Santa Fe, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Erie Lackawanna, Southern, Baltimore and Ohio and Ches-

Device Is Exploded

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — The United States set off an underground nuclear device more powerful than a million tons of TNT yesterday on the Aleutian island of Amchitka.

The Atomic Energy Commission, which ignored last minute pleas to halt the explosion, said the blast went off at 6:06 p.m. EDT at the bottom of a 4,000-foot shaft.

SAIGON—The alleged victim in the Green Beret murder case was thought to have given the North Vietnamese Army information that led directly to the deaths of at least 30 allied soldiers, 10 of them Americans, U.S. military sources said Thursday.

The sources said the slain troops were members of Special Forces-Green Berets patrols ambushed within minutes after landing by helicopter or parachuting in Communist territory.

Paddock Offers Insurance Plan

An accident insurance program is being developed and will be offered to readers of Paddock Publications' Herald and Register newspapers.

Wayne Tite, director of promotions for the newspaper, said the insurance program is the first in a series of announcements involving an extensive program of community services that will be made available to readers. He said an analysis of existing programs throughout the country is being conducted prior to development of a local community services program.

The Readers Accident Insurance Program is being developed in consultation with Washington National Insurance Co. of Evanston.

Trash Pickup Hinged to Vote

Henry Laseke of Laseke Disposal Co., the garbage collector in Arlington Heights, said his men won't come back to work until their union votes on a proposed agreement.

The Teamsters Union Local 782 has mailed ballots to its members and the official vote tabulation is expected Wednesday.

Laseke said he had a meeting with his men yesterday and they told him they weren't angry with his company, they were angry with the union. "The union won't even come out here to talk to them," he said.

Rotary Announces To Meet

The Rotary Announces will meet at the home of Mrs. Stephen Jurco, 645 N. Douglas Ave., Arlington Heights, on Oct. 6 at 12:45 p.m.

The meeting will be the first one for the group this year.

IF THE MEMBERS VOTE no on the proposal, the strike will be a sanctioned one, Laseke said.

Laseke's men reported in sick Wednesday morning and did not show up for work yesterday. They are not expected back until after the final settlement of the dispute between the union and the Chicago and Suburban Scavenger Association.

The association has 25 scavenger companies among its membership. Only two companies have been affected by the wildcat strikes, unsanctioned by the union, which started Wednesday. Besides Laseke, men from Barrington Trucking Co., which handles garbage collection in Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg and Mount Prospect, have refused to work.

Ten garbage trucks manned by employees of Arlington Heights' public works department were out collecting garbage yesterday. L.A. Hanson, village manager, started emergency procedures Wednesday afternoon to combat the garbage problem.

Planner Decision Still Up in Air

The Future Planning Joint Committee discussed the pros and cons of hiring a planner for Arlington Heights last night, but reached no conclusion about recommending the hiring of one.

Mrs. Alice Harms, a plan commissioner, submitted a research report on how other communities use planners, their salaries and at what period the community hired a planner.

"Most planners don't make final decisions but often make the final decision makers look good," she began.

"Planning is a process, not a profession. Planners can serve as liasons, coordinators and researchers. In his field, he can be an in-house scholar."

SPEAKING MORE SPECIFICALLY about Arlington Heights, Mrs. Harms said, "We don't need an expert in urban renewal but we may need one in landscaping or architecture."

"There are a wide variety of planners and you have to pick out the one you need in your community."

Trustee Burt Thompson told the plan commissioners and trustees present that Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson was in favor of a city planner and felt that it would be desirable for Arlington Heights to have one.

MRS. HARMS seemed to concur and a planner with two to three years experience would be between $10,000 and $12,000. Five years experience would probably cost the village $15,000 in salary, she said.

Frank Palmatier, a trustee, said, "The wind is blowing in the direction of hiring a full time planner."

MRS. Harms seemed to concur and added, "A planner would help a settled community like ours and prevent us from going downhill and degenerating."

Then Leo Mueller, the elder statesman of the plan commission, had his say.

"I would like to see us implement the staff we already have," he said.

"We could function in this planning area if we could get another man like John Best (Village Planning Engineer) or get him an able assistant."

"How are we going to integrate a new person like this into our operation? I'm not ready to say we need one."

O. V. ANDERSON, a commissioner, picked up the ball from Mueller.

"I don't think we need a planner per se — we need someone who could free John Best to do more of the things he does so well."

Mrs. Harms said, "But we have no one in the village that can pick up all the facts and advise us or make a recommendation."

Chairman Charles Bennett suggested that the committee meet with the village manager to get his opinions and the members agreed.

A massive absentee ballot campaign is being waged by 13th Congressional District candidate Philip M. Crane to insure that Crane supporters who will be out of the district next Tuesday are not disenfranchised.

Acting on a complaint of possible vote fraud, the Herald learned yesterday that 70 absentee ballots have been mailed to only four receiving addresses — all on the fringe of the district.

The four receiving addresses apparently were used to allow Crane voters to avoid a restriction imposed by Cook County Clerk

Edward Barrett that absentee ballots must not be sent to Cook County addresses.

TWO OF THE ADDRESSES are in Lake Zurich in Lake County, one is in St. Charles in Kendall County and the fourth is in Glen Ellyn in DuPage County.

"It's unfortunate, but this is the only way it can be done," said Roland Franzen of Arlington Heights, a Crane campaign worker.

Franzen told Herald reporters Thursday night that Crane supporters who would be away from their voting district next Tuesday were urged to apply for absentee ballots and have them sent to a Lake Zurich address.

The voters then cast their ballots and returned them to Crane headquarters, which in turn delivered them to Barrett's office, Franzen said.

Other candidates contacted by the Herald agreed that Barrett does not send absentee ballots to Cook County addresses, but said they had not provided a central receiving address for absentee ballots. They questioned the wisdom of the practice.

BARRETT'S RULING apparently is meant to insure that persons requesting absentee ballots are indeed out of the district on election day. However, it does not make provision for voters who will be out of the district only on election day, and not at an out-of-town address when the ballots would be mailed.

Several of the homes to which ballots had been sent were reluctant to explain why or for which candidate they were serving as a clearing house.

Barrett told the Herald it is not unusual for persons to request absentee ballots mailed to an address other than their home as many are on vacation or traveling during an election. Clerks in the election office, when pulling files and matching addresses where ballots were being mailed, did express surprise at the limited number of receiving addresses.

Clerks said they had no guess if the number of absentee ballots for this election is larger than usual since they had no precedent for a special election during their terms of service.

A spokesman for Barrett said there is a legal check against any possible double voting and is handled by election judges. He said judges, either deliberately or innocently, could fail to go through this watchdog action.

"UNFORTUNATELY, judges sometimes don't read through the literature we send out," the spokesman said. "We're having difficulty getting election judges," he said of the 13th District race. We get one or two unexperienced ones and the others could run the show," he acknowledged.

Usual procedure is for both parties to provide two judges at each poll. It is up to the parties to staff the polls.

Barrett said absentee ballots returned to his office are sent with the voter's affidavit to their precinct during the election. When the polls close, absentee ballots are pulled from the envelopes and dropped in the ballot box. The name on the absentee ballot envelope is then checked against the binder used to note the voters that day. Sometimes these checks are "spot" or random sampling.

"Ordinarily, they would not catch this in a ballot canvass," he said, noting a canvass only catches numbers of votes cast.

Battle Brewing

Forces are gathering in Prospect Heights for a last stand against the Cook County Board to keep high-rise buildings from being built at Foundry and River roads in Prospect Heights.

Wednesday, the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals recommended rezoning to the county board of 5.2 acres of farm land at Foundry and River roads for an apartment and business complex.

The county board will vote on the rezoning request Monday. The meeting, which will be held in Room 1122 of the County Building in Chicago at 10 a.m., will be open to the public. Residents will be allowed to testify at the board meeting by first making a written request to the Public Service Committee in the county building.

A GROUP of homeowners living in the area of the controversial parcel of land will present petitions to the county board Monday protesting the rezoning.

A three-fourths majority vote by county board members will be needed to pass the rezoning. The high majority is required because two neighboring villages, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines, made a formal protest against the rezoning.

Four months ago, at the June hearing, George Doetsch, owner of the 5.2 acres, petitioned the zoning board to rezone the land from single-family residences to general service with a special use request.

The rezoning would pay the way for construction of two five-story buildings containing apartments over stores, a professional building and a franchise operation on the corner.

Track Annex Nearing Stretch

Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, Inc. (CTE), is leading in the homestretch in its attempt to get its annexation agreement with the Village of Arlington Heights approved.

Wednesday night, the plan commission voted 9-2 to recommend passage of the rezoning requested upon annexation to the village board.

The vote came at 11:45 p.m. and followed nearly three hours of questions, charges and exasperated sighs by various plan commissioners.

MRS. ALICE HARMS, a commissioner, helped to begin things by saying, "Will the developer, at his own expense, submit a traffic study when he comes in with his planned development?"

Newton Mandell, of the Gulf and Western Land Development Corp., replied, "A traffic study takes a lot of time and work but this is the only way we're going to develop anything."

"We will do everything we can to provide a good traffic flow and our findings will be available to the plan commission," Gulf and Western is the parent company of CTE.

Harold Klingner, lawyer and BOLI member, told the commission, "The school district will be put to the expense of bus-ing any children on this property to area schools."

THERE WAS NO reply to Klingner's charge until the superintendent of School Dist. 15, E.S. Castor, said, "There is no room in Rolling Meadows schools for the children at the race track property."

The current school building program does not make room for these added children and the result will be that these children will be bused over a 36-square-mile area.

"I hope you don't lose sight that these children must be educated, and, to be educated, they must have a school!"

Mandell, who has declined to dedicate land on the track site for a school, replied, "At some time, we will come before the plan commission and, having studied the school situation, we will provide a solution to it."

"IF A SCHOOL is needed, we will negotiate with the plan commission and the school district for what is best for all concerned."

When Klingner mentioned that Gulf and Western's sales were down, Mandell quickly said, "We are a publicly held corporation and G & W only holds 30 per cent."

"Philip J. Levin is our controlling stockholder and we will stand on our two feet, no matter what G & W does."

Jim Ryan, a commissioner, seemed annoyed at the commission's attempt to change the annexation agreement, and said, "Our job is not to try to rewrite this agreement."

John Langhenry, one of the newer commissioners answered, "We are just trying to question the contract."

Mrs. Harms agreed and said, "I think every one of us has the responsibility to go before the village board Monday night and raise our questions and objections."

A MEMBER OF the audience asked the commission, "What is really behind the marriage of the racetrack and the village?"

Klingner asked Mandell to answer the question and the G & W representative said, "To set the record straight, the village came to us."

Flood Charges Woods With Harassment

by BARRY SIGALE

The president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) Thursday lashed out at the county police department, charging Sheriff Joseph Woods and other top officials with major harassment of association members and causing low morale within the department.

Sgt. John Flood, 30, of Wheeling, blasted Woods for tactics he said Woods used to intimidate members of the association and prospective members by threatening their jobs and future as policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood said that Woods would probably suspend him from the department and ultimately fire him. He said legal action could be taken if he was fired.

AT A PRESS conference in the Sherman House in Chicago, Flood said, "The morale of the Cook County Police Department, under Sheriff Joseph Woods' administration, has deteriorated to its lowest point since he took over office from now-Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie."

Flood, who heads the executive board of the CCPA, a 750-member group representing 14 municipalities in the county, said Woods has led a campaign to intimidate association members and has threatened them personally.

Four of the association's top officials have either been transferred or demoted since their involvement with the union, Flood said. Flood himself has been shifted, in two steps, from the Niles Division in northern Cook County to Homewood, which is in southern Cook County, 70 miles round trip from his home in Wheeling.

Flood said that recently Woods, John Kistner, police chief, and the three highest ranking members below the chief, have held meetings with all police officers on the department and made verbal threats to all of them.

"IN THOSE MEETINGS," Flood said, "Woods told the men that if they were members of the CCPA that he would take away their police powers."

"He told his men that he would make them guards in Cook County Jail, taking away their professional police positions if they were members of the CCPA."

"He also told his men, among other things, that they would no longer be sent or allowed to go to professional police schools if they were members of the CCPA.

"Implied in these statements," Flood said, "is that members of the association will be passed over when promotions are handed out and that men will be transferred at will, as part of these harassment techniques."

"CURRENTLY, THE evaluation system within the department is unfair for promotions. You have to have inter-departmental clout to advance."

"People are constantly getting transferred. All patrolmen in Cook County can't be sure from day to day what their next assignment will be. Transfers are fairly prevalent when people speak out."

Flood said he has borne the brunt of this alleged unfair treatment, being the leader of the association, which includes 80 per cent of the 250 policemen in the sheriff's department.

Flood is a veteran of eleven years on the force, heading the detective division and serving as a sergeant for six years.

FLOOD WAS SHIFTED four months ago to the downtown office to perform clerical duties while earning his annual salary of $11,000 per year.

Tuesday he was again shifted to the Bedford Park substation in Homewood, an hour and a half from his Wheeling home, where he functions at a desk job.

Flood said Woods has called him on the carpet several times, threatening to have him indicted, taping all their conversations about the association and refusing to grant Flood a leave of absence so he could attend police administration classes at Harper College in Palatine.

"Anyone in our position who tries to seek recognition would be subjected to what we are being subjected to," Flood said.

"THIS IS NOT a unique thing. I am not a rebel like I have been called. Woods has used obscenities in our conversations and Kistner has slammed on the table. It is because of men like Sheriff Woods that there is so much turmoil in the public employee field."

In his statement, Flood said the association disagreed with policies and actions taken by Woods, including a standing order of "shoot to kill" at major civil disturbances and sending Cook County policemen out of the county to assist other municipalities with their problems, such as when Woods sent men to Gary during a civil disorder.

The association has sought to negotiate for its members regarding salaries, fringe benefits, and working conditions, but Flood said Woods and his administration have refused to negotiate in good faith relative to working conditions.

"WE HAVE a good relationship with the county board (of commissioners), who handle the economic end of it, including salaries and fringe benefits," Flood said, "but any discussions about job conditions must be done with the sheriff."

"Woods has denied to talk in good faith and has an overall anti-labor attitude. But we will continue to address ourselves to these problems as they arise. These conditions exist in every police department."

"There is practically no communication with the sheriff's department," Flood said.

Woods Denies All

Sheriff Joseph Woods yesterday flatly denied a list of harassment allegations made by the president of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) saying that he has never threatened anyone.

In an afternoon press conference, Sgt. John Flood, president of CCPA, charged Woods with harassing and intimidating members of the association and causing deterioration of morale within the police department.

Woods said he didn't have time to study all the allegations made by Flood and added that any talk of suspending the 11-year veteran was premature. He said the department would look into civil service laws to determine if there are grounds for suspension.

WOODS CONFIRMED that a special investigator has been studying the activities of the CCPA in the past few months and that he has tape recordings of meetings between him and Flood. Woods said he did so because he wanted a clear understanding of the goals of the CCPA.

"I imagine Flood would like to be fired," Woods said, "What he really wants to be is a full-time union boss. When Police Chief John Kistner returns we will look further into this matter."

Woods stressed that since he has become sheriff the department has improved and the base pay scale for his men has risen from $490 a month to $726 a month.

Woods added that through an attempt to bolster and improve the functioning of the sheriff's department a number of policemen including members of the association have had to be transferred.

A WILMETTE DEVELOPER was surprised at the plan commission's thoroughness in dissecting his planned apartment development. He remarked that he was used to the more cursory examination of the Wilmette plan commission. Commissioner Jim Ryan quipped, "The North Shore does a lot of things in a cursory manner."

Deadline Today For Band Battle

Final registration for battle of the bands sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park District is today at 5 p.m.

Organized musical groups have been invited to enter the contest for a fee of $10 with the chance of winning a first prize valued at more than $900.

Competition will be held Saturday and Sunday at Pioneer Park, 500 S. Fernandez Ave. For more information and registration, call Helen Chalmers at Pioneer Park, CL 3-0820.

ALL THE COMPETITION will be open to the public. The admission price will be $1 and refreshments will be served.

Competition will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. and 6 to 8:30 p.m. on Saturday. After 8:30 p.m., an open jam session will provide music for the audience.

Sunday competition will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. and 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. A concert presented by the winning band will begin at 8:45 p.m.

Dancing Classes Set

A 10-week session of girls' dance classes sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park District will begin at 3:45 p.m. Tuesday. The course, taught by Laura Bergstrom, will be held at Pioneer Park, 500 S. Fernandez Ave.

Girls 9 through 13 will be taught creative dance. A fee of $4 will be charged for the lessons.

Housing Violations Remain

by ALAN AKERSON

In spite of a plan for corrective action formulated late last winter, building code violations remain in many Strathmore subdivisions in the Cook County portion of Buffalo Grove.

An investigation conducted jointly by the Better Government Association (BGA) and the Herald revealed that corrective measures in many of the homes whose owners reported violations have not been completed by Levitt and Sons, Inc., the subdivision's builder. Moreover, village authorities have failed to see to it that Levitt is doing the work.

In an interview Aug. 28 Village Pres. Donald Thompson, admitted the corrective work on more than 100 homes in which violations were reported, had not been completed. Thompson realized that the work was not being completed only after checking the village's files during the interview with Herald and BGA representatives.

THIS WEEK, David Ruley, the village's new full-time building commissioner, reported that approximately 250 homeowners had notified the village that code violations existed in their homes.

Ruley said that, of these, Levitt reported corrective work had been completed on about 140. He said however, that because of lack of time, village inspectors had not yet reinspected these homes. Ruley also said that corrective work on about 60 homes was not yet reported complete by the builder.

Corrective work on the remaining 50 has apparently been completed by Levitt, and the homes have been found to be violation-free upon reinspection by village inspectors.

A high-ranking official at Levitt's regional office said Thursday, "Work is being done on the homes, and it's just about complete. More than likely the work will be finished in another month or two. We're getting the work done, and we're more than living up to our obligation."

He added, "This thing has really been blown out of proportion." Under a plan adopted by the village, each homeowner is required to notify the village that he suspects the existence of at least one code violation in his home. The village is then to reinspect the home and send a list of the necessary corrective work to Levitt. At the same time, the village establishes a file on the home.

Upon receipt of the information, Levitt is to send a letter to each homeowner notifying him that corrective work would start a few weeks after the date on Levitt's letter.

When Levitt completes the repairs on each home, it then notifies the village, which is supposed to reinspect the home.

IF THE HOME is found to be without violations, the village is to notify the homeowner by letter. If violations still exist, Levitt is to be notified by the village and perform the necessary additional work.

That was the plan as it was supposed to work. However, Thompson admitted that corrective work by Levitt has been lagging, and village reinspections have also been behind schedule.

In the Aug. 28 interview with a BGA investigator, Thompson set Jan. 1, 1970, as the date when Levitt is to have completed all the necessary corrective work. "If all the work is not done by the first of the year, I will exercise all possible pressure on Levitt," Thompson said.

THOMPSON SAID that credit for first revealing the existence of the violations should go to the Strathmore Homeowners Association, (SHA) a civic group formed more than 1½ years ago. Thompson said it was "absolutely true" that if the SHA had not pointed out the existence of widespread violations in the homes, nothing would have been done.

It was the SHA that set up a committee to inspect 45 homes for possible code violations. The SHA then notified both the village and Levitt of the widespread violations in the homes.

In a Feb. 6 letter to Thompson and Arthur B. Gingham, regional manager for Levitt, Stephen Havens, chairman of the SHA subcommittee on code enforcement, said, "as evidenced by the inspection of a sample of homes, serious code violations exist in virtually all of the homes in the subdivision."

After the existence of violations had been brought to light, the village asked its engineering firm to draw up specifications for what could be done to correct the violations. Because the houses were already completed, it would have been almost impossible to bring them into complete compliance with the code.

THOMPSON TOLD the BGA and the Herald that to attempt to bring the homes into complete compliance with the code would have been "ridiculous." He added, "It was too late; the boat had already been missed."

As a result, the village had its engineering firm, Robert E. Hattis, Inc., draw up a list of certain alternatives to the village's code. These alternatives, although they would not bring the homes into complete compliance with the village's building code, would make them as structurally sound as code compliance would have.

IN MAY the Herald revealed the existence of the widespread violations, as well as the village's plan to correct them.

As a result of that story, the village board passed a resolution in which it stated, "There had been no breakdown in the enforcement of the ordinances."

That resolution also outlined the reinspection procedure and noted that "some of the reported violations are minor, none are inherently dangerous, and all that is possible is being done to correct those that exist and insure that they do not recur."

The resolution also said, "The cooperation of the builder involved (Levitt) has been extremely good."

Although the resolution passed unanimously, one trustee, Kenneth Felten, questioned a statement in the resolution that said none of the violations were inherently dangerous.

AT THE May 21 meeting when the resolution was passed, Merv Sisson, a representative of the village's engineering firm, noted that the violations he saw in Levitt's homes in the Cook County portion of the Strathmore subdivision were more concentrated than any he had seen before.

Later, at the June 9 village board meeting, the SHA, in a letter to the village board, commended the board on the action it was taking to strengthen its building department. The letter also said, "Contrary to statements by the village president, Mr. Donald Thompson, these problems (code violations) are serious in nature, and their occurrence in a large number of homes represents a breakdown in building code enforcement which must not be allowed to repeat itself."

The letter continued, "Fortunately, Levitt and Sons, Inc., has been cooperative in correcting code violations brought to its attention by individual homeowners."

Local Parks Set Fishing Season

Fish, instead of children, will swim in two Arlington Heights Park District's pools Oct. 11 to 26.

The fishing program, sponsored by the park district, will be held at Recreation Park, 500 E. Miner St., and Pioneer Park, 500 S. Fernandez Ave.

Poles, lines and hooks will be provided for anglers who will have to pay 50 cents for one hour of fishing or one catch. Fishermen must bring their own bait.

ON WEEKENDS, fishing will be permitted from 1 to 5 p.m. and on weekdays from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Pioneer Park's pool will be open for anglers on Mondays and Wednesdays, 7 to 9 p.m., and Recreation Park's pool will be open Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 to 9 p.m.

No casting will be permitted during the 16-day fishing season.

Anyone interested in arranging fishing for a group may call Recreation Park, 255-8850.

Train Riders Plan Car Pools

Cautious commuters in the Northwest suburbs are planning their car pools now in face of a nationwide railroad strike threatened for midnight tonight.

Spokesmen from both the Chicago North Western and the Milwaukee Road railroads said they will be out of operation if the strike occurs.

"But that's a big if," said Ashley Wilhite of the Milwaukee Road. "We seldom know anything definite until it occurs," he added of railroad strikes in general.

"It's hard to believe the strike will actually take place," Wilhite said. The strike would paralyze all rail service.

"YOUR GUESS is as good as mine," Frank Koval of Chicago North Western said Thursday when asked if the strike will take place.

"One thing in the offering is if President Nixon appoints a presidential act finding board. That will stop the strike for 60 days," he added.

President Nixon has until midnight tonight to appoint the board and head off the strike temporarily, Koval added.

The situation is in the President's hands, Wilhite agreed. He could offer no consolation to commuters should the strike occur. "We have to be prepared if transportation simply does not run. That is very hard to face," Wilhite added.

A primary concern of the railroads is that perishable goods get to a point where they can be protected while a strike is on, he said.

WILHITE COMPARED the situation yesterday to water rising during a flood. "You can't stop it so you just watch it rise," he said.

The strike threat is being initiated by four shopcraft unions in pursuit of a 10 per cent pay increase.

Since regional, rather than nationwide, service would be halted, according to initial reports, there was doubt that President Nixon would intervene.

Later, developments indicate that rail service would be hampered on a national level and a fine line now exists on which the president must make a decision.

The railroads threatened with the strike Saturday were the Santa Fe, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Erie Lackawanna, Southern, Baltimore and Ohio and Chesapeake and Delaware Canal.

Co-eds Study In France

Two Arlington Heights coeds, students at Kalamazoo College, will be leaving this month for six months of foreign study in France under the college's foreign study program.

Wendy Bolduc, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver J. Bolduc of 719 N. Douglas Ave. will study in Caen, and Margaret Corwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Corwin of 403 N. Douglas, will study in Strasbourg.

The program is designed to give the students an opportunity to become acquainted with a culture and educational system different from their own. Most of the students live with families while attending classes in their respective centers.

WHAT IS A PHARMACIST?

Your pharmacist is an expert on medicines. Formerly he prepared, stored and compounded most of the medicines in the prescriptions written by the doctor. Although your pharmacist today does less compounding, he must know a great deal more about medicines and their ingredients.

Your pharmacist must know how to combine medicines and their effect on the body. His knowledge assures the safety, accuracy and the purity of the prescriptions he dispenses. Your pharmacist is also your family friend. He is interested in your health and wants to help you protect it. We are proud when a family chooses us to be their personal pharmacy.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Friday, Oct. 3, the 276th day of 1969 with 89 to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1922 Mrs. Rebecca Felton, a Georgia Democrat, became the first woman to serve in the United States Senate.

In 1933 Italian dictator Benito Mussolini launched an attack on Ethiopia.

In 1960 Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev wrecked a Paris summit meeting by refusing to meet with President Eisenhower unless the American chief executive admitted U.S. "spy plane" flights over Russia as acts of aggression.

In 1968 retired Air Force General Curtis LeMay joined the George Wallace ticket as vice presidential candidate of the American Independent Party.

A thought for the day: William Pitt said, "Unlimited power is apt to corrupt the minds of those who possess it."
